

Sadat Extends Life Of U.N. Sinai Force

By United Press International

Egypt agreed Wednesday to let U.N. peacekeeping troops stay in the Sinai for three more months. Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin made a new demand by calling for face-to-face meetings between the two countries before the signature of a new interim Middle East peace pact.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Tuesday he would not agree to face-to-face talks with Israeli leaders — a periodic Israeli demand since 1948. The United States has been serving as mediator in the current negotiations.

Rabin spoke hours after Sadat sent word to the United Nations that its troops could remain in the Sinai buffer zone, but did not mention the Egyptian leader's announcement. A government official in Jerusalem, however, said the decision was a "wise move."

Rabin told a women's group that a second troop disengagement agreement must represent a rejection of the use of force and "if this is not the attitude of Egypt, I don't see very much hope in the efforts to move towards peace."

He later added a further Israeli condition never mentioned before publicly in connection with the pact being mediated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger:

"At the last phase of the negotiations before an agreement between Israel and Egypt will be signed, there must be face-to-face meetings between the delegates of our two countries because without such a step I doubt if the agreement will be achieved and will mean what it should mean once it is achieved."

Rabin used the word "delegates" to refer to participants at political discussions. The government-run radio earlier quoted well-placed sources as saying such meetings would take place at Geneva, Switzerland.

Israeli and Egyptian generals met at Kilometer 101 of the Cairo-Suez highway to discuss military implementation of the first Kissinger-engineered disengagement pact after it was signed in January 1974, but the two sides have negotiated only indirectly in political talks.

Rabin said Sadat's description Tuesday of Israel as a knife thrust into the body of the Arab world "has put a question mark, at least in my mind, about the possibility to move towards an interim settlement."

"If this is the attitude of the president of Egypt, it is even more doubtful that he is trying to achieve peace with Israel."

Sadat told the United Nations its troops could remain in the buffer zone between Egyptian troops and Israeli forces past midnight Thursday, when the authorization for their presence would have expired.

Israeli Commerce Minister Haim Bar-Lev, meanwhile, said in Jerusalem that although Israel and Egypt basically agree on the framework of a new peace pact, negotiations could collapse over territorial demands in Sinai.

The announcement that the mandate for the 3,900 U.N. troops would be extended came from Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi in Cairo. He also said U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim will visit Cairo Friday. No further details were given.

"President Sadat's decision is another step towards serious work, and Egypt will re-evaluate its position in as far as dealing with the (Middle East) conflict is concerned," Fahmi said in a speech at Cairo University.

He said Sadat's decision was in response to a U.N. Security Council appeal "and was taken unanimously by the (Egyptian) National Security Council."

Israeli troops had stayed on heightened alert in the Sinai during the day, awaiting word whether Sadat would reverse his decision not to renew the mandate. Other Israeli soldiers raided a Lebanese village in a hunt for Palestinian guerrillas.

Regents Won't Be Prosecuted

By GORDON WINTERS

Star Staff Writer

Because they did not know they were breaking the law, no charges will be filed against University of Nebraska regents for holding an illegal closed meeting June 21.

But Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners said he "certainly would" expect the board to know what the law is in the future.

And news coverage of the case, he said, should put other public bodies "on notice" of the new open meetings law.

Up To $50 Fine

Lahners had been studying whether to file criminal charges for weeks. Each regent could have been fined up to $50.

He based his decision not to prosecute on the fact that the state's new open meeting law states that members of public bodies who "knowingly violate" the law are guilty of a criminal act.

Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, who has jurisdiction with Lahners in the case, could still go ahead with prosecution, but his chief deputy, Gerald Vitman, indicated Lahners' decision will stand.

Lahners said he found that some regents were completely unfamiliar with the law and some only were generally familiar with its terms.

The only member that said he was well acquainted with the law, Lahners said, was student member Jim Say, who first thought the closed meeting was legal, but changed his mind shortly after the meeting.

"All members of the Board of Regents prior to the meeting did not have any belief that they were doing wrong," Lahners wrote in a six-page explanation of his decision.

Lahners pointed out in his explanation that this was the first meeting the regents had held since the law went into effect May 27.

Law Violated

Lahners made it clear, however, that the board did violate several provisions of the law.

In his explanation, Lahners said he found that the regents did discuss public policy at their unannounced 7 a.m. meeting, which included a chat by NU Athletic Director Bob Devaney.

Specifically, Lahners said, the board discussed guidelines for selecting architects.

The new law states it is "hereby declared to be the policy of this state that the formation of public policy is public business and may not be conducted in secret."

Other topics discussed at the meeting, Lahners said, were the salaries of so-called minor sports and letters exchanged between Regent Robert Prokop and State Sen.

George Syas. Lahners did not elaborate on the topics.

Another violation noted by Lahners was "There was no notice given to the public or the news media of the proposed 7 a.m. breakfast."

Although a public body can close a meeting by a roll call vote for discussions of matters such as personnel or law suits, the public must be notified of the meeting.

In response to reporters' questions at a news conference in his office, Lahners said the new law's requirement that violations be knowing is not a "major loophole."

Hard To Prosecute

But he admitted that if all members of a public board refused to talk to investigators it would be difficult to obtain evidence showing that a violation was "knowing."

Methods by which a prosecutor could surmount the problem, he said, could include showing that the law had been studied earlier by board members or through the testimony of a board member who had objected to the proposal of a secret meeting and told his fellow board members it was illegal.

In the case of the regents, he said, the board had not discussed the law, although it was on the agenda for the official meeting that day.

Lahners' Leniency Wins Praise

Initial reaction was positive Wednesday to a decision not to prosecute University of Nebraska Regents for violating the state's open meetings law.

Lancaster County Atty. Ron Lahners announced his decision at a news conference, saying that while the regents violated a provision of the law, it was not done "knowingly."

Sen. Gary Anderson, sponsor and author of LB325, said Wednesday, "I personally concur with Mr. Lahners' decision. In this situation, it was the wise thing to do."

In a telephone interview from his home in Axtell, Anderson said he's pleased Lahners decided a "meeting" took place at the regents' breakfast session, under terms of the new open meetings law.

"I don't think there's been any weakening of the law" as a result of Lahners' refusal to prosecute, Anderson said. "His interpretation was correct, and I think he's handled the situation in the best possible way."

Regents "had a chance to learn without being prosecuted," Anderson said. "I think it's going to make it more difficult" for public bodies "to have a special meeting at a special time and not call it a meeting."

The express purpose of LB325 states that Nebraska policy requires public business to be carried out in public.

"I have since talked to a couple of members of the Board of Regents," Anderson said, "and they've indicated a willingness to comply, now that they understand what the situation is."

"The whole experience is going to have the effect of making the law work better."

Regents Chairman Kermit Wagner of Schuyler declined to return a call for comment. But Lincoln Regent Ed Schwartzkopf said he too concurs with Lahners' decision.

"The board didn't do this knowingly," Schwartzkopf said of the closed breakfast meeting in June, which NU Athletic director Bob Devaney attended. "If we were trying to violate a law, we wouldn't send out a letter indicating it," he said.

Schwartzkopf noted that the regents have eliminated all briefings, committee meetings and background sessions — scheduled routinely and off the record for years — prior to their formal, monthly meetings.

"The news media were aware of the restructuring" of the regents' business agenda, "and did not inform the public," Schwartzkopf said.

Now, all business will be conducted "all in one meeting in one day" when the board will "throw it all in front of the public," he said. "I don't know if this is going to work too well."

However, "We really rely on the news media," to disseminate information on regents' actions, he said, and the board will probably have to restructure its approach again to provide complete background for all reporters.

Schwartzkopf also said that Devaney "was leaving town that morning (June 21)" and when he learned of the breakfast meeting, he "wanted to come and tell us his side of the story" about the athletic program.

Devaney, contacted in Hastings Wednesday, at first declined to comment, saying it would be inappropriate because he'd just be "making something up."

But Devaney added he has "no argument" with Schwartzkopf's description of Devaney's part in the meeting, which "meant very little to me."

In response to a question, Devaney said he made "no effort whatsoever" to request a closed or secret meeting with the regents.

Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas is also charged with enforcing LB325, along with county attorneys in counties where violations occur. "I agreed earlier to turn the (regents) matter over to him (Lahners)," Douglas said by telephone from Omaha. "I do not plan to look into it" any further.

Impounded Funds Release Boosts State Road Building

By BOB GUENTHER

Star Staff Writer

Thanks to the release of Nebraska's impounded federal highway funds, the state's highway program is back on schedule.

Only nine projects originally scheduled for contract signing in the year ending June 30, 1975, are included in the highway construction program planned for the year ending June 30, 1976.

That contrasts with the road situation one year ago when tabulations by The Star revealed that 41 of the 72 projects slated for the year were holdovers from the previous year.

The dilemma, prompted by inflated construction costs and lagging revenue growth, threatened to slow down future highway work in domino-like fashion.

$101.5 Million Plan

President Gerald Ford's release of impounded highway funds solved that and has allowed the State Roads Department to plan a $101.5 million highway program, featuring $61 million for work on 516.9 miles of Nebraska highways.

Deputy State Engineer Charles Nutter said those projects which are left over from last year were delayed for reasons other than lack of money. At least one, he noted, is tied up by a lawsuit.

In both dollars and miles, the fiscal 1976 highway program is down from the banner year of 1974-75 when the release or earlier impounded federal highway funds allowed the state to contract for $95.8 million in road work on 553.9 miles.

Question Raised

There is some question whether the state will even be able to meet the more modest highway program planned for 1975-76.

State Engineer Thomas Doyle anchors the construction program on receipt of $61.5 million in federal highway trust funds. That is $28.8 million more than the state is presently assured.

"Our program is subject to change, especially in the area of federal funding, as Congress has yet to act on a 1975 highway bill," Doyle said.

Southeast Nebraska, County Plans Detailed

... See stories on Page 20

He also pointed out that significant changes may occur in the federal government's approach to highway financing.

He referred to Ford's recent proposal to discontinue the federal highway trust fund, the receipts from the federal gas tax which in past years has assured the states of a steady flow of money earmarked for road work.

Ford's proposal, which Doyle opposes, will assure funds solely for interstate highway funding, Doyle said.

The 1975-76 plan includes the last segment of Nebraska's interstate highway system which remains to be built. It is a 2.8-mile stretch of I-29 near South Sioux City. The paving work will cost $3.7 million.

Another $12.7 million will be spent on interstate highway safety projects, such as lighting and guard rails.

Astronauts Look To Future

Houston (UPI) — Ending their historic mission of firsts and lasts, the men of the final Apollo packed Wednesday to return to earth and predicted the next generation of U.S. spaceflights would let women and men fly routinely in orbit.

Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew smoothly toward a 4:18 p.m. CDT splashdown Thursday in the Pacific Ocean.

As the astronauts entered their last full day in space, elated scientists reported Apollo had discovered a mysterious "entirely new object" out beyond the Solar System. They guessed it might be a new-found sun.

The recovery carrier New Orleans stood by to greet the Apollo astronauts 322 miles west of Hawaii. Flight director Frank Littleton said weather in the landing zone was "just great."

A burst of Apollo's main rocket at 7:32

p.m. Wednesday was fired to drop the spacecraft into an orbit 130 to 138 miles high to help scientists map the offshore continental boundaries. It was the last maneuver of the flight before the homecoming blast out of orbit.

The Apollo crew's flight with two Russians in orbit last week opened one dramatic era in space exploration. The astronauts' splashdown closes another, bringing an end to the Age of Apollo that sent 24 men to the moon.

Dr. Stuart Bowyer of the University of California at Berkeley, whose extreme ultraviolet telescope was carried aboard Apollo, said the instrument had spotted a strange fiery object — perhaps a "very hot plasma ... like our sun, but very intense, very compact."

"I don't know what it is or what it means," Bowyer said in a news conference.

Tornado Kills 3 In Canton, Ill.

By United Press International
A tornado roared across the west central Illinois community of Canton late Wednesday, killing at least three persons, injuring some 65 others and leaving a trail of destruction across about a third of the city.

Most of the casualties occurred at a trailer park east of the city, where all three deaths occurred.

The twister also tore into a block of the main business district, knocking out power, ripping open gas lines and damaging buildings.

Ed Smith, assistant administrator at Graham Hospital in Canton, said 14 persons were admitted, two in critical condition.

Authorities said the twister damaged the roof of the International Harvester farm machinery plant on the city's east side, injuring several employees. High winds also were reported to have hit the hospital, blowing out some 15 windows,

Voting Act Extension Cut Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate unexpectedly amended the House-passed voting rights bill Wednesday night by reducing its extension provisions from 10 to seven years.

The 52-42 vote changing the bill means it now will have to go back to the House for further action before it can be sent to the White House. Managers of the bill had hoped the Senate would approve the House version without change to ensure that the bill is extended by its Aug. 6 expiration date.

The amendment was offered by Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the Democratic whip, who said "the South is entitled to some consideration for the efforts it has made to comply with the law."

The House could accept Byrd's 7-year amendment and send the bill directly to President Ford. Otherwise Senate-House conferees would have to work out a compromise.

Any compromise would be subject to approval by both the Senate and the House. Supporters of the bill feared this might be met by a filibuster in the Senate.

Byrd said he didn't think the House "would take the risk" of rejecting his amendment and sending the bill to conference knowing Congress is going to start a month-long recess August 1.

Earlier, the Senate overrode a personal appeal from Ford to make the act apply equally to all 50 states. The amendment, sponsored by Sen. John L. Stennis, D-Miss., was tabled and thus killed by a vote of 58 to 38.

The tabling motion was made by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., the Senate's only black member, after a fiery debate touched off by a letter from Ford urging extension of the act "to American voters in all 50 states."

The original law, and a five-year extension in 1970, were designed primarily to prevent Southern states from using discriminatory voting practices against blacks.

A House-passed bill would extend these provisions for 10 years and also broaden these special protections to cover Spanish-Americans and other language minority groups.

One effect of the amendment by Stennis would have been to eliminate the provisions to protect the voting rights of these minorities. Stennis' amendment would not have relieved any of the covered Southern states from the special restrictions of the law. It would have made them applicable to all states.

The law is nationwide in prohibiting denial or abridgement of voting rights on the basis of color. But a number of areas which once required literacy tests or similar voter qualifications and where less than 50 per cent of the voting-age population was registered or voted in the presidential elections of 1964 or 1968 were brought under special coverage.

Earlier in the day, the Senate voted 76 to 20 to limit each senator's debate.

Washington (UPI) — Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, Republicans from Nebraska, Wednesday voted against invoking cloture on the extension of the voting rights act. The Senate approved the debate-limiting motion 76-20.

Astronauts Look To Future

Houston (UPI) — Ending their historic mission of firsts and lasts, the men of the final Apollo packed Wednesday to return to earth and predicted the next generation of U.S. spaceships would let women and men fly routinely in orbit.

Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew smoothly toward a 4:18 p.m. CDT splashdown Thursday in the Pacific Ocean.

As the astronauts entered their last full day in space, elated scientists reported Apollo had discovered a mysterious "entirely new object" out beyond the Solar System. They guessed it might be a new-found sun.

The recovery carrier New Orleans stood by to greet the Apollo astronauts 322 miles west of Hawaii. Flight director Frank Littleton said weather in the landing zone was "just great."

A burst of Apollo's main rocket at 7:32

p.m. Wednesday was fired to drop the spacecraft into an orbit 130 to 138 miles high to help scientists map the offshore continental boundaries. It was the last maneuver of the flight before the homecoming blast out of orbit.

The Apollo crew's flight with two Russians in orbit last week opened one dramatic era in space exploration. The astronauts' splashdown closes another, bringing an end to the Age of Apollo that sent 24 men to the moon.

Dr. Stuart Bowyer of the University of California at Berkeley, whose extreme ultraviolet telescope was carried aboard Apollo, said the instrument had spotted a strange fiery object — perhaps a "very hot plasma . . . like our sun, but very intense, very compact."

"I don't know what it is or what it means," Bowyer said in a news conference.

Tornado Kills 3 In Canton, Ill.

By United Press International

A tornado roared across the west central Illinois community of Canton late Wednesday, killing at least three persons, injuring some 65 others and leaving a trail of destruction across about a third of the city.

Most of the casualties occurred at a trailer park east of the city, where all three deaths occurred.

The twister also tore into a block of the main business district, knocking out power, ripping open gas lines and damaging buildings.

Ed Smith, assistant administrator at Graham Hospital in Canton, said 14 persons were admitted, two in critical condition.

Authorities said the twister damaged the roof of the International Harvester farm machinery plant on the city's east side, injuring several employees. High winds also were reported to have hit the hospital, blowing out some 15 windows,

East, Gulf Coast Dock Workers Refuse To Load Grain

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association voted Wednesday to refuse to load American grain aboard ships bound for the Soviet Union, but they gave union officials power to lift the ban.

"If we do stop it — and I hope we won't have to — we'll have the support we'll need," said ILA President Thomas W. Gleason. "We don't just want to kill the farmer out. We want to see the government export produce. But we want assurances that our brothers are protected."

Meanwhile, Agriculture Department officials said the Soviet Union apparently has ended its purchases for now but may start shopping again later this year. The Russians have bought an estimated $1.3 billion of U.S. grain — some 9.8 million metric tons of wheat, corn and barley — in deals announced in the past week.

The ILA resolution was passed unanimously to thunderous applause at the union's annual convention by representatives of 132,000 Canadian and American dock workers on the East and Gulf coasts.

Gleason said the action would not stop grain from being loaded at Canadian ports because "I don't want to get involved with Canadian politics."

The ILA action drew protests from Oklahoma and Kansas wheat groups. "Sure it was a shock the last time when the Russians made a big purchase, but now we have the wheat to spare and we've got to find a market for it," said Rex Cozad, administrator of the Kansas Wheat Commission. "The longshoremen are missing the point entirely."

He referred to a controversial 1972 deal in which the Soviets bought 19 million metric tons of grain from the United States, causing increases in wheat and food prices.

West Coast longshoremen — members of another union — indicated they would load grain. "Our policy is to encourage two-way trade between Russia, China and the United States. We'll load any grain ships coming here," said Ed Anderson, a member of the executive board of the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union and secretary-treasurer of the Seattle local.

Gleason said union officials would study the effects of the grain sales before deciding whether the union will load the grain as planned in September or October. The resolution passed Wednesday gives the ILA president the right to rescind the ban.

"The assurance I want is very simple," he said. "We want to know what effect this sale will have on the cost of living. We do not know what Mr. Butz means when he says a minimal increase. He might think that's $1 a loaf of bread."

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has said the sale would only nominally increase American grain prices.

Gleason said the union also wanted assurance that American ships load at least one-third of the grain and not just a small portion of it as in 1972. "We have 65 or 70 American ships being laid up and more going into mothballs," he said.

President Ford, in a message read to the union, made a brief reference to the way the wheat would be shipped.

"I can assure you the provisions of the U.S.-Russia maritime agreement will be honored. One-third of all grain to Russia will be shipped on American vessels," Ford's message read.

Grain Loading Vote Gets Bitter Reaction

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Reaction to a vote by the International Longshoremen's Association to ban the shipment of grain to Russia from the United States was prompt and bitter.

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., a member of the House Agriculture Committee, described the action by the union as "unbelievable and intolerable. The government should take appropriate action."

Vic Haas of Hemingford, a prominent wheat grower and member of the Wheat Advisory Committee of the State Department of Agriculture, blamed the action on the government's cheap food policy.

"The union has swallowed the cheap food policy hook, line and sinker. They are destroying a lot of jobs all across the nation, on the American ships that have the grain contracts. They are going to ruin the American dollar, and in the end the housewives, including their own wives, will end up paying more for food because their dollars will have less value," he said.

Haas said the sale of grain contributes to peace in the world.

"It is easier to talk peace on a full belly. It is better Russia should be spending its gold on wheat than on weapons," he said.

"My banker is praying for us every night. If we don't have this sale our country here will be worse than broke. Everything we buy to farm is going up in price," he said.

Ed Narjes, a wheat farmer from Sidney and former member of the state Wheat Advisory Committee, agreed that it probably was a cheap food policy move.

"If they were going to ban all exports to Communist nations it might make sense but this is simply picking on farmers. I think we ought to stuff the wheat down the longshoremen's throats," Narjes said.

"These people are barking up the wrong tree. When you destroy foreign sales of wheat you destroy jobs. Who do these fellows think they are going to work for? All this will do is route the grain through another nation which will realize a profit we ought to have in this country," he said.

"If farmers can't sell their crops they won't be able to buy the things labor makes. I can't visualize what they expect to gain," he added.

Louis Wiebe, president of the Farmers Union of Nebraska, said, "It is a bad blow to the whole country. This is going to hurt a lot of people but farmers will suffer the most."

"Something ought to be done about the control of the loading of grain in this country."

White House Opposes Bonding Meat Packers

Washington (UPI) — Administration farm officials, reversing themselves under White House orders, Wednesday urged Congress to reject bills aimed at protecting farmers against loss when meat packers go bankrupt.

Agriculture Department officials as late as Tuesday night had been prepared to support the legislation at a Wednesday hearing before a House agriculture subcommittee. Several hours before the hearing opened, however, the agency was told to reverse itself by the White House Office of Management and Budget, it was reported.

John M. Damgard, deputy assistant agriculture secretary, told the subcommittee the administration opposes the bill because while they would protect farmers who sell livestock, "the increased regulation... is inconsistent with the growing move toward less regulation by the federal government."

The new proposals, included in several pending bills, would require meat packers to post "reasonable" bonds assuring payment to farmers if packers get into financial trouble after buying livestock. Other portions include proposals giving priority to claims by farmers in packer bankruptcy cases and allowing the Agriculture Department to seek injunctions against insolvent packers.

The legislation, backed strongly by many farm groups, was inspired partly by a recent bankruptcy case involving American Beef Packers of Omaha.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Bruce Wilson testified the Justice Department strongly opposed the legislation on grounds the government should not stretch existing bonding requirements "into the relationships between sellers and buyers."

Wilson acknowledged this policy would allow occasional cases like the one in which American Beef problems left many farmers unpaid, but he said the government should not enter "normal business relationships" without more need than has yet been shown.

Richard Lyng, president of the American Meat Institute which represents many major packers, said the trade group endorses a "reasonable" bonding requirement to restore confidence in the industry.

SEC Asks Judge To Name Receiver For 'Insolvent' NFO

Des Moines (UPI) — The Federal Securities and Exchange Commission has asked that a receiver be appointed for the Corning-based National Farmers Organization.

The SEC made its request Tuesday at a hearing before U.S. District Judge William C. Stuart, charging that the NFO is "hopelessly insolvent" and showed a loss in its operations in all but two of the last eight years.

Attorneys for the SEC presented a balance sheet showing that as of June 21 the NFO had assets of $3.9 million and liabilities of $20.9 million. The largest portion of the liabilities — $16 million — was money owed to grain sellers.

Arguing for the NFO, President Oren Lee Staley asked Stuart to reject the request for appointment of a receiver. He said such action "would result in the death of the NFO."

Staley told the judge the group's financial picture has been improving, noting that it has reduced its outstanding loans from about $8 million a year ago to $1.6 million this year. He also said the NFO raised $3.1 million in a four-day drive last week to prove its solvency.

"The NFO unquestionably is solvent," he said.

Judge Stuart did not indicate when he would rule on the SEC request for appointment of a receiver.

Smathers Says JFK Sought His Reaction

Washington (UPI) — Former Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., said Wednesday President John F. Kennedy sought his reaction to a possible assassination plot against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro early in 1962.

Smathers, speaking with reporters after being questioned by the Senate Select CIA Committee, said Kennedy "wanted to know what the reaction (in the United States and around the world) would be."

"I said it would be terrible both if it got out in the United States and because no matter what Kennedy did it would be attributed to him," Smathers said.

He gave no indication whether Kennedy actually approved any attempt to kill Castro.

Earlier, in a telephone interview, the Rev. James Vizzard said the CIA gave a Belgian Jesuit, the Rev. Roger Vekemans, $5 million in 1963 — with Kennedy's approval — to support anti-Communist political movements in Chile.

Smathers said his memory on the assassination conversation has dimmed with time, but he believes Kennedy brought up the subject. At the time, Smathers said, "I was more against Castro than he was."

During the conversation, Smathers said, Kennedy "was very outspoken against taking that (assassination) line even though admitting that someone had suggested it to him. I don't know what the was."

5 Blacks, 7 Whites On Little Jury

Raleigh, N.C. (UPI) — A predominantly female jury of seven whites and five blacks was chosen Wednesday to hear the murder trial of Joan Little, a black woman accused of stabbing to death a white jailer whom she claims tried to rape her. She has pleaded innocent.

The exact makeup of the jury, which the defense and the prosecution wrangled over for 10 days, is five white women, three black women, two white men and two black men.

The prosecution used the last of its two peremptory challenges allowed in alternate selection to exclude a black junior high school teacher Wednesday and no alternates were selected before the day's session ended.

Edward Mitchell, 64, a black retired deliveryman, was the last of the regular jurors to be chosen. He was the 72nd prospective juror to be examined.

Rise In Newspaper Prices Seen By Financial Analyst

Toronto, Ont. (UPI) — Newspaper prices could shoot up $25 per ton following settlement of the current strike against Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., a leading financial analyst warned Wednesday.

About 65% of Canadian newspaper production goes to the United States. The New York price is now $260 a ton and $246 for Canadian newspaper publishers.

"In the present market environment any settlement giving more than just raises in the cost of living could be costly," said Robert Duncan, pulp and paper analyst for Merrill Lynch Royal Securities Ltd.

"Companies in the industry are in no position to increase the labor component of manufacturing costs. They're not getting a sufficient return on investment at this time," he said.

Revision Recommended

Washington — The General Accounting Office recommended revising the nation's $30.2 billion federal general revenue sharing program to provide for strict enforcement of anti-discrimination laws and to require local government to involve the citizenry in determining how the funds are to be spent.

Warhead Removal Put Off

Washington — At the suggestion of State Department, the Defense Department has delayed plans for removing obsolete nuclear warheads from Nike Hercules anti-aircraft missiles from Italy and Greece. The Pentagon had directed the Army to remove all the warheads from the countries by July 1. According to officials, the State Department intervened to object that it would not be politically propitious to remove the warheads at this time, even though they were obsolete and no longer needed by two countries.

Delay Said On Purpose

Washington (Washington Star) — A House subcommittee suggested that Cities Service Oil Co. purposely delayed repairing an offshore natural gas well platform last winter as a means of pressuring Congress to deregulate gas prices.

Great Temples Damaged

Pagan, Burma — An earthquake that struck Burma July 8 irreparably damaged many of the great temples of Pagan. The disaster to this artistic landmark of Asia got almost no world attention because the country's isolationism has kept them little known.

Emergency Ratified

New Delhi — India's parliament completed ratification of the current state of emergency under which the government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has assured sweeping powers and arrested thousands of its opponents. The legal emergency thus continues indefinitely. The government asked the resident New York Times correspondent, William Borders, to leave the country voluntarily for refusing to pledge observance of self-censorship, warning that if he stayed he would probably be deported. After consulting his editors here he declined to leave voluntarily.

3 Men Prepare To Rule Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A collective leadership of three military men is preparing to assume power in Portugal, a high government official said Wednesday.

The triumvirate would be composed of President Francisco da Costa Gomes, Premier Vasco Goncalves, and the national security chief, Brig. Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho. It would take over from a 30-man council which is the current ruling authority.

A spokesman for the president's office said he could not confirm or deny the report of three-man collective leadership. The Socialists and the Popular Democrat Party (PPD), moderate leftists who together represent about two-thirds of the Portuguese electorate, consider Goncalves pro-Communist. They quit the government to protest the military's extreme leftward swing, and demanded Goncalves be replaced as a condition of their return.

The reported new regime would make the parties' conditions obsolete and leftist military leaders would be seizing full control.

The government official also said a reorganization of the current ruling Revolutionary Council of 30 military leaders was expected. He indicated the council would be subordinate to the three-man leadership which he said might be called "The Directory."

The government officer said there was no doubt of Goncalves staying on as premier and he indicated both Costa Gomes and Carvalho already had agreed to share leadership in what appeared to be a vast power shuffle among the country's military leadership.

The official acknowledged final authority for setting up "The Directory" was in the hands of the 250-man assembly of the Armed Forces Movement (AFM), the officers' organization that ousted the old right-wing government 15 months ago. The government official described the change as one of "concentration of authority" and a "linkpin" with the military leaders. He said the 30-man council has been too big to be workable.

But he gave no timetable for the change in the leftist leadership, although he said it would not be affected by the fact that Carvalho left Monday on an eight-day official trip to Cuba.

The flamboyant 38-year-old Carvalho is considered a nationalistic leftist without real party ideology. Costa Gomes has democratic socialist views, informants say.

Higher Prices On New Natural Gas Favored By Eight Midwest Governors

©The New York Times

Cincinnati — Middle Western governors of both parties called Wednesday for the removal of price controls from newly developed natural gas.

In a resolution adopted in the closing business session of their annual conference, the governors took the side of President Ford in declaring that deregulation would encourage development of new gas fields, while the resulting increase in natural gas prices would discourage wasteful use.

Nine of the 15 Midwest governors were still attending the conference Wednesday morning when the vote was taken.

Use Of Tax Opposed
The conference made no recommendation on price controls of domestic oil. But the governors once again sided with the President against some elements in Congress by opposing the use of federal taxes on energy supplies as a means of reducing consumption.

The five Republican governors who endorsed the deregulation resolution were joined by three of the four Democrats present.

Gov. J. James Exon of Nebraska, the other Democrat, abstained, saying he had "never been sold on removing all regulations on energy production."

The recommendation for deregulation was the result of an extensive study of the energy problem by a special study group created by the governors' conference.

The governors also called for an excess profits tax on natural gas producers, with a provision for rebates if these profits were

Bond: Price Kept Low
Gov. Christopher S. Bond of Missouri, a Republican, contended that current regulations of natural gas had kept the price artificially low in comparison to coal and oil prices.

Opposition to federal taxes on energy as a means of reducing consumption placed all nine governors in disagreement with a proposal by the House Democrats' energy task force that would lead to additional federal levies on crude oil production.

In their resolution, the governors said they opposed the employment of regressive taxes as a "prime mechanism" for reducing energy consumption.

"To increase the cost of energy by federal taxation is an indirect, and ineffective approach to the energy problems of the nation and will cause an aggravation of inflationary problems," the resolution declared.

Allocation Plan Favored
The governors also urged renewing the federal petroleum allocation program, which is due to expire Aug. 31. They recommended that it be continued until stability in energy supply and distribution was achieved.

Several of the Midwest states have adopted their own strip-mining control and reclamation laws.

But the governors called Wednesday for the extension of federal regulations to cover federal lands where strip mining is planned to lands on which the federal government controls the mineral rights.

Exon Tells Rocky Administration Not All White Hats

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Gov. J. J. Exon said Wednesday he told Vice President Nelson Rockefeller he was not convinced the administration was wearing all the white hats, and Congress all the black hats on the energy issue.

In an interview with an Ohio radio station, Exon said "certainly we are going to have to come out of this Congress with something" or energy companies would have a "wide open raid on consumers." Exon criticized the administration for its impasse with Congress.

Exon said he asked Rockefeller, "What is the situation on energy?" The governor said he told the vice president, "I don't believe the people have been leveled with."

Exon said it was strange that people had to stand in line 18 months ago for 35-cent gas line, but now that the price has risen to more than 60 cents, "We can buy all we want." However,

Exon said he did think there was a long-term energy crisis because foreign nations could shut off the supply of oil.

Revision Recommended

Washington — The General Accounting Office recommended revising the nation's $30.2 billion federal general revenue sharing program to provide for strict enforcement of anti-discrimination laws and to require local government to involve the citizenry in determining how the funds are to be spent.

Warhead Removal Put Off

Washington — At the suggestion of State Department, the Defense Department has delayed plans for removing obsolete nuclear warheads for Nike Hercules anti-aircraft missiles from Italy and Greece. The Pentagon had directed the Army to remove all the warheads from the countries by July 1. According to officials, the State Department intervened to object that it would not be politically propitious to remove the warheads at this time, even though they were obsolete and no longer needed by two countries.

Delay Said On Purpose

Washington (Washington Star) — A House subcommittee suggested that Cities Service Oil Co. purposely delayed repairing an offshore natural gas well platform last winter as a means of pressuring Congress to deregulate gas prices.

Pagan, Burma — An earthquake that struck Burma July 8 irreparably damaged many of the great temples of Pagan. The disaster to this artistic landmark of Asia got almost no world attention because the country's isolationism has kept them little known.

Facts Seem Missing

It appears to me that somewhere along the line, the facts in regard to the Detox Center cost, proposed to be located in the dorm on St. Mary's Street, became confused, lost or ignored.

The problem seems to be in the idea that the original estimate of $100,000 to remodel the "first floor" for the Detox Center and the $446,300 to remodel the entire four floors for at least three or more agencies is the same proposal. It should be very obvious that there is a vast difference between the two. To start with the second figure includes four times the area and work that were covered in the original figure.

The cost of $13.95 per square foot of floor space to do the entire building is only a fraction of the cost required to construct an entirely new building.

I cannot understand why there is so much to-do about the two figures.

A Place Of Beauty

Believe it or not, Lincoln has the golden opportunity of possessing a meaningful sculpture, a delightful and lasting contribution to the 200th birthday celebration of our nation. Its origin was nurtured and is being spearheaded by the Lincoln Retired Teachers' Association. The design is a "living" aesthetic contribution to the Bicentennial, compliments of Larry Group, landscape artist with the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department.

The fountain is not a static, lifeless, meaningless structure of cement and steel. It will have "life" — motion, as water (recycled) cascades over its surface into a reflecting pool. The constant motion and change of the falls may well represent the perpetual progress, change and accomplishments of our nation, state and city.

The reflections in the pool may well symbolize the beauty and glory of our country, state and city — "from sea to shining sea!"

Pleasantly pleasing and gratifying is the commencing influx of contributions — volunteer manpower, material and finances. Lincoln can and will be proud of its fountain to be located on the 27th Street side of Antelope Park, across from the already famous Sunken Garden. The ultimate will be the blending of the two into a place or beauty to be remembered and acclaimed by all who behold.

Beaten To The Punch

A bill has recently been introduced into the U.S. Senate (S.722) to nationalize the American beef industry. It has 33 senators as sponsors and, if implemented, would empower the U.S. Department of Agriculture to make plans for all beef advertising, sales promotion, consumer education, producer education, research, and adopt the annual budget for a proposed national "beef board."

The beef board would be made up of 68 members, all appointed by "Big Brother." The government would then be in complete control of an industry with 1973 cash receipts of $22.1 billion. Control of the ranchers and cattlemen by government is counter-productive to a supply-and-demand economy. It would be another freedom lost to regimentation by government.

The sleeper in the bill is a tax imposed upon the cattlemen. Under it, the producer (seller) would be assessed at the initial rate of .3% of the sale price of each animal sold. All the ranchers' books and records affected by this act must be made available to the secretary of agriculture or his gestapo.

The act, if passed, would be enforced in the federal district courts, with the U.S. attorney general having the authority to prosecute.

That great humanitarian, Khrushchev, promised to bury us — the American people — but "our" government is beating him, to the punch.

BILL STEEN
Chairman,
The American Party of Nebraska

Closer To Home

The July 22 column by William V. Shannon presents a very chauvinistic and selfish attitude concerning petroleum prices. Mr. Shannon and the majority of Americans must come to realize we no longer own or control the oil fields of Iran and Saudi Arabia.

If Americans are unhappy with the price of OPEC oil, they may consume less, produce more U.S. oil, devise alternative energy sources, or follow some combination of these strategies. If the price is too high, do not buy it.

Furthermore, the Shannon column gives the reader the impression that the U.S. is the whipping-boy of the OPEC nations. I will not deny a portion of the OPEC oil price is political and monopolistic. However, in Europe at this moment, people are paying up to $2 a gallon for gasoline. Poor nations of the world are paying $13 a barrel for oil rather than the U.S. average of $9.80. The U.S. has also just turned a trade surplus to show we are able to afford the new higher prices. The U.S. is suffering much less than the world's non-oil countries.

While breaking up foreign cartels may appear more romantic, I suggest we start on monopolistic conditions much closer to home. For example, we could demand the cartel of Lincoln liquor merchants roll back beer prices to 1972 levels and drop "fair-trade" practices.

Pity The Poor Fans

Congress and the Ford administration are no closer to a compromise today than they were back when each first promised to work with the other to enact some sort of policy designed to eliminate this nation's dependence on foreign oil.

They embrace opposing views. President Ford wants to drive the price of oil up to discourage consumption and because he says the oil industry needs additional revenue to find and develop new sources of petroleum. The Congress wants to keep the price of oil from skyrocketing but that is about as far as it has gone toward putting together an energy policy.

President Ford's veto of a price rollback on U.S. oil was met Tuesday by the House's 262-167 rejection of Ford's proposal to decontrol the price of "old" domestic oil, a plan which could push gas prices at the pump sky high as eventually the price of that oil would raise to the world price set by the oil cartel. Parenthetically, it should be pointed out that Nebraska Reps. Virginia Smith, John McCollister and Charles Thone voted in support of Ford in a losing effort.

But even as the veto and the kill motion are still warm, Ford and congressional leaders are again talking about compromise and the need for quick action.

Congress has been working with the administration, says Speaker of the House Carl Albert, "but up to now we have not come up with anything that will fly." Says House Democrat Jim Wright of Texas.

"Both the President and Congress are playing great defensive games, but it's the third quarter and the score is zero-zero." It is more nearly the 30th inning of one of the longest games in history. And Congress' month-long summer recess is looming.

President Ford is getting no weaker in serving them up for Oil International and members of Congress are grabbing everything that comes at 'em in playing for the Confusion Unlimited team. Called on account of darkness, we suppose.

The Soviet Way

One of the big criticisms of the Nebraska bicentennial sculpture project is that non-Nebraskans chose designs by non-Nebraskans, designs which were accepted arbitrarily and have nothing to do with Nebraska. In other words, the critics say, the good people of Nebraska have had the sculpture pieces shoved down their throats whether they like them or not.

Now a local subdivision of government has done the selection boards one better (or worse). The Hall County Board of Supervisors, having decided that a majority of the people in the area apparently don't like the design of a piece of sculpture entitled "Erma's Desire," planned for a rest stop near Grand Island, has unanimously decided, further, that nobody should be allowed to see it. This political body, more at home with road maintenance and noxious weed problems, has decided to be an arbiter of public taste in art as well. The board of supervisors will deny a building permit and sign permit for the placement of the sculpture within its jurisdiction.

That's one way to shut off a controversy about art, but it is a way Americans shouldn't feel very comfortable with, since it is an authoritarian method, used most recently in the Soviet Union, where authorities ran amok with bulldozers through a modern art exhibit.

The Nebraska project director said he wasn't exactly surprised at the board's action because "obviously there are people who don't like the sculpture," but he said he didn't think there would be any harm done to the project as a whole. We hope no harm is done.

People can agree a lot more on what they think they don't like than on what they think they like. When it comes to what individuals like, their preferences are wildly different. If it were left to a public vote, little art would ever be exhibited, we'd bet. There would be a negative majority almost every time.

The best that can be done is to offer up exhibits and let the criticism fly. At least something can be learned or experienced in the exchange. Taste will develop, will grow. When a political body uses its authority to shut off a controversy, growth is thus stunted. And that bodes ill for fields other than art, too.

Boredom = Illness

NEW YORK — High pressure jobs, with plenty of unremitting responsibilities, heavy work loads, unwanted overtime . . . are they hazardous to your health? Nope.

It's the boring jobs, the routine jobs, the jobs that require more diligence than competitiveness or creativity, that get workers down. Assembly-line workers, for example, suffer considerably more from anxiety, depression, irritation and psychosomatic illness than round-the-clock stress-driven executives.

Which brings us to the traditionally female job equivalent of assembly-line work: housekeeping. I hate to think of housework as being difficult and boring. It is, but I hate to think of it.

Unlike assembly-line work, housekeeping is not boring because of its lack of competitiveness, lack of overtime, lack of concentration, and certainly not its relatively low-work-load.

We make the beds very carefully, and some husband comes along and they're rumpled again. Every night!

We sweep the living room floor, and some dog comes in with dirty paws from the porch and dirties it again.

We sweep the porch and some cat comes in with dirty feet from the walk and dirties the porch again.

We buy a drip-dry dress to save work and the bathroom floor gets wet. So we mop the bathroom floor and the mop gets wet. So we ring out the mop and our hands get wet. So we wipe off our hands, and the towel goes into the laundry. The laundry never ends.

We wash the dishes and put them away and somebody always wants a milkshake and peanut butter sandwich.

We dust the dining room and then while we're cleaning the kitchen the dining room raises a new crop of dust.

We empty the wastebaskets and then the mail comes and fills them.

Futile, all of it. But do you think we'll sit our throats over this? What . . . and have to wash the knife again?

JACK ANDERSON

CIA, Master Monitor

WASHINGTON — In testimony stamped "Secret" on every page, CIA chief William Colby has described how the CIA used to monitor the mails.

Not only did he reveal details that were left out of the Rockefeller report, but he admitted for the first time that the CIA had violated the law.

"It is my understanding," he confessed, "that it is illegal to open the mail, first class mail — that the only justification might be during war under certain special legal authority."

Here are the highlights of his secret testimony before a House subcommittee chaired by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif.

Colby disclosed that the CIA is able to read mail without opening it. A secret chemical, whose name we cannot reveal for security reasons, enables agents to decipher the writing inside sealed envelopes. Colby swore, however, that the CIA has used this magic, see-through chemical only overseas. It was unnecessary to use it in the United States, apparently, as long as the postal authorities cooperated with the CIA.

The Rockefeller report mentioned that the CIA had opened mail in Honolulu, New Orleans, New York City and San Francisco. But Colby testified that the CIA, in addition, had opened mail in Miami during the April 24-25, 1961 period. Apparently, this had something to do with the CIA's Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba a few days earlier on April 17, 1961.

The CIA also opened the mail of certain "CIA employees and foreign nationals who were the subject of inquiries." Their mail was also checked to find out who was corresponding with them. "These mail openings and covers allowed us to stay ahead of the communist state of the art in chemical censorship and permitted us to devise systems to safely communicate with our (contacts) in communist areas," explained Colby.

The CIA concentrated on monitoring the mail from the Soviet Union and mainland China. But mail was also examined from North Vietnam, Cuba and other communist countries. Most of these countries apparently use the Soviet postal system to route their mail aboard.

The biggest mail-opening operation was centered in New York City. This was what Colby called "the East Coast Project."

The CIA gave a New York postal clerk "a $500 Christmas bonus totaling $3,000 for five years," confessed Colby, for "transporting the mail bags to the area where CIA officers handled the mail." Paying off the clerk, Colby admitted, "was an improper act by the agency." He refused to identify him as Peter F. McAusley. He told our associate, Jack Chaberty: "It was my job to help them — the postal service assigned me."

Colby was asked whether past presidents knew that the CIA had been tampering with the mails. "I don't think we can say any president individually knew," said the CIA chief.

Had any attorney general been advised of the illegal operation? "Only (John) Mitchell, is our impression," replied Colby.

The appearance of the CIA director on Capitol Hill was like an episode from a James Bond movie. Before Colby entered the hearing room, a team of electronic experts swept the premises with sophisticated detection equipment to make sure there were no hidden mikes.

Then Colby took the witness stand. But in the next room, an agent sat in front of an ordinary looking briefcase throughout the testimony. The briefcase, as you may have guessed, was not at all ordinary. It contained mysterious gadgets, which monitored the airwaves above and around the hearing room. This was a precaution to make sure the room wasn't being bugged by a long-range eavesdropper.

With his little bag of trash, the agent departed under escort for spy headquarters in nearby Virginia.

WASHINGTON — A growing disenchantment with commercial television puts squarely up to Congress the dilemma of public broadcasting.

While the Public Broadcasting Service and 254 affiliated stations have done some remarkable programming, the full potential of an independent service, free of commercialism, never has been realized.

That potential is to offer, on a consistent basis, programs that commercial sponsors are unwilling to underwrite for the mass audience. This would serve, say, 10% of the total audience interested in more serious and cultivated television than is available on the networks.

Struggling between efforts to recruit public support and get government funding, PBS has had its difficulties. A proposal sent up by the White House would provide $612 million for public television and radio stations over a five-year period.

The bill carries the stipulation that each federal dollar appropriated must be matched by a 2.5-to-1 ratio in the first three years and a 3-to-1 ratio in the last two with funds from non-federal sources.

The five-year period is intended to insulate public broadcasting from the political pressures on program content and personnel that are a threat, each new appropriation year, to the independence of the operation.

But the measure as sent to Congress, by combining appropriation and authorization, violates the hoary canons of committee jurisdiction. Despite widespread support expressed in hearings before Rep. Torbert Macdonald's communications subcommittee with Macdonald a knowledgeable protagonist of the public service, the five-year proposal is in jeopardy.

In most of Western Europe television is a government monopoly subject to the influence of the party that happens to be in control. The result more often than not is sterile, boring programming.

Almost no one would exchange American television, whether commercial or public, for Europe's state-owned and operated TV. But there is a middle way that does provide exceptional programs. That is the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The BBC is a semi-public corporation operating under a formula requiring re-examination of its status every 12 years. Financed by a tax on television sets, it has on the whole been successfully insulated from political pressures.

While it has had its share of dullness, BBC has produced some of the most distinguished programs of the television era. One outstanding example was Kenneth Clark's "Civilization" series which was rejected by the commercial networks in this country and finally run on PBS.

Parliament some years ago authorized commercial broadcasting and this has been a competitive spur to BBC. Under this authorization, all commercials must be bunched at the end of the beginning of a program, thereby avoiding the American network breaks that interrupt, with rare exceptions, all programs at six to eight-minute intervals. Facts Seem Missing

It appears to me that somewhere along the line, the facts in regard to the Detox Center cost, proposed to be located in the dorm on St. Mary's Street, became confused, lost or ignored.

The problem seems to be in the idea that the original estimate of $100,000 to remodel the "first floor" for the Detox Center and the $446,300 to remodel the entire four floors for at least three or more agencies is the same proposal. It should be very obvious that there is a vast difference between the two. To start with the second figure includes four times the area and work that were covered in the original figure.

The cost of $13.95 per square foot of floor space to do the entire building is only a fraction of the cost required to construct an entirely new building.

I cannot understand why there is so much to-do about the two figures.

A Place Of Beauty

Believe it or not, Lincoln has the golden opportunity of possessing a meaningful sculpture, a delightful and lasting contribution to the 200th birthday celebration of our nation. Its origin was nurtured and is being spearheaded by the Lincoln Retired Teachers' Association. The design is a "living" aesthetic contribution to the Bicentennial, compliments of Larry Group, landscape artist with the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department.

The fountain is not a static, lifeless, meaningless structure of cement and steel. It will have "life" — motion, as water (recycled) cascades over its surface into a reflecting pool. The constant motion and change of the falls may well represent the perpetual progress, change and accomplishments of our nation, state and city.

Pleasantly pleasing and gratifying is the commencing influx of contributions — volunteer manpower, material and finances. Lincoln can and will be proud of its fountain to be located on the 27th Street side of Antelope Park, across from the already famous Sunken Garden. The ultimate will be the blending of the two into a place of beauty to be remembered and acclaimed by all who behold.

Beaten To The Punch

A bill has recently been introduced into the U.S. Senate (S. 722) to nationalize the American beef industry. It has 33 senators as sponsors and, if implemented, would empower the U.S. Department of Agriculture to make plans for all beef advertising, sales promotion, consumer education, producer education, research, and adopt the annual budget for a proposed national "beef board."

The beef board would be made up of 68 members, all appointed by "Big Brother." The government would then be in complete control of an industry with 1973 cash receipts of $22.1 billion. Control of the ranchers and cattlemen by government is counter-productive to a supply-and-demand economy. It would be another freedom lost to regimentation by government.

The sleeper in the bill is a tax imposed upon the cattlemen. Under it, the producer (seller) would be assessed at the initial rate of 3% of the sale price of each animal sold. All the ranchers' books and records affected by this act must be made available to the secretary of agriculture or his gestapo.

The act, if passed, would be enforced in the federal district courts, with the U.S. attorney general having the authority to prosecute.

That great humanitarian, Khrushchev, promised to bury us — the American people — but "our" government is beating him, to the punch.

Closer To Home

The July 22 column by William V. Shannon presents a very chauvinistic and selfish attitude concerning petroleum prices. Mr. Shannon and the majority of Americans must come to realize we no longer own or control the oil fields of Iran and Saudi Arabia.

If Americans are unhappy with the price of OPEC oil, they may consume less, produce more U.S. oil, devise alternative energy sources, or follow some combination of these strategies. If the price is too high, do not buy it.

Furthermore, the Shannon column gives the reader the impression that the U.S. is the whipping-boy of the OPEC nations. I will not deny a portion of the OPEC oil price is political and monopolistic. However, in Europe at this moment, people are paying up to $2 a gallon for gasoline. Poor nations of the world are paying $13 a barrel for oil rather than the U.S. average of $9.80. The U.S. has also just turned a trade surplus to show we are able to afford the new higher prices. The U.S. is suffering much less than the world's non-oil countries.

While breaking up foreign cartels may appear more romantic, I suggest we start on monopolistic conditions much closer to home. For example, we could demand the cartel of Lincoln liquor merchants roll back beer prices to 1972 levels and drop "fair-trade" practices.

Pity The Poor Fans

Congress and the Ford administration are no closer to a compromise today than they were back when each first promised to work with the other to enact some sort of policy designed to eliminate this nation's dependence on foreign oil.

They embrace opposing views. President Ford wants to drive the price of oil up to discourage consumption and because he says the oil industry needs additional revenue to find and develop new sources of petroleum. The Congress wants to keep the price of oil from skyrocketing but that is about as far as it has gone toward putting together an energy policy.

President Ford's veto of a price roll-back on U.S. oil was met Tuesday by the House's 262-167 rejection of Ford's proposal to decontrol the price of "old" domestic oil, a plan which could push gas prices at the pump sky high as eventually the price of that oil would raise to the world price set by the oil cartel. Parenthetically, it should be pointed out that Nebraska Reps. Virginia Smith, John McCollister and Charles Thone voted in support of Ford in a losing effort.

But even as the veto and the kill motion are still warm, Ford and congressional leaders are again talking about compromise and the need for quick action.

Congress has been working with the administration, says Speaker of the House Carl Albert, "but up to now we have not come up with anything that will fly." Says House Democrat Jim Wright of Texas: "Both the President and Congress are playing great defensive games, but it's the third quarter and the score is zero-zero."

It is more nearly the 30th inning of one of the longest games in history. And Congress' month-long summer recess is looming.

President Ford is getting no weaker in serving them up for Oil International and members of Congress are grabbing everything that comes at 'em in playing for the Confusion Unlimited team. Called on account of darkness, we suppose.

The Soviet Way

One of the big criticisms of the Nebraska bicentennial sculpture project is that non-Nebraskans chose designs by non-Nebraskans, designs which were accepted arbitrarily and have nothing to do with Nebraska. In other words, the critics say, the good people of Nebraska have had the sculpture pieces shoved down their throats whether they like them or not.

Now a local subdivision of government has done the selection boards one better (or worse). The Hall County Board of Supervisors, having decided that a majority of the people in the area apparently don't like the design of a piece of sculpture entitled "Erma's Desire," planned for a rest stop near Grand Island, has unanimously decided, further, that nobody should be allowed to see it. This political body, more at home with road maintenance and noxious weed problems, has decided to be an arbiter of public taste in art as well. The board of supervisors will deny a building permit and sign permit for the placement of the sculpture within its jurisdiction.

That's one way to shut off a controversy about art, but it is a way Americans shouldn't feel very comfortable with, since it is an authoritarian method, used most recently in the Soviet Union, where authorities ran amok with bulldozers through a modern art exhibit.

The Nebraska project director said he wasn't exactly surprised at the board's action because "obviously there are people who don't like the sculpture," but he said he didn't think there would be any harm done to the project as a whole. We hope no harm is done.

People can agree a lot more on what they think they don't like than on what they think they like. When it comes to what individuals like, their preferences are wildly different. If it were left to a public vote, little art would ever be exhibited, we'd bet. There would be a negative majority almost every time.

The best that can be done is to offer up exhibits and let the criticism fly. At least something can be learned or experienced in the exchange. Taste will develop, will grow. When a political body uses its authority to shut off a controversy, growth is thus stunted. And that bodes ill for fields other than art, too.

Boredom = Illness

NEW YORK — High pressure jobs, with plenty of unremitting responsibilities, heavy work loads, unwanted overtime . . . are they hazardous to your health?

Nope.

It's the boring jobs, the routine jobs, the jobs that require more diligence than competitiveness or creativity, that get workers down. Assembly-line workers, for example, suffer considerably more from anxiety, depression, irritation and psychosomatic illness than round-the-clock stress-driven executives.

Which brings us to the traditionally female job equivalent of assembly-line work: housekeeping. I hate to think of housework as being difficult and boring. It is, but I hate to think of it.

Unlike assembly-line work, housekeeping is not boring because of its lack of competitiveness, lack of overtime, lack of concentration, and certainly not its relatively low-work-load.

We make the beds very carefully, and some husband comes along and they're rumpled again. Every night!

We sweep the living room floor, and some dog comes in with dirty paws from the porch and dirties it again.

We sweep the porch and some cat comes in with dirty feet from the walk and dirties the porch again.

We buy a drip-dry dress to save work and the bathroom floor gets wet. So we mop the bathroom floor and the mop gets wet. So we ring out the mop and our hands get wet. So we wipe off our hands, and the towel goes into the laundry. The laundry never ends.

We wash the dishes and put them away and somebody always wants a milkshake and peanut butter sandwich.

We dust the dining room and then while we're cleaning the kitchen the dining room raises a new crop of dust.

We empty the wastebaskets and then the mail comes and fills them.

Futile, all of it. But do you think we'll slit our throats over this? What . . . and have to wash the knife again?

"Maybe That's One Reason It's Been So Slow"

JACK ANDERSON

CIA, Master Monitor

WASHINGTON — In testimony stamped "Secret" on every page, CIA chief William Colby has described how the CIA used to monitor the mails.

Not only did he reveal details that were left out of the Rockefeller report, but he admitted for the first time that the CIA had violated the law.

"It is my understanding," he confessed, "that it is illegal to open the mail, first class mail — that the only justification might be during war under certain special legal authority."

Here are the highlights of his secret testimony before a House subcommittee chaired by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif.

Colby disclosed that the CIA is able to read mail without opening it. A secret chemical, whose name we cannot reveal for security reasons, enables agents to decipher the writing inside sealed envelopes. Colby swore, however, that the CIA has used this magic, see-through chemical only overseas. It was unnecessary to use it in the United States, apparently, as long as the postal authorities cooperated with the CIA.

The Rockefeller report mentioned that the CIA had opened mail in Honolulu, New Orleans, New York City and San Francisco. But Colby testified that the CIA, in addition, had opened mail in Miami during the April 24-28, 1961 period. Apparently, this had something to do with the CIA's Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba a few days earlier on April 17, 1961.

The CIA also opened the mail of certain "CIA employees and foreign nationals who were the subject of inquiries." Their mail was also checked to find out who was corresponding with them. "These mail openings and covers allowed us to stay ahead of the communist state of the art in chemical censorship and permitted us to devise systems to safely communicate with our (contacts) in communist areas," explained Colby.

The CIA concentrated on monitoring the mail from the Soviet Union and mainland China. But mail was also examined from North Vietnam, Cuba and other communist countries. Most of these countries apparently use the Soviet postal system to route their mail abroad.

The biggest mail-opening operation was centered in New York City. This was what Colby called "the East Coast Project."

The CIA gave a New York postal clerk "a $500 Christmas bonus totaling $3,000 for five years," confessed Colby, for "transporting the mail bags to the area where CIA officers handled the mail." Paying off the clerk, Colby deadpanned, "was an improper act by the agency." He refused to identify the clerk. However, we can identify him as Peter F. McAuley. He told our associate, Jack Cloberty: "It was my job to help them — the postal service assigned me."

Colby was asked whether past presidents knew that the CIA had been tampering with the mails. "I don't think we can say any president individually knew," said the CIA chief.

Had any attorney general been advised of the illegal operation? "Only (John) Mitchell, is our impression," replied Colby.

The appearance of the CIA director on Capitol Hill was like an episode from a James Bond movie. Before Colby entered the hearing room, a team of electronic experts swept the premises with sophisticated detection equipment to make sure there were no hidden mikes.

Then Colby took the witness stand. But in the next room, an agent sat in front of an ordinary looking briefcase throughout the testimony. The briefcase, as you may have guessed, was not at all ordinary. It contained mysterious gadgets, which monitored the airwaves above and around the hearing room. This was a precaution to make sure the room wasn't being bugged by a long-range eavesdropper.

Planners Unable To Decide Zoning

Havelock residents don't agree on whether they want a used car lot in their neighborhood and the Planning Commission can't agree either.

The planners tied Wednesday on whether to dezone a lot at 3731 N. 68th from K Light Industry to C Multiple Dwelling.

A number of neighbors around the auto dealership applied for the zoning change to single family residential on the grounds that the business was a nuisance to the neighborhood.

The owner of the business, Drennan Watts, said the problem isn't his business, it's some of the neighbors who have been harassing him.

The City-County Planning Commission, which found itself in the midst of a neighborhood squabble, couldn't resolve the issue of whether the city should be able to rezone a person's land when he hasn't asked for it.

Commissioner Art Duerschner noted that the light industrial zoning had been in existence since 1953 and contended "it is not proper to deny a man a use of his property."

Commissioner Bob Allington said the lot is zoned illegally since it is spot zoning and argued that the city should rezone the land.

If the lot should be rezoned, Watts still would be able to operate his business under the so-called "grandfather clause."

Duerschner claimed that by placing the land in a lower, more restrictive zoning category, the Commissioner Jan Gauger, who has supported the planners' position, said she thinks the real question is whether all roadways in the county need the right-of-way Nuernberger is proposing.

Nuernberger says it isn't possible to specify right-of-way widths since no one can predict which roads may become major ones in the future.

While Mrs. Gauger said the county is hoping the forthcoming transportation study will help answer some of those questions, Councilman Bob Jeanbey predicted that unless a new policy for road planning is set, the "same old plans" will keep cropping up.

Earlier this week the council rejected plans to widen 48th St. and Holdrege St. Council members have acknowledged they may be rewriting city street policy in making those decisions.

In an attempt to come up with alternatives to street widenings, the council has scheduled some meetings in September. Mayor Helen Boosalis suggested the county be involved in those meetings so that a uniform policy can be established to follow in building and improving roads.

An attempt by Hall County officials to halt placement of a bicentennial sculpture on Interstate 90 near Grand Island may be futile, according to an attorney for the State Roads Department.

The Hall County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously Tuesday to deny a permit for "Erma's Desire," one of 10 sculptures scheduled to be located across the state along Interstate 80.

But Royce Harper, an assistant attorney general assigned to the Roads Department, said Wednesday a preliminary review of state laws indicates Hall County has no authority over placement of the sculpture since it will be located on state-owned highway right of way.

Hall County building inspector Mac Hartman said a building or sign permit is definitely needed for the sculpture. He said the controversy could wind up in court.

The sculptures must pass the review of the Federal Highway Administration, since they will be located on land purchased with federal highway funds.

Ray Hogrefe, Nebraska division engineer for the highway administration, said the agency will review each site to determine whether the projects might detract from highway safety, cause traffic jams at rest stops or present other hazards.

But he said the agency will make no ruling on the merits of the sculpture, which is the basis for the opposition of Hall County officials.

Another assistant attorney general, John Brown, said further research on the legality of the Hall County action is needed, but pointed out that no county building permits were required to construct buildings at rest areas.

Work on "Erma's Desire" is scheduled to begin in March.

While some council members, the mayor and county commissioners wanted to talk consolidation, the engineers wanted to talk about something else.

County Engineer Marv Nuernberger said, "We're not going to build anything," if not enough land is dedicated for the public right-of-way purposes.

Save The Trees

The engineers have been arguing they need more than 80 feet of right-of-way in order to make sure that when and if roads are widened, trees won't be uprooted and neighborhoods damaged.

The planners, on the other hand, argue that narrower right-of-ways are warranted, since bigger roads attract development.

Nuernberger has been arguing the matter with Planning Director Doug Brogden in a series of mini-debates in front of the County Board. Brogden was not invited to Wednesday's meeting.

County Commissioner Bob

Colin said he had "mixed emotions over who we should listen to," although he has been leaning toward the engineers' point of view.

Commissioner Jan Gauger, who has supported the planners' position, said she thinks the real question is whether all roadways in the county need the right-of-way Nuernberger is proposing.

Nuernberger says it isn't possible to specify right-of-way widths since no one can predict which roads may become major ones in the future.

While Mrs. Gauger said the county is hoping the forthcoming transportation study will help answer some of those questions, Councilman Bob Jeambey predicted that unless a new policy for road planning is set, the "same old plans" will keep cropping up.

Widenings Rejected

Earlier this week the council rejected plans to widen 48th St. and Holdrege St. Council members have acknowledged they may be rewriting city street policy in making those decisions.

In an attempt to come up with alternatives to street widenings, the council has scheduled some meetings in September. Mayor Helen Boosalis suggested the county be involved in those meetings so that a uniform policy can be established to follow in building and improving roads.

Two Arrested For Children's Zoo Vandalism

Two vandals broke into four buildings at the Children's Zoo, 2800 A, early Wednesday morning, and did an estimated $750 in damages to the windows, safe and cash registers.

One of the buildings broken into was a U.S. Postal substation, and another was a souvenir shop. Police said an undetermined amount of cash was also stolen.

Police have arrested Paul D. Mitchell, 23, of 714 S. 17th, and Steven J. Murray, 23, of 1601 South in Connection with the incident.

Hall County May Have No Say

By The Associated Press

An attempt by Hall County officials to halt placement of a bicentennial sculpture on Interstate 80 near Grand Island may be futile, according to an attorney for the State Roads Department.

The Hall County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously Tuesday to deny a permit for "Erma's Desire," one of 10 sculptures scheduled to be located across the state along Interstate 80.

But Royce Harper, an assistant attorney general assigned to the Roads Department, said Wednesday a preliminary review of state laws indicates Hall County has no authority over placement of the sculpture since it will be located on state-owned highway right of way.

Hall County building inspector Mac Hartman said a building or sign permit is definitely needed for the sculpture. He said the controversy could wind up in court.

The sculptures must pass the review of the Federal Highway Administration, since they will be located on land purchased with federal highway funds.

Ray Hogrefe, Nebraska division engineer for the highway administration, said the agency will review each site to determine whether the projects might detract from highway safety, cause traffic jams at rest stops or present other hazards.

But he said the agency will make no ruling on the merits of the sculpture, which is the basis for the opposition of Hall County officials.

Another assistant attorney general, John Brown, said further research on the legality of the Hall County action is needed, but pointed out that no county building permits were required to construct buildings at rest areas.

Work on "Erma's Desire" is scheduled to begin in March.

Planners Unable To Decide Zoning

Havelock residents don't agree on whether they want a used car lot in their neighborhood and the Planning Commission can't agree either.

The planners tied Wednesday on whether to dezone a lot at 3731 N. 68th from K Light Industry to C Multiple Dwelling.

A number of neighbors around the auto dealership applied for the zoning change to single family residential on the grounds that the business was a nuisance to the neighborhood.

The owner of the business, Drennan Watts, said the problem isn't his business, it's some of the neighbors who have been harassing him.

The City-County Planning Commission, which found itself in the midst of a neighborhood squabble, couldn't resolve the issue of whether the city should be able to rezone a person's land when he hasn't asked for it.

Commissioner Art Duerschner noted that the light industrial zoning had been in existence since 1953 and contended "it is not proper to deny a man a use of his property."

Commissioner Bob Allington said the lot is zoned illegally since it is spot zoning and argued that the city should rezone the land.

If the lot should be dezone, Watts still would be able to operate his business under the so-called "grandfather clause."

Duerschner claimed that by placing the land in a lower, more restrictive zoning category, the city would be decreasing the value of Watts' land.

Commissioner Bruce Nims said the city would be adding fuel to the neighborhood feud by dezoneing the land. Lou Shackelford said the rezoning would encourage other groups to bring their neighborhood squabbles to the city for arbitration.

Commission Chairman George Williamson didn't think that was a reason to deny the rezoning since anyone can request a change of zone on any land.

An attempt to reach a compromise by changing the zone to C Multiple failed. It looks like Commissioner Jerry Warner, absent Wednesday, will be the swing vote.

Voting to keep the land K Light Industry were commissioners Duerschner, Shackelford, Nims and Jim Hacker. Voting to rezone the land were Allington, Williamson, Thelma Miller and Moneta Mathews.

The matter will be voted on again next month.

In other business, the commission:

- Approved application for First National Bank to construct parking lot on west side of 56th, west of P.
- Approved application of Bernard Becht, Jr., for Byron Reed Co., to delete part of original community unit plan and final plat of Woodhaven 1st Add., near 58th and Pioneer Blvd.
- Approved application of Harold Heiser to amend special permit to construct community unit plan, near N. 27th and Fletcher Ave.

Sen. Marsh Says Women Have To Do Selling Job

Women have to do a selling job if they want to eliminate sexual discrimination in the state statutes, Sen. Shirley Marsh, Lincoln, told the executive board of the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women Wednesday night.

Sen. Marsh told the board that there are over 6,000 Nebraska laws that contain some sort of sexually discriminating language. Some of these laws contain the word "man" instead of "person," while others limit activities by one sex or the other, she said. An example of the latter, according to Sen. Marsh, is a law that allows women to marry at age 16 with parental consent, but requires men to be 18.

Shirley Wilken, commission chairman, will address the Unicameral Judicial Committee July 31 when it begins hearings on sexism in state statutes. The board said it planned to urge women to attend the hearings to show support for the revision.

In other action, the board said it planned to seek additional funding for a book on the history of Nebraska Women for the state's International Women's Year.

Emerald School Board Approves $55,000 Budget

In a public hearing Monday night, the Emerald School Board approved at $55,000 budget for the 1976-77 school year.

Secretary Ted Kossack reported operating expenses for July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975 at $35,063, compared with $26,969 for the 1973-74 year.

In addition to the $55,000 budget, the board approved raising another $3,000 for a cash reserve.

Criminal Code's Revision Sparks Political Infighting

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a four-part series examining legislation proposed in the Senate, S. 1. The bill is a controversial rewriting of the federal criminal laws.)

By JACK C. LANDAU
(c) Newhouse News Service
Washington — Two months ago, at a statewide meeting of liberal Democrats in Fresno, Calif., Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., was almost heckled off the stage.

Several weeks later, Bayh — A favorite of liberals for his opposition to President Nixon's Supreme Court appointments — was picketed by liberals at an appearance in Boston.

The reason for both of these demonstrations by liberal political coalitions was Bayh's cosponsorship in January of a bill to reorganize the entire federal criminal law.

From Nixon Years
Called S. 1, the bill is primarily the creation of the Nixon administration although it was introduced after Nixon left office.

The bill is attracting more and more public controversy and has caused complex and bitter political infighting in the Senate and in the Ford administration. There are increasing indications the measure may be modified.

While much of the bill, as introduced, merely restates existing law, substantial portions of it would give new or expanded criminal powers to the federal government to be used against:

- Political dissenters outside government.
- Government employees critical of the administration.
- Militant demonstrators.
- Criminal defendants in federal courts.
- The press.

Partly Experimental
Several provisions of the bill are rather liberal or experimental: reduced penalties for marijuana use, partial legalization of prostitution and appellate review of criminal sentences.

But most of the bill is a conservative legacy of Nixon's views on crime — both for his old enemies, the drug and street criminals, and for his newer enemies, the political dissenters, disloyal government employees and the press.

The bill has strong bipartisan support in the Senate ranging from the conservative Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., to the moderate Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., to the liberal Bayh. For that reason, a number of groups — the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), the Americans for Democratic Action, the Criminal Law Section of the American Bar Association, various news organizations and legal groups — believed the bill might sail through the Senate without much difficulty.

At one time this spring, there was so little interest in the bill that a Senate subcommittee was not even going to have hearings on the bill, entitled the Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975.

Opposition Mounts
But as word of the bill's provisions filtered across the nation, a reaction began.

As Bayh discovered in Boston and Los Angeles, the ACLU was spreading the word to its state affiliates, and the press was writing an increasing volume of news stories and critical editorials.

Bayh has explained through aides that he opposes many provisions of the bill, especially those which would limit freedom of expression and freedom of the press.

His staff quotes him as saying that "he joined the bill with the understanding that — in exchange for his support — he would be able to modify a number of sections.

Ford Administration
Perhaps the single biggest influence on whether the bill goes through as introduced or is changed substantially will be the Ford administration.

Initially, the administration sent word that it would stand on the Nixon administration testimony of a year ago in support of Nixon proposals that are embodied in the present bill.

President Ford in his June 19 crime message to Congress stressed that "I think everyone will agree . . . that comprehensive reform of the federal criminal code is needed."

However, the President added that Congress must take care that the "law does not unreasonably restrict the free flow of information" about government in a way that could "adversely affect freedom of the press."

Reservations
Atty. Gen. Edward Levi expressed the same reservations when he said the provisions affecting the press "require further work, discussion and revision."

While the administration is publicly indicating it opposes the new press sanctions in the bill, it is under considerable internal pressure — from the State Department, the Defense Department and the CIA — to make only cosmetic modifications.

The defense and foreign affairs agencies think the bill is too easy on government employees who leak information to the press and are arguing no compromises.

A second major influence on the fate of the bill will be the positions of Chairman McClellan of the Senate Judiciary Committee and Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., the ranking Republican on the committee.

Both Conservative
McClellan and Hruska are both conservative, sympathetic to the defense-foreign affairs establishment and sympathetic to law enforcement problems with political demonstrators.

They see the bill as their most important contribution during their years on the Judiciary Committee and they are relatively free from political pressures because neither man plans to run again.

Using a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats, they may have a majority on the 15-man Judiciary Committee and in the Senate.

Open to Compromise
On the other hand, McClellan has said recently that he is "flexible" on the First Amendment issues in the bill and Hruska has said that he is open to compromise.

Objections of the ACLU and other groups go mostly to McClellan as chairman of both the Senate Judiciary Committee and a subcommittee that has been considering the bill. The subcommittee is about to send the measure to the full committee. The full committee may consider it in September.

So while Richard Nixon is not in Washington anymore, his main campaign issue — crime — is still a major national problem. The bill that he inspired, the Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975, is alive and kicking in Congress.

City's Centrum Project Attacked In 2 More Suits

Property owners in the Centrum Block are continuing their fight against the city's plans to demolish existing buildings and build a combination parking garage and merchandising center. A June 6 resolution by the City Council has touched off the filing of two more suits in Lancaster District Court. They were filed by Ira Beynon, on behalf of John Donald McDonald and the Weiss and Nuemann Shoe Co. The suits incorporate the arguments of two prior suits filed against earlier council resolutions. Touching off the earlier suits were a September, 1974, resolution declaring the block a blighted area and a January, 1975 resolution authorizing the Department of Community Development to negotiate with property owners to acquire the block. The June 6 resolution directed the department to complete the negotiations and authorized the city attorney to start eminent domain proceedings if the negotiations failed. The property owners who are fighting the city's plans contend that the so-called "community development law" under which the block is being redeveloped is unconstitutional because it allows private property to be taken by the government and transferred to other private citizens.

The suits also argue that the law's definition of a substandard and blighted is unconstitutionally vague and indefinite. This series of suits is still pending.

A suit with the same intent of blocking redevelopment of the block was settled in 1974. The decision struck down parts of the so-called "parking garage law" as being unconstitutional.

Then the city decided to proceed with construction of the center under a different law, the "community development law," which is the target of the suits that are now pending.

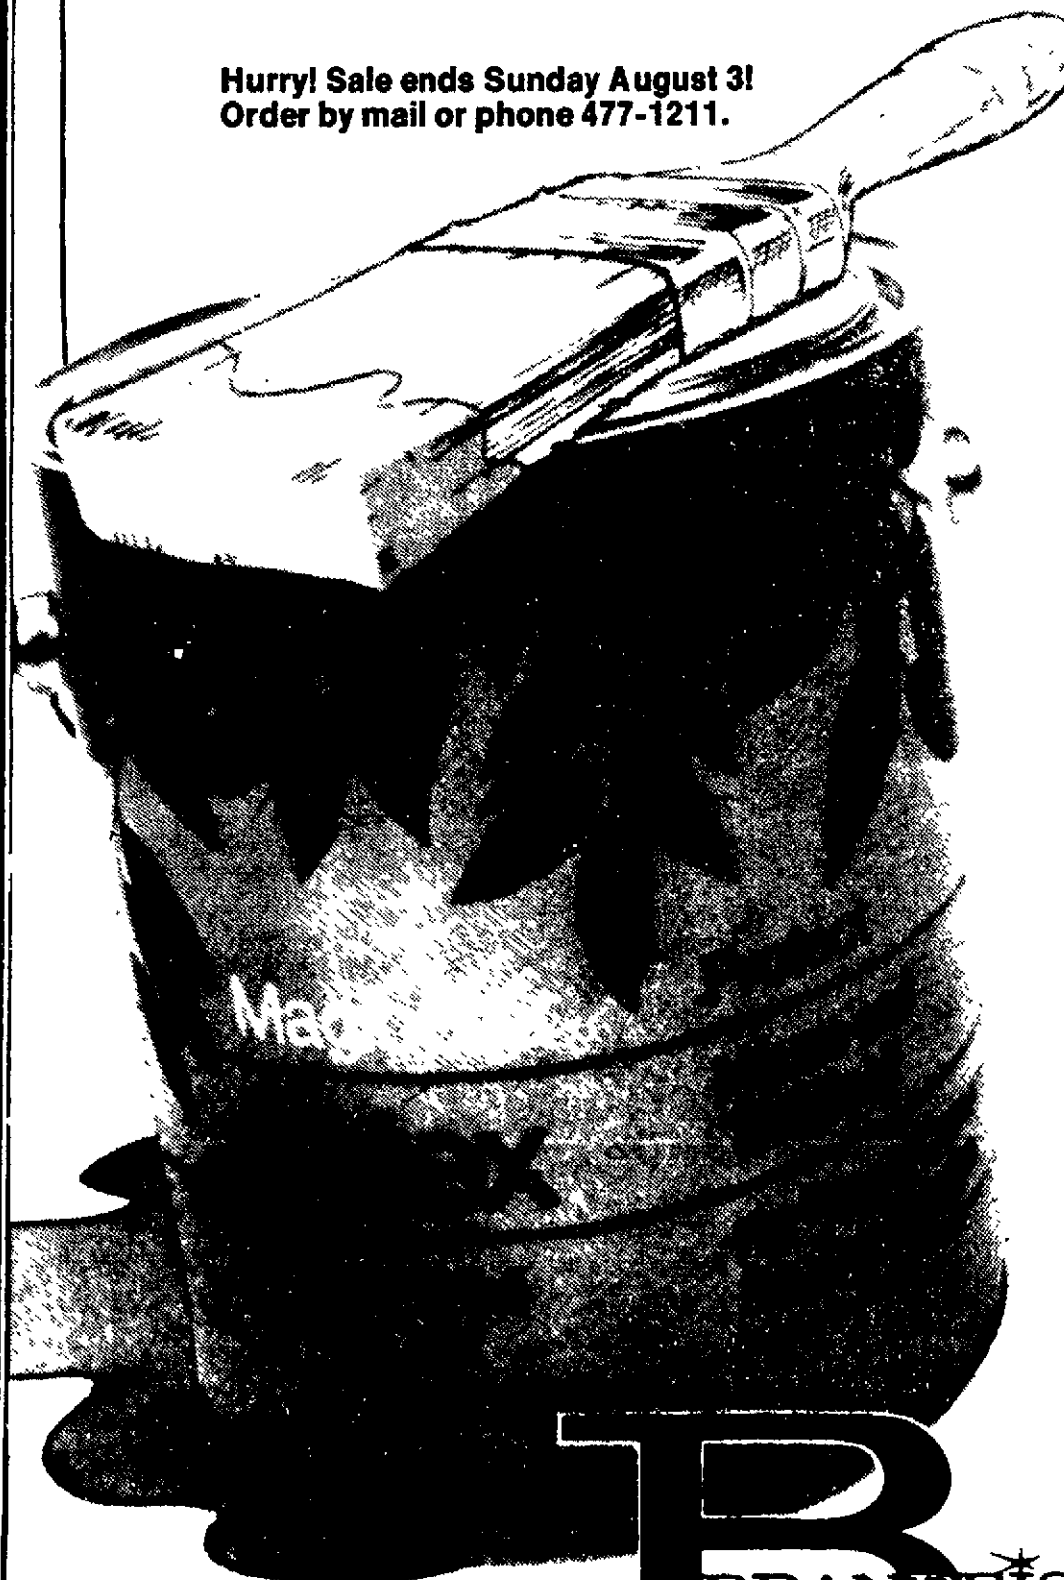

That law required that the block be declared blighted and substandard. It subsequently was declared blighted by the City Council after a Barton-Aschmann study led the council to that conclusion.

The Centrum Block is bounded by 11th, 12th, O and N. The concept of redeveloping the block has been discussed for about a decade and the city has been formally been trying to redevelop the block for several years.

Asphalt Kettle Is Set On Fire

Police Wednesday were investigating $2,000 worth of damage done to an asphalt heating kettle by pouring gasoline upon it and setting it afire.

Maurice Crawford, owner of the Imperial Roofing and Sheet Metal Co., of 542 L, said that he is refusing to go along with an impending union strike. Police said, however, that they have no evidence that the expected strike is connected with the burned kettle owned by the company.

The incident occurred Monday night.

City's Centrum Project Attacked In 2 More Suits

Property owners in the Centrum Block are continuing their fight against the city's plans to demolish existing buildings and build a combination parking garage and merchandising center.

A June 6 resolution by the City Council has touched off the filing of two more suits in Lancaster District Court.

They were filed by Ira Beynon, on behalf of John Donald McDonald and the Weiss and Nuemann Shoe Co.

The suits incorporate the arguments of two prior suits filed against earlier council resolutions.

Touching off the earlier suits were a September, 1974, resolution declaring the block a blighted area and a January, 1975 resolution authorizing the Department of Community Development to negotiate with property owners to acquire the block.

The June 6 resolution directed the department to complete the negotiations and authorized the city attorney to start eminent domain proceedings if the negotiations failed.

The property owners who are fighting the city's plans contend that the so-called "community development law" under which the block is being redeveloped is unconstitutional because it allows private property to be taken by the government and transferred to other private citizens.

The suits also argue that the law's definition of a substandard and blighted is unconstitutionally vague and indefinite.

This series of suits is still pending.

A suit with the same intent of blocking redevelopment of the block was settled in 1974. The decision struck down parts of the so-called "parking garage law" as being unconstitutional.

Then the city decided to proceed with construction of the center under a different law, the "community development law," which is the target of the suits that are now pending.

That law required that the block be declared blighted and substandard. It subsequently was declared blighted by the City Council after a Barton-Aschmann study led the council to that conclusion.

The Centrum Block is bounded by 11th, 12th, O and N. The concept of redeveloping the block has been discussed for about a decade and the city has been formally been trying to redevelop the block for several years.

Mom Joins Kids In Camping Club

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

When you've got boys you do boy things, reasoned Mrs. Bernice O'Melia.

So this single parent — for the sake of Dennis, 13, and David, 12 — took up camping.

With seven years of tenting now behind her, she admits, "You've got to enjoy it yourself as well as do it for your kids."

While her boys had each other for companionship, she found that sitting by a dying campfire could be a lonely experience.

She figured there were probably other single parents who'd like to camp out, but not alone.

The logical next step, thought Mrs. O'Melia, would be to get interested single parents together and go camping as a group.

And that's how Kozy Kampers got its start. Now in its third year, the club is the only single parents camping group in the state. It is affiliated with the National Campers and Hikers Association.

"We've picked up members and dropped members," related Mrs. O'Melia. Two pairs of singles even got married and one couple remains in the group as a husband-wife team.

Of the present eight members, seven are women. And there are 13 kids, ranging in age from 7 to 16.

"It's not a whole lot of fun to go out by yourself," says Mrs. O'Melia. But when several families get together, it can be "a ball."

One weekend a month, the Kozy Kampers head for some chosen camping area like Seward City Park, Crystal Springs in Fairbury or Waubesa State Park in Iowa.

Instead of traveling caravan-style, the trailers and both fold-down and pick-up campers meet at the camp-site.

Trail-hiking, biking, fishing and swimming keep the kids happily occupied, while their moms and dad enjoy each others' company as well as the outdoors.

Saturday night is set aside for a pot-luck dinner, but Mrs. O'Melia says "usually every meal is pot-luck because we're so small."

She's convinced that there are plenty more single parents who would like to take their kids camping, but who could use some extra encouragement and support the group offers.

She pooh-poohs those parents who cop out because they don't have all kinds of camping gear.

"You can get by with the stuff you've got in your house," she assures, recalling those first times when her family slept in the back of a station wagon.

The biggest initial expense is a tent, she said, and other equipment can be added year by year.

After five years in a tent, the O'Melias graduated to a trailer and their gear has expanded to include, among other things, lanterns, heaters, a stove, air mattresses and a canopy.

For those moms who are worried about preparing food over an open fire, she guarantees that things will be easier because you stick to the basics.

She does admit, however, that new campers are often quickly discouraged if they hit bad weather their first time out.

When it comes to camping, you can't be lukewarm, insists this enthusiast. "Either you like it or you don't."

And there's no doubt how the O'Melias feel.

A Public hearing will be held on the proposed Title XX Social Service Plan for the Department of Public Welfare-THURSDAY, JULY 24th from 3:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. at the Family Branch YMCA, 2601 North 70th Street, Lincoln.

Summaries of the proposed plan are available without charge at the Lancaster County Public Welfare office; the entire plan is available for examination.

Those unable to attend the hearing, but wishing to comment may call the toll free Hotline number at 800-742-7385.

All citizens are encouraged to attend.

Vietnamese Children Rapidly Learning English

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"Show me your ear," Le Thi Kim Cuc instructed.

"My eecear," the Vietnamese children chorused, placing one hand to the sides of their heads.

"Show me your ears," Mrs. Cuc repeated, subtly switching to the plural.

Already adept in English language basics after only two months in the U.S., the youngsters this time held both hands up to each ear.

Learn Quickly

The 39 refugee kids from age 5 to 19 "learn very fast" in the special summer program at Kahoa School, said Mrs. Cuc.

This week, she and Elizabeth J. Platt, head of the "English as a Second Language" program in the Lincoln Public Schools, are finishing up the month-long crash course.

The school board approved it hastily to make regular fall classes less confusing for the Vietnamese children, many of whom spoke no English when they arrived in Lincoln.

They're "warm, very alive and happy, loving and caring of one another," Miss Platt beamed. She speaks no Vietnamese, and has proved the children can learn English from her nevertheless.

Learning Kit

She's also helping develop a learning kit for the State Department of Education to distribute to Nebraska schools, to help teachers with more than 200 refugees who'll begin classes in two months.

A cadre of Rousseau summer school youngsters visited the Vietnamese at Kahoa for a mutual language lesson. "They feel better when they know they are going to teach somebody," Mrs. Cuc said, and "they have a wonderful time" doing it.

Besides meeting kids their own age, she said the Vietnamese found they have much in common with their new American friends, such as translating in song, "Are You Sleeping? Are You Sleeping, Brother John?"

Their pace varies from frenetic to philosophical, as the young children learn the English words for parts of the body by acting them out to music, while Miss Platt discusses malaria and its effects with older students in the next room.

Former Translator

Mrs. Cuc serves as the mainstay, recruited for her abilities as a former science teacher in Vietnam. A University of Can Tho graduate, she later worked as a translator for the American consulate general 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

Some of the children already "speak English better than I do," laughed Mrs. Cuc, 26, and mother of an 8-month-old. She cited their "special ability" to acquire a foreign language. Many of them speak French.

The lessons have stressed "things they need to know in school," Mrs. Cuc said, "the background" for mixing with American kids.

That includes time, dates, days of the year, shapes, locations beginning with "here" and "there," and the weather. Their art work depicting snow is aptly frigid, although most of them have never seen a snowstorm.

Miss Platt shows the children pictures and they rattle off descriptions of them, learning words for food, clothing, family relationships, Lincoln buildings, animals and pets, and transportation.

Field Trips Too

And they use what they learn in field trips, including one to the Nebraska State Museum (Elephant Hall) on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus.

The essays Miss Platt requires in English describing the pictures are not only accurate portrayals but most often contain few misspelled words — a coup in itself.

With constant review, Mrs. Cuc said the kids' retention is superb. "I think the main difficulty" they face in school this fall, Miss Platt added, "will be understanding rapid speech."

Until then, they're having fun, able to laugh heartily at themselves when Mrs. Cuc says, "Raise your left hand," and some right hands poke the air.

Another child, saying "My nose," pointed to her wide eyes, a deliberate clever misnomer that cracked up her friends in chuckles.

STUDYING . . . Le Thi Thanh Tung, left, will start at Lincoln High this fall, while Nguyen Thi Huynh Anh will go to Northeast.

Opening lead — three of hearts.

A declarer sometimes gets involved in making hairsplitting decisions that, in essence, determine the outcome.

Consider this deal from the Spingold team of four champions. At the first table, South won the heart lead with the ace and played a low trump to dummy's king, losing to the ace.

East cashed the ace of clubs and returned a low heart, hoping his partner would win and give him a club ruff.

However, declarer ruffed the heart — but still had to go down one. It did not matter whether he played the jack of trumps or the nine; in either case, West would take the queen of trumps and return the queen of clubs to put a quick end to South's hopes.

At the second table, where the contract was also four spades doubled, declarer won the heart lead with the ace, returned a low trump at trick two, and played the six from dummy!

This exceptionally deep finesse had a magic effect on the outcome. East won with the ten, cashed the ace of clubs, and returned a heart. Declarer ruffed, played another trump on which the Q-K-A appeared, and that was the end of the matter. Four spades doubled, bid and made.

It is not easy to prove that the six play from dummy is better than the king play — without seeing all four hands — because there are many intangible factors that must be considered and weighed.

But there is no doubt that the second declarer was right in the actual case — and was perhaps also right theoretically. But even if it could be proved that he was theoretically wrong, it would still be hard to argue with the actual result he obtained.

They're "warm, very alive and happy, loving and caring of one another," Miss Platt beamed. She speaks no Vietnamese, and has proved the children can learn English from her nevertheless.

Learning Kit

She's also helping develop a learning kit for the State Department of Education to distribute to Nebraska schools, to help teachers with more than 200 refugees who'll begin classes in two months.

A cadre of Rousseau summer school youngsters visited the Vietnamese at Kahoa for a mutual language lesson. "They feel better when they know they are going to teach somebody," Mrs. Cuc said, and "they have a wonderful time" doing it.

Besides meeting kids their own age, she said the Vietnamese found they have much in common with their new American friends, such as translating in song. "Are You Sleeping? Are You Sleeping, Brother John?"

Their pace varies from frenetic to philosophical, as the young children learn the English words for parts of the body by acting them out to music, while Miss Platt discusses malaria and its effects with older students in the next room.

Former Translator

Mrs. Cuc serves as the mainstay, recruited for her abilities as a former science teacher in Vietnam. A University of Can Tho graduate, she later worked as a translator for the American consulate general 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

Some of the children already "speak English better than I do," laughed Mrs. Cuc, 26, and mother of an 8-month-old. She cited their "special ability" to acquire a foreign language. Many of them speak French.

The lessons have stressed "things they need to know in school," Mrs. Cuc said, "the background" for mixing with American kids.

That includes time, dates, days of the year, shapes, locations beginning with "here" and "there," and the weather. Their art work depicting snow is aptly frigid, although most of them have never seen a snowstorm.

Miss Platt shows the children pictures and they rattle off descriptions of them, learning words for food, clothing, family relationships, Lincoln buildings, animals and pets, and transportation.

Field Trips Too

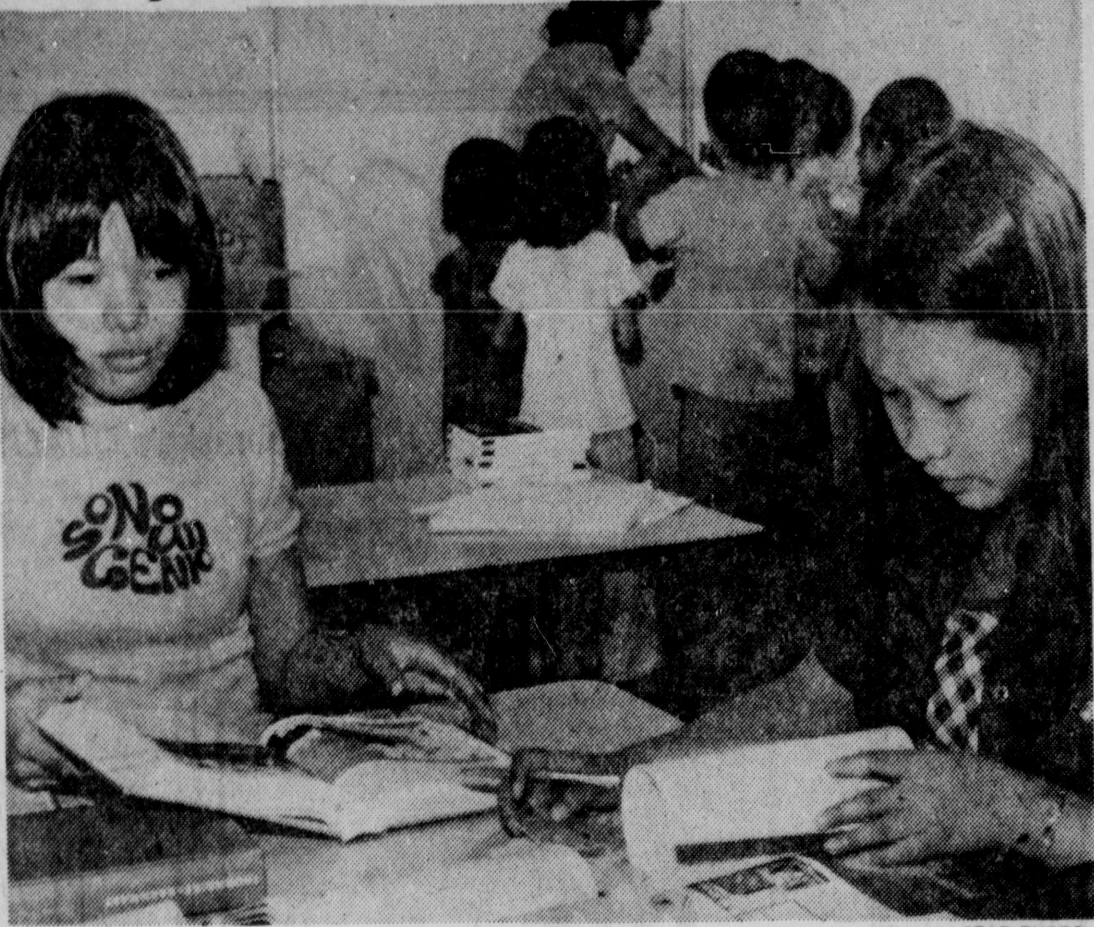

And they use what they learn in field trips, including one to the Nebraska State Museum (Elephant Hall) on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus.

The essays Miss Platt requires in English describing the pictures are not only accurate portrayals but most often contain few misspelled words — a coup in itself.

With constant review, Mrs. Cuc said the kids' retention is superb. "I think the main difficulty" they face in school this fall, Miss Platt added, "will be understanding rapid speech."

Until then, they're having fun, able to laugh heartily at themselves when Mrs. Cuc says, "Raise your left hand," and some right hands poke the air.

Another child, saying "My nose," pointed to her wide eyes, a deliberate clever misnomer that cracked up her friends in chuckles.

STUDYING . . . Le Thi Thanh Tung, left, will start at Lincoln High this fall, while Nguyen Thi Huynh Anh will go to Northeast.

No "oldies" but lots of goodies!

Opening lead — three of hearts.

A declarer sometimes gets involved in making hairsplitting decisions that, in essence, determine the outcome.

Consider this deal from the Spingold team of four champions. At the first table, South won the heart lead with the ace and played a low trump to dummy's king, losing to the ace.

East cashed the ace of clubs and returned a low heart, hoping his partner would win and give him a club ruff.

However, declarer ruffed the heart — but still had to go down one. It did not matter whether he played the jack of trumps or the nine; in either case, West would take the queen of trumps and return the queen of clubs to put a quick end to South's hopes.

At the second table, where the contract was also four spades doubled, declarer won the heart lead with the ace, returned a low trump at trick two, and played the six from dummy!

This exceptionally deep finesse had a magic effect on the outcome. East won with the ten, cashed the ace of clubs, and returned a heart. Declarer ruffed, played another trump on which the Q-K-A appeared, and that was the end of the matter. Four spades doubled, bid and made.

It is not easy to prove that the six play from dummy is better than the king play — without seeing all four hands — because there are many intangible factors that must be considered and weighed.

But there is no doubt that the second declarer was right in the actual case — and was perhaps also right theoretically. But even if it could be proved that he was theoretically wrong, it would still be hard to argue with the actual result he obtained.

Cosby Speaks On Tennis

And what, you may ask, qualifies Bill Cosby to write a book about tennis?

Well, for starters, he claims to be "the only man in the world who managed to catch an overhead shot in the open throat" of his racket.

He admits to having "wept at the net . . . slept with tennis books under his pillow," and invested in over 100 rackets (one of which cost $125 and prompted his coach to ask, "Do you still have to chase the ball?").

In short, Cosby is one who unabashedly acknowledges the frustration, the humiliation, the anger, the depression that accompanies trying to learn to play what he calls "the hottest, the sweetest, the damndest game in town."

And his efforts in putting together "Bill Cosby's Personal Guide To Tennis Power" (Random House) may well make him the patron saint of racket freaks.

Coming in through the back door, Cosby completely avoids mention of the conventional "how to's" of the game.

Instead he offers such useful information as "It is . . . a good idea to use the racket strings to hit the ball"; "Do not hit yourself in the face"; "Do not call your partner names."

Only those who have been there will understand why Cosby comments thus.

He covers most of the crucial technical aspects of the game with step-by-step, easy-to-follow instructions accompanied by photographs. Among the chapters are "The First Serve" ("invented so the net can play"); "The Second Serve" ("This is a good serve; it isn't what you paid to learn, but it goes in better than the one you just tried."); "The Stiff Leg Forehand"; and "The Backhand" (or "Entertaining Your Pro During A Lesson").

He also offers advice on equipment for the defective player — such as the racket "that adjusts itself to forehand or backhand by turning automatically in the hand as you swing."

Although an admitted tennis fanatic, Cosby can still look at the game objectively. It is, in a word, strange.

In other games, you can "yell and holler," he writes. "On the tennis court, you get nothing — just this doomsday voice on the mike saying 'Fifteen ALLLLL.'"

Furthermore, "if you are getting killed, you are expected to stay out there and continue to get killed." The coach can't take you out of the game. "... you are the only one out there on your side of the court. And it is very difficult to pretend you are not there. All you have is a T-shirt, some shorts, a pair of sneakers and socks. The racket will not hide your face because it's strung and people can see through it."

Anyone who has played tennis more than once should have a look at Cosby's book. Not because it will teach you how to play, but because it may shame you into avoiding the techniques contained therein.

And that offers hope for your future game. As Cosby puts it: "Discovering how not to play can be the difference between remaining a defective player and becoming a remedial player. Remembering how not to play will move you all the way up to mediocrity."

Alarm Clock Designed For Deaf

DEAR ABBY: Do you have any suggestions on how a deaf person can wake himself up each morning?

This is very important to me because I would like to have my own apartment and live by myself if I can solve this problem.

Thanks for any help you can give me.

R.
DEAR R.: I contacted the Society for the Hard of Hearing, and they suggested an alarm clock with a flashing light. They are sold for around $15 at SHH offices.

I was told that these are very popular because deaf people are highly sensitive to light.

DEAR ABBY: After 30 years of marriage, my husband and I are no longer in love. We have not shared the same bed for the last 10.

I know that for five years he has been in love with another woman who would marry him if he were free, but he is staying with me out of a sense of duty. We are both miserable this way, but I still need him for security since I have never worked and couldn't support myself. Also, I am used to his company and am afraid to start a new life for myself at my age (51). I don't know which way to turn. Can you advise me?

LOST IN L.A.

DEAR LOST: First, just because you've never worked doesn't mean you can't. Hanging on to a man who keeps an in-name-only marriage intact out of a sense of duty is unfair to him.

Why not talk it over with him? Perhaps, with his help you could find a job in interesting surroundings that would offer many prospects for new friends. If your husband feels as strongly about the futility of your marriage as you do, he might supplement your income or otherwise contribute to your security. If nothing works out, what have you lost?

DEAR ABBY: What is the correct way to address a letter to a lady whose husband has just died?

Also, how does one address a woman whose husband has been dead for several years? D.S.

DEAR D.S.: A widow is always addressed as "Mrs. John Jones" — regardless of how long John has been dead.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No.

ABP Granted Delay In Repayment Plans

Omaha (AP) — Federal Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford signed an order Wednesday giving bankrupt American Beef Packers, Inc. (ABP) an eight-day extension on the deadline for filing plans for repaying its creditors.

In January of this year, the Omaha-based meat packer filed for protection and financial reorganization under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

In April, ABP filed its original

Pan-Celtic Concert First For Eisteddfod

Cricieth, Wales (UPI) — A Pan-Celtic concert is to be staged this year for the first time in the long history of Wales' most important cultural event, the Royal National Eisteddfod. The event, a festival of Welsh song, recitation and poetry, takes place at Cricieth in northwest Wales Aug. 4-9.

The Pan-Celtic concert on the opening night will include performers from Brittany, Scotland, Ireland, and the Isle of Man. All the other Eisteddfod events are held in the Welsh language, and the highlight is the crowning of the bard, an honor bestowed on the winner of the poetry award.

Suit Claims Cake Had Ball Bearing

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man has filed suit in Douglas County District Court seeking restitution for damages he suffered when he ate a cake.

The suit, filed by Sam J. Scarpello, alleges that the plaintiff chewed into a steel ball bearing last April 1 when he was eating a piece of Sara Lee light raspberry coffee cake.

The ball bearing seriously injured Scarpello's right mandibular bridge and upper right maxillary bridge, according to the suit.

The action also claims that Scarpello suffered severe shock to his nervous system.

Double Yolk Eggs Prove Real Bargain

Scottsbluff (AP) — Mrs. Henry Rein of Scottsbluff got a real bargain when she bought two dozen eggs at a local grocery store earlier this week.

She began opening the eggs for breakfast Wednesday, and the first four she cracked turned out to have double yolks.

Curious about the rest, she began cracking the other eggs in the carton, and sure enough, every one had a double yolk.

Her appetite for cracking eggs being wetted, she began to do the job on the second dozen — again, all had double yolks.

Tom Margheim, the dairy manager of the store where Mrs. Rein bought the eggs, said the store gets its eggs from Denver, and that all of them are candled and graded before packaging.

"I've never heard of it" before, said Margheim.

Mathematical odds on the incident were not available.

Crime Funds Given

for a judgment against Consolidated Foods Corp., of Illinois which manufactures Sara Lee products.

The petition requests "special and general damages," but does not list a specific amount.

Scarpello's attorney estimated that his client incurred about $1,200 in dental bills.

Discrimination Lawsuit Dismissed As Too Late

Omaha (AP) — A judge has dismissed former Technical Junior High counselor Eddie Chambers' charge that the Omaha School District discriminated against him in 1971.

Chambers, who is black, had filed a damage suit for $250,000, claiming that the district discriminated when it failed to renew his contract in 1971.

Judge Rober Denney, in his order, said that Chambers had not filed his complaint to the court within an appropriate period of time.

Although Denney said there was no specific precedent for Chambers' case, "the 180-day period of limitations found in the Nebraska Fair Employment Act is the most appropriate statute of limitations under the circumstances in this case."

Denney said the suit in Federal District Court was filed six months ago, almost four years after his contract was not renewed.

The ruling did not discuss the specific merits of Chambers' charges. Chambers is a mathematics teacher at Hillside Elementary School in Omaha's District 66.

Propose Law To Punish Liars

Washington (UPI) — Fifty House members proposed it a crime for a federal official to lie.

Under the legislation, an official convicted of making a false statement could receive a sentence of up to 5 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., said the legislation was intended to provide equal treatment for private citizens and government officials.

ABP Granted Delay In Repayment Plans

Omaha (AP) — Federal Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford signed an order Wednesday giving bankrupt American Beef Packers, Inc. (ABP) an eight-day extension on the deadline for filing plans for repaying its creditors.

In January of this year, the Omaha-based meat packer filed for protection and financial reorganization under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

In April, ABP filed its original plan of arrangement with the court, but that proposal was rejected by the court-appointed creditors committee.

Since then, ABP's biggest creditor, General Electric Credit Corp. (GECC), has offered to loan the company $25 million to $30 million on the condition that ABP President and Board Chairman Frank West step down.

West tendered his resignation, but it will become effective only after Crawford approves the company's revised plan of arrangement, and after GECC confirms the loan.

Pan-Celtic Concert First For Eisteddfod

Cricieth, Wales (UPI) — A Pan-Celtic concert is to be staged this year for the first time in the long history of Wales' most important cultural event, the Royal National Eisteddfod. The event, a festival of Welsh song, recitation and poetry, takes place at Cricieth in Northwest Wales Aug. 4-9.

The Pan-Celtic concert on the opening night will include performers from Brittany, Scotland, Ireland, and the Isle of Man. All the other Eisteddfod events are held in the Welsh language, and the highlight is the crowning of the bard, an honor bestowed on the winner of the poetry award.

Double Yolk Eggs Prove Real Bargain

Scottsbluff (AP) — Mrs. Henry Rein of Scottsbluff got a real bargain when she bought two dozen eggs at a local grocery store earlier this week.

She began opening the eggs for breakfast Wednesday, and the first four she cracked turned out to have double yolks.

Curious about the rest, she began cracking the other eggs in the carton, and sure enough, every one had a double yolk.

Her appetite for cracking eggs being wetted, she began to do the job on the second dozen — again, all had double yolks.

Tom Margheim, the dairy manager of the store where Mrs. Rein bought the eggs, said the store gets its eggs from Denver, and that all of them are candled and graded before packaging.

"I've never heard of it" before, said Margheim.

Mathematical odds on the incident were not available.

Crime Funds Given

Des Moines (UPI) — The Iowa Crime Commission has received an $801,000 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to plan additional improvements in the state's criminal justice system.

Suit Claims Cake Had Ball Bearing

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man has filed suit in Douglas County District Court seeking restitution for damages he suffered when he ate a cake.

The suit, filed by Sam J. Scarpello, alleges that the plaintiff chewed into a steel ball bearing last April 1 when he was eating a piece of Sara Lee light raspberry coffee cake.

The ball bearing seriously injured Scarpello's right mandibular bridge and upper right maxillary bridge, according to the suit.

The action also claims that Scarpello suffered severe shock to his nervous system.

Scarpello is asking the court

for a judgment against Consolidated Foods Corp., of Illinois which manufactures Sara Lee products.

The petition requests "special and general damages," but does not list a specific amount.

Scarpello's attorney estimated that his client incurred about $1,200 in dental bills.

Discrimination Lawsuit Dismissed As Too Late

Omaha (AP) — A judge has dismissed former Technical Junior High counselor Eddie Chambers' charge that the Omaha School District discriminated against him in 1971.

Chambers, who is black, had filed a damage suit for $250,000, claiming that the district discriminated when it failed to renew his contract in 1971.

Judge Rober Denney, in his order, said that Chambers had not filed his complaint to the court within an appropriate period of time.

Although Denney said there was no specific precedent for Chambers' case, "the 180-day period of limitations found in the Nebraska Fair Employment Act is the most appropriate statute of limitations under the circumstances in this case."

Denney said the suit in Federal District Court was filed six months ago, almost four years after his contract was not renewed.

Propose Law To Punish Liars

Washington (UPI) — Fifty House members proposed it a crime for a federal official to lie.

Under the legislation, an official convicted of making a false statement could receive a sentence of up to 5 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., said the legislation was intended to provide equal treatment for private citizens and government officials.

Planning Makes Trip A Pleasure

College Station, Tex. (UPI) — Parents can make vacation travel with young children a pleasure rather than a hassle with good planning, according to Ilene Miller, specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, suggests parents involve children in planning some of the activities for the trip and selection of toys to carry in the car.

A good schedule including plenty of short rest stops and meals as close to regular eating times as possible will help keep children from becoming too restless.

"Stop early enough to get the children clean and relaxed before supper and then into bed at about their normal bedtime," she advises.

Uniformity Sought In Dairy Laws

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Nebraska's dairy regulations drew praise from a federal official charged with working to regularize state laws governing dairy product quality at a meeting of state dairy regulatory officials in Lincoln Wednesday.

"Nebraska has a good law, (as) most states do, but some don't, and we need to work toward a unified law so that manufacturing milk can pass across state lines with a minimum of problems," explained J. B. Rubis, chief of the standardization branch, Dairy Division, of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Rubis noted that "the present argument that imported dairy products should meet the same requirements for production and quality as domestic products lacks validity because of the lack of requirements in many states for domestic dairy products."

Nebraska is one of 32 states that has a manufacturing milk law, but some states have little or no regulation at all.

"Imported milk and domestic milk do have identical requirements under the Food and Drug Administration, which inspects imported milk. Domestic regulation, however, is ordinarily left to the states to supervise. Some states have regulations much tougher than the federal regulation on manufacturing milk, and some have no regulations at all," he said.

Rubis said some dairymen in the non-regulated states would find themselves facing a considerable expenditure to update their farms for the proposed uniform state regulation being suggested by the federal agency. In most cases the problems would consist of better sanitary practices in the care of cows, better barn conditions, milking procedures and care of equipment, he said.

"What I am really talking about here is some elbow grease to keep the place clean, rather, than a major financial expenditure, in a great majority of cases. We would also suggest that the states allow ample time for dairymen to make the adjustment to the new requirements. Dairymen are having a tough time financially now without adding unnecessarily to their financial cost," he said.

Rubis noted that there are sometimes conflicts between federal agencies governing the production of a food product such as milk.

One example of conflict occurred when a safety inspector for the Department of Labor demanded a rough floor for non-skid walking while the health department demanded a smooth surface for easy cleaning.

"Obviously you can't have both. My solution would be non-skid boots on a smooth floor. There is a tile that may be non-skid enough to meet labor requirements and still be easy to clean. It is unfortunate when two agencies have these conflicts and a dairyman is caught in the middle, but these things can and are being worked out," he said.

The proposal for a unified milk manufacturing law will be studied with a recommendation in the form of a resolution from the dairy inspectors expected to be presented before the close of the meeting on Thursday.

This resolution then will be taken to the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture meeting in West Virginia scheduled for October.

Omaha Man Sentenced In Robbery

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man has been sentenced to prison after pleading guilty to robbing on Omaha market last December.

During the holdup, a store clerk and the robber, Nathaniel P. Holbert, 19, were shot.

Holbert has been sentenced to two terms of three-to-10 years in the Nebraska Penal Complex at Lincoln. The sentences are to run concurrently, or at the same time.

Holbert was arrested Dec. 23, after he attempted to hold up the Bedford Market.

After asking clerk Evelyn Snodgrass for money, Holbert shot at the woman, witnesses said.

The bullet lodged in the clerk's dental dentures, sparing her from serious injury. She was treated at a local hospital and released.

However, Holbert did not fare so well.

One of the estimated 40 customers in the store pulled a gun, and shot the bandit.

Holbert was critically wounded, but has since recovered.

Grant Approved

The National Park Service has approved a $10,000 grant for restoration work on the 1884 Episcopal Church of the Santee Indian Reservation in Knox County.

The grant, administered by the Nebraska State Historical Society, will provide matching funds for the Gothic Revival Church.

Effects Of PE Integration Law Said Minimal

Congressional moves to require that physical education courses be coeducational will have no effect locally until the 1976-77 school year, Supt. John Prasch said Wednesday.

The House has aligned itself with an earlier Senate vote on Title IX regulations, which prohibit sex discrimination upon penalty of losing federal funds.

"The implementation isn't required this fall," Prasch said, "so probably we will not change the plan for physical education classes."

Any changes would also necessitate adjustments in the budget, which the Lincoln Board of Education adopted Tuesday. However, "generally at the elementary level," Lincoln

Public Schools physical education classes are already coeducational, Prasch noted, as well as some at the secondary level.

The Title IX guidelines specify that boys and girls may be separated in certain sports and physical education courses, Prasch explained. Some Lincoln high schools already offer physical education in sports categories, such as archery and tennis.

"There's no problem in offering those on a coeducational basis," he said, "but the offerings in wrestling obviously have to be separated."

"We'll have some planning and some reorganizing to do" for any major changes that might be required by fall 1976, he said.

Meanwhile, President Gerald Ford could still veto the House-Senate approved educational aid bill, since at $7.9 billion, it is over the budget.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Health Services Grant Received

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Health Dept. has received a $1,236,836 grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for establishment and first-year operation of an Emergency Medical Services (EMS) system.

The grant, for the year beginning July 1, will be spent in EMS regions surrounding Scottsbluff, North Platte, Grand Island and Omaha, the Health Planning Council of the Midlands said in a news release.

Funds spent in the EMS region surrounding Omaha will total $399,913. Added to the federal grant will be $523,414 in cash and services by local sources.

The major portion of those funds will be used to obtain ambulance and rescue vehicles and EMS communications equipment.

The remainder of the funds also will be used for training of health personnel and administration and evaluation.

Lincoln Blood Bank To Move To New Location

The Community Blood Bank will move into the building on the northeast corner of 29th and O Sts., recently vacated by the Social Security Office.

The district Social Security office moved into the Federal Building Monday.

The $205,000 building was purchased last year as the blood bank's present location at 620 N. 48th became too small for the growing operation. The blood bank is incorporated through Lancaster County Medical Society efforts.

P.D. Duensing, executive of the 200-member medical society, said the county medical society also will occupy space in the new building.

Effects Of PE Integration Law Said Minimal

Congressional moves to require that physical education courses be coeducational will have no effect locally until the 1976-77 school year, Supt. John Prasch said Wednesday.

The House has aligned itself with an earlier Senate vote on Title IX regulations, which prohibit sex discrimination upon penalty of losing federal funds.

"The implementation isn't required this fall," Prasch said, "so probably we will not change the plan for physical education classes."

Any changes would also necessitate adjustments in the budget, which the Lincoln Board of Education adopted Tuesday.

However, "generally at the elementary level," Lincoln

Public Schools physical education classes are already coeducational, Prasch noted, as well as some at the secondary level.

The Title IX guidelines specify that boys and girls may be separated in certain sports and physical education courses, Prasch explained. Some Lincoln high schools already offer physical education in sports categories, such as archery and tennis.

"There's no problem in offering those on a coeducational basis," he said, "but the offerings in wrestling obviously have to be separated."

"We'll have some planning and some reorganizing to do" for any major changes that might be required by fall 1976, he said.

Meanwhile, President Gerald Ford could still veto the House-Senate approved educational aid bill, since at $7.9 billion, it is over the budget.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Lincoln Blood Bank To Move To New Location

The Community Blood Bank will move into the building on the northeast corner of 29th and O Sts., recently vacated by the Social Security Office.

The district Social Security office moved into the Federal Building Monday.

The $205,000 building was purchased last year as the blood bank's present location at 620 N. 48th became too small for the growing operation. The blood bank is incorporated through Lancaster County Medical Society efforts.

P.D. Duensing, executive of the 200-member medical society, said the county medical society also will occupy space in the new building.

Health Services Grant Received

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Health Dept. has received a $1,236,836 grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for establishment and first-year operation of an Emergency Medical Services (EMS) system.

The grant, for the year beginning July 1, will be spent in EMS regions surrounding Scottsbluff, North Platte, Grand Island and Omaha, the Health Planning Council of the Midlands said in a news release.

Funds spent in the EMS region surrounding Omaha will total $399,913. Added to the federal grant will be $523,414 in cash and services by local sources.

The major portion of those funds will be used to obtain ambulance and rescue vehicles and EMS communications equipment.

The remainder of the funds also will be used for training of health personnel and administration and evaluation.

Lewis Will Seek Deficit Ed Funds

North Platte (AP) — Bellevue State Sen. Frank Lewis says that as the result of information gathered so far by the Legislature's Education Committee, he will ask the 1976 Legislature to approve a deficit appropriation to help fund LB403.

The measure sets down the guidelines for the funding of special education programs in the state, but most school districts and educational service units have been confused by the bill.

The Education Committee is now in the middle of a series of public hearings on special education.

Hearings were held earlier this week in Alliance and Alinsworth, and the committee held a hearing here Wednesday. Other hearings in the eastern portion of the state are scheduled later this summer.

Before Wednesday's hearing, Lewis said he has already directed his staff to prepare the legislation for the deficit appropriation.

Lewis said he went before the Legislature's Appropriations Committee earlier this year asking for deficit appropriation of $3 million for special education, but he got only $1.6 million.

The lawmaker said the State Department of Education gave him figures Tuesday showing that the state is providing only 83% of the funding under LB403. The bill calls for 90% state funding, Lewis noted, adding that if the Appropriations Committee had agreed to his $3 million request, the program would be funded at the 90% level as authorized.

Lewis said the Education Committee is likely to recommend an amendment to LB403, a rider that would include a penalty section for those school districts willfully neglecting to provide special education.

Lewis said efforts must be made to tell school districts about the provisions in the bill.

Lewis also said he has discovered that some of the smaller school districts in the state have already said they do not intend to offer special education services.

Lincoln Men Purchase Old Crete Missile Base

Two Lincoln men have purchased the old Crete missile site which was once proposed as a location for a chemical dependency unit for the State Penal Complex.

Albert Leupold and J. Phillip Mahoney purchased the site at an auction price of $71,000. The location was used as a drug treatment center by the United Pentecostal Church. The center closed March 1, 1974.

The church offered the property to the state for $75,000 but plans for a drug rehabilitation facility were abandoned by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee after protests from Crete residents.

Leupold said he and Mahoney have no immediate plans for the 17½-acre facility, which includes two dormitories, a mess and a recreation hall, utility buildings, a tennis court and a water and sewer system.

ESU 2 Budget Reduced

Fremont (AP) — Members of the Educational Service Unit 2 board of directors have approved a 1975-76 operating budget of $580,507. The figure is about $200,000 under the budget for the current fiscal year, and officials cited confusion over state funding of special education programs as the reason for the reduction. ESU 2 serves all of Dodge County, and parts of Cuming, Saunders and Burt counties.

Bridge Dedication Set Aug. 1

Omaha (AP) — Another bridge linking Iowa and Nebraska over the Missouri River will be dedicated Aug. 1. Begun in 1973, the bridge will carry westbound traffic from Interstate 680 without toll. The eastbound traffic will move on the Mormon Bridge, where tolls will continue until the bridge's bonds are paid in about six years. Nebraska and Iowa officials are slated to take part in the dedication.

Nebraska Rejected City Sales Tax

Kearney (UPI) — The City Council officially rejected a proposed municipal sales tax Tuesday night, but approved a fee for city garbage collection. Kearney's budget of $5.7 million will be funded through a property tax levy. City Manager Ray Lundy had suggested a one per cent city sales tax, but councilmen decided 3-2 against the proposal last week and followed up by officially turning down the tax. The garbage collection fee will be $3 monthly per home and $2 for each apartment. Lundy said Kearney was probably the last first class city in the state without a garbage collection fee.

FM Station Sought For Seward

Fairbury (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has formally been asked to approve a construction and operating permit for a new 100,000-watt stereo FM radio station in Seward. The permits were requested by Tri-County Broadcasting headed by Frank Newell of Fairbury. Newell also serves as president and general manager of Great Plains Broadcastings Inc., which operates KGMT radio station in Fairbury. Newell said he hopes the new station can be put on the air by early next year.

Pay Freeze Protested In Scotts Bluff County

Gering (AP) — Six employees of the Scotts Bluff County Sheriff's office ended a sitdown protest of pay scales in the county courthouse two hours after it began Wednesday afternoon.

The six, jailers and dispatchers from the sheriff's office, sat down in front of the Scotts Bluff County Commissioners' office at 1 p.m. Wednesday afternoon, saying they would not leave until they became hungry or tired.

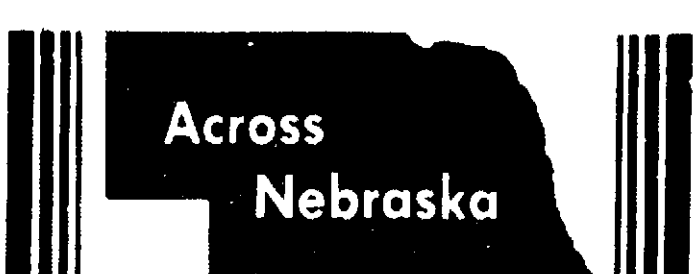

The group was protesting a Tuesday night decision of the commissioners to maintain departmental payrolls for fiscal 1975-76 at current levels.

They ended the protest after Sheriff David Schieve carried word from the commissioners that the pay decision was not necessarily final and could be altered at a budget hearing August 4.

"We can always come back," one protesting employee said as he left.

The strikers said they represented only themselves, adding, however, that other county employees have been given increased workloads without additional compensation.

During the sitdown, protesters carried signs saying: "Five per cent of nothing is nothing; Even criminals have money; and No pay no work. One of the men wore a Mickey Mouse costume and carried a sign on his back reading: "Commissioners freeze pay level."

"We can always come back," one protesting employee said as he left.

The strikers said they represented only themselves, adding, however, that other county employees have been given increased workloads without additional compensation.

Bridge Dedication Set Aug. 1

Omaha (AP) — Another bridge linking Iowa and Nebraska over the Missouri River will be dedicated Aug. 1. Begun in 1973, the bridge will carry westbound traffic from Interstate 680 without toll. The eastbound traffic will move on the Mormon Bridge, where tolls will continue until the bridge's bonds are paid in about six years. Nebraska and Iowa officials are slated to take part in the dedication.

ESU 2 Budget Reduced

Fremont (AP) — Members of the Educational Service Unit 2 board of directors have approved a 1975-76 operating budget of $580,507. The figure is about $200,000 under the budget for the current fiscal year, and officials cited confusion over state funding of special education programs as the reason for the reduction. ESU 2 serves all of Dodge County, and parts of Cuming, Saunders and Burt counties.

KSC Encounter '75 Program Slated

Kearney (UPI) — Encounter '75 will get under way on the Kearney State campus Saturday. The program, which will end Aug. 3, offers individualized programs in art, creative writing, foreign languages, journalism, music and theater. Designed for high school students, the program offers a week of intensive study and individual projects. On Aug. 3, Encounter '75 will conclude with a festival of arts.

Lewis Will Seek Deficit Ed Funds

North Platte (AP) — Bellevue State Sen. Frank Lewis says that as the result of information gathered so far by the Legislature's Education Committee, he will ask the 1976 Legislature to approve a deficit appropriation to help fund LB403.

The measure sets down the guidelines for the funding of special education programs in the state, but most school districts and educational service units have been confused by the bill.

The Education Committee is now in the middle of a series of public hearings on special education.

Hearings were held earlier this week in Alliance and Ainsworth, and the committee held a hearing here Wednesday. Other hearings in the eastern portion of the state are scheduled later this summer.

Before Wednesday's hearing, Lewis said he has already directed his staff to prepare the legislation for the deficit appropriation.

Lewis said he went before the Legislature's Appropriations Committee earlier this year asking for deficit appropriation of $3 million for special education, but he got only $1.6 million.

The lawmaker said the State Department of Education gave him figures Tuesday showing that the state is providing only 83% of the funding under LB403. The bill calls for 90% state funding, Lewis noted, adding that if the Appropriations Committee had agreed to his $3 million request, the program would be funded at the 90% level as authorized.

Lewis said the Education Committee is likely to recommend an amendment to LB403, a rider that would include a penalty section for those school districts willfully neglecting to provide special education.

Lewis said efforts must be made to tell school districts about the provisions in the bill.

Lewis also said he has discovered that some of the smaller school districts in the state have already said they do not intend to offer special education services.

Lincoln Men Purchase Old Crete Missile Base

Two Lincoln men have purchased the old Crete missile site which was once proposed as a location for a chemical dependency unit for the State Penal Complex.

Albert Leupold and J. Phillip Mahoney purchased the site at an auction price of $71,000. The location was used as a drug treatment center by the United Pentecostal Church. The center closed March 1, 1974.

The church offered the property to the state for $75,000 but plans for a drug rehabilitation facility were abandoned by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee after protests from Crete residents.

Leupold said he and Mahoney have no immediate plans for the 17½-acre facility, which includes two dormitories, a mess and a recreation hall, utility buildings, a tennis court and a water and sewer system.

Kearney Rejects City Sales Tax

Kearney (UPI) — The City Council officially rejected a proposed municipal sales tax Tuesday night, but approved a fee for city garbage collection. Kearney's budget of $5.7 million will be funded through a property tax levy. City Manager Ray Lundy had suggested a one per cent city sales tax, but councilmen decided 3-2 against the proposal last week and followed up by officially turning down the tax. The garbage collection fee will be $3 monthly per home and $2 for each apartment. Lundy said Kearney was probably the last first class city in the state without a garbage collection fee.

Doane To Host Two Conferences

Crete — Doane College will host two conferences next week, both of them concerned with preparation of students. On Sunday representatives of 20 colleges and universities will convene for the annual Midwest Career Planning and Placement Conference. Career Explorations Week for high school seniors begins Monday.

FM Station Sought For Seward

Fairbury (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has formally been asked to approve a construction and operating permit for a new 100,000-watt stereo FM radio station in Seward. The permits were requested by Tri-County Broadcasting headed by Frank Newell of Fairbury. Newell also serves as president and general manager of Great Plains Broadcastings Inc., which operates KGMT radio station in Fairbury. Newell said he hopes the new station can be put on the air by early next year.

Pay Freeze Protested In Scotts Bluff County

Gering (AP) — Six employees of the Scotts Bluff County Sheriff's office ended a sitdown protest of pay scales in the county courthouse two hours after it began Wednesday afternoon.

The six, jailers and dispatchers from the sheriff's office, sat down in front of the Scotts Bluff County Commissioners' office at 1 p.m. Wednesday afternoon, saying they would not leave until they became hungry or tired.

The group was protesting a Tuesday night decision of the commissioners to maintain departmental payrolls for fiscal 1975-76 at current levels.

They ended the protest after Sheriff David Schieve carried word from the commissioners that the pay decision was not necessarily final and could be altered at a budget hearing August 4.

"We can always come back," one protesting employee said as he left.

The strikers said they represented only themselves, adding, however, that other county employes have been given increased workloads without additional compensation.

SPF Swine Group Picks Officer Slate

Officers of the Nebraska and the National SPF (Specific Pathogen Free) swine accrediting agencies were elected at the two groups' respective meetings during the annual

Dick Sorensen
Named President

George A. Young Conference on advances in swine repopulation here.

Dick Sorensen of Wayne was named to head the Nebraska SPF Agency, the largest organization among the 21 states enrolled. Serving with Sorensen will be Max Gemar, Sutton, vice president; Gerald Royal, Palmyra, treasurer, and Tom Socha, Lincoln, secretary-manager.

Continuing on the board of directors will be Lloyd Eberle, Bradshaw, and Brian Riddell, Oakland; while Jim Volk of Battle Creek was elected as a new director. Willard Waldo of DeWitt will continue as Nebraska's representative to the national organization.

In other action at the Nebraska meeting, SPF producers voted to increase the weighing fee for boars and gilts from $1 to $2, so that more money can be raised for advertising.

New officers for the National SPF Agency are: Don Heinrich, Noblesville, Ind., president; Kent French, Wilmont, S.D., vice-president; and Merle Cox, Conrad, Ia., executive secretary.

SPF producers raise swine that must meet certain health requirements and performance testing standards. The Nebraska SPF program began in 1958 and now has 60 herds enrolled.

Deuel County's Wheat Harvest Is Nearly Done

Deuel County's wheat harvest is nearing completion with the crop averaging 40 bushels an acre, the Nebraska Labor Department said Wednesday in its wheat harvest bulletin.

In the Lodgepole area 80% of the crop has been harvested, while 20% has been cut in the Sidney vicinity.

Nearly 75% of the wheat fields have been harvested in Sheridan County, yielding 30 to 40 bushels per acre, the Labor Department stated.

Better than average yields and test weight are reported from Box Butte County where 55% of the crop has been cut.

Tax Reductions Granted Omaha Tornado Victims

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County Board of Equalization has granted a tax reduction for the coming year to persons whose buildings were destroyed by the May 6 tornado.

Assessor Frank Benus said the reductions amount to 90% of the value of improvements on the property, whether home or business. The value of the land will remain the same, he said.

Ten per cent of the improvement value was left because nearly all the property had some improvements intact, such as sidewalks, foundations or utilities.

SPF Swine Group Picks Officer Slate

Dick Sorensen

Named President

George A. Young Conference on advances in swine repopulation here.

Dick Sorensen of Wayne was named to head the Nebraska SPF Agency, the largest organization among the 21 states enrolled. Serving with Sorensen will be Max Gemar, Sutton, vice president; Gerald Royal, Palmyra, treasurer; and Tom Socha, Lincoln, secretary-manager.

Continuing on the board of directors will be Lloyd Eberle, Bradshaw, and Brian Riddell, Oakland; while Jim Volk of Battle Creek was elected as a new director. Willard Waldo of DeWitt will continue as Nebraska's representative to the national organization.

In other action at the Nebraska meeting, SPF producers voted to increase the weighing fee for boars and gilts from $1 to $2, so that more money can be raised for advertising.

New officers for the National SPF Agency are: Don Heinrich, Noblesville, Ind., president; Kent Frerichs, Wilmont, S.D., vice-president; and Merle Cox, Conrad, Ia., executive secretary. SPF producers raise swine that must meet certain health requirements and performance testing standards. The Nebraska SPF program began in 1958 and now has 60 herds enrolled.

Devel County's Wheat Harvest Is Nearly Done

Devel County's wheat harvest is nearing completion with the crop averaging 40 bushels an acre, the Nebraska Labor Department said Wednesday in its wheat harvest bulletin.

In the Lodgepole area 80% of the crop has been harvested, while 20% has been cut in the Sidney vicinity.

Nearly 75% of the wheat fields have been harvested in Sheridan County, yielding 30 to 40 bushels per acre, the Labor Department stated.

Better than average yields and test weight are reported from Box Butte County where 55% of the crop has been cut.

Tax Reductions Granted Omaha Tornado Victims

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County Board of Equalization has granted a tax reduction for the coming year to persons whose buildings were destroyed by the May 6 tornado.

Assessor Frank Bemis said the reductions amount to 90% of the value of improvements on the property, whether home or business. The value of the land will remain the same, he said.

Ten per cent of the improvement value was left because nearly all the property had some improvements intact, such as sidewalks, foundations or utilities.

Brownfield, Klein Set State Meet Pace With Records

By VIRGIL PARKER

Brownfield, who has won the last six tournaments he's entered, and Klein, who fired a sizzling 58 on his home course three weeks ago, hold a five-stroke bulge over five others who managed even-par 72s.

Both leaders recorded six birdies and a single bogey over the 6,410-yard Alliance Municipal layout.

The competitive course record of 68 had stood since 1963 when Omaha's Bob Astleford established the standard while winning one of his eight state titles.

Astleford was a late scratch, leaving Lincoln's Dan Bahensky as the only ex-champ in the 99-man field. Bahensky, who earlier captured the state match play crown, struggled to an opening-round 74.

Brownfield tuned up for his state title bid by winning consecutive weekend open championships in Kearney, North Platte, McCook, Broken Bow, Cozad and Holdrege.

"I haven't played this course much before," the 25-year-old ex-Oklahoma State golfer observed, "but I hit the ball awfully well."

"I came out for a couple of practice rounds and scored 73 and then 71, so I showed a lot of improvement today. I hit the ball close and made a lot of eight and ten-footers for my birdies."

The Cozad redhead, who has always been bothered by sunburn, is sporting a protective mustache.

"I've suffered from blistered lips," he said. "The mustache has helped. I don't have to put salve all over my face anymore."

An accurate wedge and putter also helped Wednesday as he rolled in birdie putts on Nos. 2, 8, 12, 14, 15, and 17.

"I really only missed one putt I should have made. That was a six-footer on No. 11. But I made up for that by canning a tough downhill putt on No. 7 to save par."

Brownfield, who is entered in his eighth state tourney, (his best finish was a tie for second in 1968), slipped only on the 18th after an errant second shot.

Klein, a 20-year-old who just graduated from Nebraska

Western JC and who is headed to Houston on a golf scholarship, entered the state tournament for the first time last summer in Fremont.

"That was the first time I thought I was good enough to compete with the 'big boys,'" he says. "The meet is usually held in the eastern part of the state, so I didn't think the trip was justified."

Klein, a Scottsbluff High product who was born in Lincoln ("I left there after kindergarten"), knocked in three consecutive birdies on Nos. 2, 3 and 4 to get off to a fast start. "I made a 15-footer on No. 3," he recalled. "But my best shot came on No. 16 when I chipped in from just off the green to save par."

Klein added birdies on Nos. 9, 12, and 15 while slipping to a bogey on No. 8.

"I hit my drive right behind a tree and had to swat it out left-handed," he remembered. "Even then I could have saved par. My third shot was to within 12 feet, but I missed the putt."

Bahensky, who shelved plans to attend the Nebraska Law School this summer in order to try for a double — adding this title to his match play crown — refused to count himself out because of his seven-stroke deficit after the first day.

"If those guys keep shooting 67 I'll never catch them," he admits, "but I've always felt I played the strongest in the latter rounds."

Bahensky managed just one birdie. "I had three bogeys after three-putting once and chunking a couple of chip shots."

Following Thursday's round, the field will be cut to the top 54 and ties for Friday and Saturday's final two days of play.

Matlack Leads Mets To 5-2 Win Over Reds

By United Press International
Jon Matlack pitched a five-hitter and Ed Kranepool drove in three runs with three hits Wednesday night leading the New York Mets to a 5-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Matlack walked the first three batters in the first inning and then yielded a two-run single to Johnny Bench before settling down and going on to his 11th victory of the season.

Kranepool highlighted a three-run third inning with a two-run single and also drove in a run with a double in the fifth. Gary Nolan suffered his sixth loss against nine wins for the Reds.

J. R. Richards pitched a five-hitter and Wilbur Howard singled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth inning leading the Houston Astros to a 2-1 win over the Montreal Expos. Richard gave up a home run to Gary Carter in the fourth but was not in serious trouble again as he struck out six and walked five.

Terry Harmon, running for Greg Luzinski, scored the winning run in the eighth inning on Mike Schmidt's squeeze bunt as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Atlanta Braves 3-2. Jim Lonzor struck out three and scattered six hits in winning his eighth game.

John Montefusco pitched a six-hitter and hit a homer in a 10-hit attack which carried the San Francisco Giants to a 10-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Willie Montanez had three hits and Gary Thomasson two for the Giants.

Dock Ellis pitched a four-hitter and Manny Sanguillen hit a two-run homer, extending his consecutive game hitting streak to 15, leading the Pittsburgh

Pirates to an 8-1 win over the San Diego Padres. Dave Freisleben was ripped for four runs in 4 2-3 innings and suffered his 10th loss.

Ted Sizemore's bases-filled single highlighted a three-run sixth inning outburst which carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Bob Forsch went 8 2-3 innings for the victory despite ninth-inning homers by Willie Crawford and Lee Lacy.

Boston Celtics Owner Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Schmertz, an owner of the Boston Celtics, died Wednesday at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital here. He was 48.

Schmertz's brother, Eric, said the part owner the National Basketball Association team died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

A spokesman for the Celtics said Tuesday that Schmertz had undergone brain surgery a week ago in an effort to repair a ruptured blood vessel in the head. Eric Schmertz said his brother became ill July 15.

Schmertz had in recent years been involved in the formation of the World Football League and World Hockey Association. He once had been a part owner of the New York Stars of the WFL and the New England Whalers of the WHA.

On Feb. 5, Schmertz was indicted by a Trenton, N.J., grand jury on bribery-conspiracy charges. He pleaded innocent to the charges.

It has been estimated that in Ocean County, one of the fastest growing regions in the country, one of every seven persons lives in a dwelling built by Schmertz's firm.

The NBA took no action against Schmertz because of the indictment. J. Walter Kennedy, who was NBA commissioner last February, said at the time that no action was contemplated pending the outcome of the case.

New York Mets catcher Jerry Grote has plenty of help as he tries to catch a Cincinnati Reds pop up.

Track Security Smoother Now

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer
Security might just be Murdock Platner's middle name.

That's because he has been with coordinated security at Nebraska race tracks for more than 25 years. But things didn't always go as smoothly as they do today.

"It must have been in the early 1950s at Columbus where they had a complicated deal," he said. "A jockey grabbed the saddle blanket from another horse. It was Omaha day at the races and everybody thought this was an Omaha horse that was getting a bad deal."

"Just when the horse was being disqualified, the woman running the odds-board in the infield made a mistake and everyone ganged up around the judges' stand."

"I was really worried about what might happen. It was an angry crowd. But I started telling them I was from Omaha and the Omaha people were not getting a bad deal. That seemed to quiet them down a little."

That also convinced officials that the judges' stand should be on the roof and not near the finish line.

At any rate, Platner has had more serene times in recent years supervising the security at Nebraska horse tracks.

"We mainly control traffic and crowd control," he said. "We handle the people inside the grandstand, guard the money, have five watches in the barns and make investigations when we're required to do so."

Platner supervises a 40-person staff at the State Fairgrounds. His staff at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha approaches 120.

"At the tracks in Nebraska, the management would rather have too much security than not enough. They let us hire as many people as we need," Platner said.

Platner is a special deputy state sheriff, which gives him the power of arresting unruly spectators at Nebraska tracks.

Usually, however, just his size alone (6-3 and 280 pounds) is enough to scare surely fans to behave themselves.

A 33-year veteran in law enforcement work, Platner was transferred to Omaha in 1944 while serving in the MP unit of the Army.

His job then was to check on military personnel who were in the Omaha jail at police headquarters. After spending so much time at the jail, Omaha Police Department personnel convinced him he should work there.

So in 1945, he was hired by OPD. Two years later, he worked the Ak-Sar-Ben races. In 1949, he began working in the vice department and at Ak-Sar-Ben as a plainclothesman.

"At the end of the 1949 season, Ralph Boomer (of the Nebraska State Racing Commission) wanted me to work at the out-

Murdock Platner Coordinates Security

state tracks as a state police officer," he said. "Then I started working six weeks outstate each year at places such as Mitchell, Madison, Columbus and Lincoln. I took my annual leave every year until 1955 when Fonner opened working outstate tracks."

From 1955 through 1963, Platner worked Fonner, Ak-Sar-Ben and Lincoln. From 1964 through 1970, he just worked the Ak-Sar-Ben meet as he completed almost 20 years of coordinating Ak-Sar-Ben security.

After working in 1970 for Wells Fargo, Platner decided to form his own company. With J. C. Whinnery, he started the Coordinated Security Services. That's the company that has the security at all Nebraska tracks, except Atokad.

Finally, Platner retired in August of 1971 after nearly 26 years with the Omaha Police Department. His last rank was administrative captain of detectives.

He still maintains that respect for law enforcement has deteriorated in recent years.

"People have lost a lot of the respect they have for uniformed police. It's harder for them to move on when they're told," he said. "There used to be a fear of a policeman in uniform, but not any more."

Nevertheless, Platner still commands much respect from the persons who frequent the Nebraska horse tracks. He's still the "Number One Policeman" at the Nebraska races.

Weights Set

Racing secretary and handicapper Bob Pollock assigned the Kemling Bros. Inc.'s Roman Zipper top-weight of 126 pounds for Saturday's State Fair Handicap over 6 furlongs.

The race is for 3-year-old colts and geldings and carries a $4,000 purse.

Other entrants and their weights include Friar Shuck (119); Cordial Prince (118); Shidan (114); Winsor Fair (112); Hl Bouncer (112); Irish (111); Ima Fleet (110) and Glo Master (107).

Purses Rise

State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt raised the minimum purse to $2,000 for Friday's races.

It is the third time this season that the minimum purse has been increased. It started at $1,700.

Track 'Hurt'

Almost four inches of rain have turned the new racing surface into its worst condition this season, State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt noted.

"We're going to seal it tonight (Wednesday) and hopefully that'll improve it somewhat," he said. "We need to blade it when it dries out. We've done everything possible, but when you have that rain, it's bound to hurt it."

"If we had the other track, we'd be running through slop and water and everything," he said. "We know it's not that good, but we're trying to get it back into shape."

The track was officially listed as slow for Wednesday's races.

John Dutton

Baltimore Colt

Dutton Anxious For Return

John Dutton was an All America tackle and co-captain of the 1973 Nebraska Cornhusker team, but on July 19 he'll be No. 78 on the Baltimore Colts.

As he heads into his second year as a pro star in the NFL — he made the All Rookie team in 1974 — Dutton is not over-joyed at the prospect of starting those tough summer drills. But he's anxiously awaiting a return to Nebraska's Memorial Stadium to play in the exhibition game with the Atlanta Falcons on August 16.

"Sure, I want to come back home to play again," Dutton said. "But I worry about that game, too. I'd hate to come back to Memorial Stadium and blow it. I really enjoyed playing at Nebraska when I was in school."

Dutton will have several former Husker teammates with him on the Colts — running backs Joe Orduna and Bill Olds and wide receiver Don Westbrook.

The giant — 6-7, 260-pound — Colt star has been sporting a Paul Bunyan beard this summer during his Lincoln residency, but he'll shave for camp.

The former Husker said Baltimore's outlook is much improved over a year ago.

"Losing makes you worry a lot — I was used to winning at Nebraska, and it's hard to lose — and I don't want to go through another losing year like my first," he said. "But I'm enthused because I think we might be pretty good this year. We've got a new offensive line — George Kunz from Canada and Ken Huff from North Carolina State will help — so I think we'll be better. Our defense got killed last year because we were on the field all the time. Now we've got some hope."

Aunt Priscilla Having Trouble

I'm having so much fun at the State Fairgrounds' races this year.

Aunt Priscilla Loses $4

I've had a little trouble this week.

On Tuesday, I thought I had a winner in the third race when that sweet little Nervewracking got a lead, but the poor thing tired a little and finished third. Then my Supreme Son finished fourth in the fourth race.

That dropped my $104 spree fund to $107.80.

On Thursday, I'm going to put my $2 win tickets on Jeff J.J. in the first and Nobby Dod in the seventh.

Behind the scenes . . . Cowboys hang over the walls of the bucking chutes to prepare broncs for action at the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo.

NFL Owners, Players Offer Proposals

A proposal and a counter-proposal were made by the NFL owners and players union during negotiations for a new bargaining contract. No details of either proposal were made public.

The owners submitted their proposal at the start of the meeting which was then recessed. Later the union came back with a counter-proposal.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said that strict enforcement of Title IX, the federal regulations regarding discrimination on the basis of sex in schools and colleges, could be a blow to overall sports programs.

Paterno said that if the regulations are interpreted in such a way that women will receive equal amounts of money, a situation could develop where only women and football players would receive scholarships, football being the sport that makes money.

The Denver Broncos cut two rookie free agents from the roster. They were Mark Sams from Colorado and Murphy Mitchell of Tulsa.

Emilen Tussell, one of the NFL's great defensive backs and first black coach, died of an apparent heart attack at the age of 50.

Center Bruce Jarvis, troubled with knee injuries, walked out of the Buffalo Bills' training camp without explanation.

By VIRGIL PARKER

Brownfield, who has won the last six tournaments he's entered, and Klein, who fired a sizzling 58 on his home course three weeks ago, hold a five-stroke bulge over five others who managed even-par 72s.

Both leaders recorded six birdies and a single bogey over the

Matlack Leads Mets To 5-2 Win Over Reds

By United Press International
Jon Matlack pitched a five-hitter and Ed Kranepool drove in three runs with three hits Wednesday night leading the New York Mets to a 5-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Matlack walked the first three batters in the first inning and then yielded a two-run single to Johnny Bench before settling down and going on to his 11th victory of the season.

Kranepool highlighted a three-run third inning with a two-run single and also drove in a run with a double in the fifth. Gary Nolan suffered his sixth loss against nine wins for the Reds.

J. R. Richards pitched a five-hitter and Wilbur Howard singled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth inning leading the Houston Astros to a 2-1 win over the Montreal Expos. Richard gave up a home run to Gary Carter in the fourth but was not in serious trouble again as he struck out six and walked five.

Terry Harmon, running for Greg Luzinski, scored the winning run in the eighth inning on Mike Schmidt's squeeze bunt as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Atlanta Braves 3-2. Jim Lonborg struck out three and scattered six hits in winning his eighth game.

John Montefusco pitched a six-hitter and hit a homer in a 10-hit attack which carried the San Francisco Giants to a 10-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Willie Montanez had three hits and Gary Thomasson two for the Giants.

Dock Ellis pitched a four-hitter and Manny Sanguillen hit a two-run homer, extending his consecutive game hitting streak to 15, leading the Pittsburgh

Pirates to an 8-1 win over the San Diego Padres. Dave Freisleben was ripped for four runs in 4 2-3 innings and suffered his 10th loss.

Ted Sizemore's bases-filled single highlighted a three-run sixth inning outburst which carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Bob Forsch went 8 2-3 innings for the victory despite ninth-inning homers by Willie Crawford and Lee Lacy.

Boston Celtics Owner Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Schmetz, an owner of the Boston Celtics, died Wednesday at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital here. He was 48.

Schmetz's brother, Eric, said the part owner of the National Basketball Association team died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

A spokesman for the Celtics said Tuesday that Schmetz had undergone brain surgery a week ago in an effort to repair a ruptured blood vessel in the head.

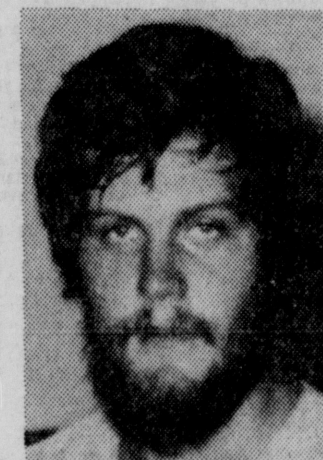

Eric Schmetz said his brother became ill July 15. Schmetz had in recent years been involved in the formation of the World Football League and World Hockey Association. He once had been a part owner of the New York Stars of the WFL and the New England Whalers of the WHA.

On Feb. 5, Schmetz was indicted by a Trenton, N.J., grand jury on bribery-conspiracy charges. He pleaded innocent to the charges.

It has been estimated that in Ocean County, one of the fastest growing regions in the country, one of every seven persons lives in a dwelling built by Schmetz's firm.

The NBA took no action against Schmetz because of the indictment. J. Walter Kennedy, who was NBA commissioner last February, said at the time that no action was contemplated pending the outcome of the case.

Dutton Anxious For Return

John Dutton was an All America tackle and co-captain of the 1973 Nebraska Cornhusker team, but on July 19 he'll be No. 78 on the Baltimore Colts.

As he heads into his second year as a pro star in the NFL — he made the All Rookie team in 1974 — Dutton is not overjoyed at the prospect of starting those tough summer drills. But he's anxiously awaiting a return to Nebraska's Memorial Stadium to play in the exhibition game with the Atlanta Falcons on August 16.

"Sure, I want to come back home to play again," Dutton said. "But I worry about that game, too. I'd hate to come back to Memorial Stadium and blow it. I really enjoyed playing at Nebraska when I was in school."

Dutton will have several former Husker teammates with him on the Colts — running backs Joe Orduna and Bill Olds and wide receiver Don Westbrook.

The giant — 6-7, 260-pound — Colt star has been sporting a Paul Bunyan beard this summer during his Lincoln residency, but he'll shave for camp.

The former Husker said Baltimore's outlook is much improved over a year ago.

"Losing makes you worry a lot — I was used to winning at Nebraska, and it's hard to lose — and I don't want to go through another losing year like my first," he said. "But I'm enthused because I think we might be pretty good this year. We've got a new offensive line — George Kunz from Canada and Ken Huff from North Carolina State will help — so I think we'll be better. Our defense got killed last year because we were on the field all the time. Now we've got some hope."

Aunt Priscilla Having Trouble

I'm having so much fun at the State Fairgrounds' races this year.

Aunt Priscilla

I've had a little trouble this week.

On Tuesday, I thought I had a winner in the third race when that sweet little Nervewracking got a lead, but the poor thing tired a little and finished third. Then my Supreme Son finished fourth in the fourth race.

That dropped my $104 spree fund to $107.80.

On Thursday, I'm going to put my $2 win tickets on Jeff J.J. in the first and Nobby Dod in the seventh.

NFL Owners, Players Offer Proposals

A proposal and a counter-proposal were made by the NFL owners and players union during negotiations for a new bargaining contract. No details of either proposal were made public.

The owners submitted their proposal at the start of the meeting which was then recessed. Later the union came back with a counter-proposal.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said that strict enforcement of Title IX, the federal regulations regarding discrimination on the basis of sex in schools and colleges, could be a blow to overall sports programs.

Paterno said that if the regulations are interpreted in such a way that women will receive equal amounts of money, a situation could develop where only women and football players would receive scholarships, football being the sport that makes money.

The Denver Broncos cut two rookie free agents from the roster. They were Mark Sens from Colorado and Murphy Mitchell of Tulsa.

Emilen Tunnell, one of the NFL's great defensive backs and first black coach, died of an apparent heart attack at the age of 50.

Center Bruce Jarvis, troubled with knee injuries, walked out of the Buffalo Bills' training camp without explanation.

Track Security Smoother Now

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

Security might just be Murdock Platner's middle name.

That's because he has been with coordinated security at Nebraska race tracks for more than 25 years. But things didn't always go as smoothly as they do today.

"It must have been in the early 1950s at Columbus where they had a complicated deal," he said. "A jockey grabbed the saddle blanket from another horse. It was Omaha day at the races and everybody thought this was an Omaha horse that was getting a bad deal."

"Just when the horse was being disqualified, the woman running the odds-board in the infield made a mistake and everyone ganged up around the judges' stand."

"I was really worried about what might happen. But I started telling them I was from Omaha and the Omaha people were not getting a bad deal. That seemed to quiet them down a little."

That also convinced officials that the judges' stand should be on the roof and not near the finish line.

At any rate, Platner has had more serene times in recent years supervising the security at Nebraska horse tracks.

"We mainly control traffic and crowd control," he said. "We handle the people inside the grandstand, guard the money, have five watches in the barns and make investigations when we're required to do so."

Platner supervises a 40-person staff at the State Fairgrounds. His staff at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha approaches 120.

"At the tracks in Nebraska, the management would rather have too much security than not enough. They let us hire as many people as we need," Platner said.

Platner is a special deputy state sheriff, which gives him the power of arresting unruly spectators at Nebraska tracks.

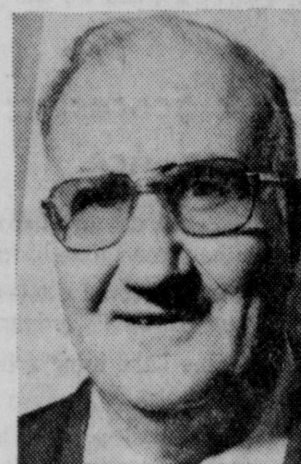

Usually, however, just his size alone (6-3 and 280 pounds) is enough to scare surely fans to behave themselves.

A 33-year veteran in law enforcement work, Platner was transferred to Omaha in 1944 while serving in the MP unit of the Army.

His job then was to check on military personnel who were in the Omaha jail at police headquarters. After spending so much time at the jail, Omaha Police Department personnel convinced him he should work there.

So in 1945, he was hired by OPD. Two years later, he worked the Ak-Sar-Ben races. In 1949, he began working in the vice department and at Ak-Sar-Ben as a plainclothesman.

"At the end of the 1949 season, Ralph Boomer (of the Nebraska State Racing Commission) wanted me to work at the out-

Murdock Platner
Coordinates Security

state tracks as a state police officer," he said. "Then I started working six weeks outstate each year at places such as Mitchell, Madison, Columbus and Lincoln. I took my annual leave every year until 1955 when Fonner opened working outstate tracks."

From 1955 through 1963, Platner worked Fonner, Ak-Sar-Ben and Lincoln. From 1964 through 1970, he just worked the Ak-Sar-Ben meet as he completed almost 20 years of coordinating Ak-Sar-Ben security.

After working in 1970 for Wells Fargo, Platner decided to form his own company. With J. C. Whinnery, he started the Coordinated Securities Services. That's the company that has the security at all Nebraska tracks, except Atokad.

Finally, Platner retired in August of 1971 after nearly 26 years with the Omaha Police Department. His last rank was administrative captain of detectives.

He still maintains that respect for law enforcement has deteriorated in recent years.

"People have lost a lot of the respect they have for uniformed police. It's harder for them to move on when they're told," he said. "There used to be a fear of a policeman in uniform, but not any more."

Nevertheless, Platner still commands much respect from the persons who frequent the Nebraska horse tracks. He's still the "Number One Policeman" at the Nebraska races.

Weights Set

Racing secretary and handicapper Bob Pollock assigned the Kemling Bros. Inc.'s Roman Zipper top-weight of 126 pounds for Saturday's State Fair Handicap over 6 furlongs.

The race is for 3-year-old colts and geldings and carries a $4,000 purse.

Other entrants and their weights include Friar Shuck (119); Cordial Prince (118); Slidan (114); Winsor Fair (112); Hi Bouncer (112); Irish (111); Ima Fleet (110) and Glo Master (107).

Purses Rise

State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt raised the minimum purse to $2,000 for Friday's races.

It is the third time this season that the minimum purse has been increased. It started at $1,700.

Track 'Hurt'

Almost four inches of rain have turned the new racing surface into its worst condition this season, State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt noted.

"We're going to seal it tonight (Wednesday) and hopefully that'll improve it somewhat," he said. "We need to blade it when it dries out. We've done everything possible, but when you have that rain, it's bound to hurt it."

"If we had the other track, we'd be running through slop and water and everything," he said. "We know it's not that good, but we're trying to get it back into shape."

The track was officially listed as slow for Wednesday's races.

Traveling Babies

Some folks think the newest member of the family, babies, are only for display at home. Travel plans are out when an infant is concerned. It doesn't have to be so.

Having spent two full weeks of traveling, plus a couple of two or three-day jaunts, with our baby (now 3 1/2 months old) we know it can be done and enjoyably for all concerned.

There are some things to keep in mind when traveling or planning to travel with the infant, however. First, make sure your doctor gives the youngster a clean bill of health and some tips for on-the-road treatment of such things as colds.

In case you're not aware, your baby is in need of a home drinking water supply. That means he or she will find new drinking water sources a harsh laxative on the road. The remedy is taking along a jug or at least extra bottles of home water just for baby's use.

It is also wise to stock up on a food supply since we've found baby food prices away from home can be quite high or the food you want or need is just not available. Diapers are the same way if you use the disposable brands and that's the only way to go when traveling with a baby in need.

We've found a cooler system quite satisfactory in that we keep a large cooler in the trunk with a supply of food, formula (or milk) and drink for your youngin'. We also keep a one or two-gallon water jug in the front of the car packed with ice and full of more food and bottles to use along the way. We've found the extra-wide mouthed types like the Gott jug to be most convenient for the passenger use.

With the two cooler system, we can make up as much as two days worth of formula and keep it cold while on the road. Sometimes stops are hastened so the extra formula on hand is worth a mint at a time of need.

Airconditioning Best

If your car has airconditioning, you're one step up. Even if it doesn't, you'll need to arrange a sleeping area for your child. Try to get it in a cool place, level and in a shaded area. Keep the baby out of a draft as much as possible since they're very susceptible to catching cold.

Take along lots of extra blankets. My wife likes to make the youngster's car bed out of them since he'll sleep better and longer when more comfortable.

The blankets and a warm sleeper are also mandatory many times when making a motel stop. Room airconditioning can sometimes be quite cool. And she packs a couple of crib sheets and a bumper pad since many motel cribs don't have one or both.

By all means, if you're traveling by the motel route, make reservations well in advance and try to give yourselves plenty of time to get set up in the room by early evening. We've run into situations where we weren't certain where we were going to make an overnight stop, hence no reservations made, hence no rooms available, hence some miserable extra hours on the road.

If you're planning a good deal of sightseeing, hiking about or whatever you out of the car, a baby backpack or one of the many fine foldup strollers is a handy item to pack. And, if you can spare the room, a foldup camper rocking chair is ideal if your youngster likes to be rocked as ours does.

Try to keep your child on his or her normal schedule and fewer problems will arise. The happier the baby, the more enjoyable the trip.

Traveling with your infant can be done, and done with a lot of fun for all. There's no reason to cancel a trip if the youngster is healthy and fit for travel. Our little boy seems to have had as much fun on the road as we do, and we like taking him along.

Revelle Cut By Atlanta

Wide receiver Bob Revelle was cut from the Atlanta Falcons' roster in training camp. Revelle, a former Nebraska standout, and two other rookies were cut Wednesday.

In other pro transactions, Louis Cooper, a defensive end from Doane College, was waived by the Houston Oilers.

Cook Scores Second Ace

Carolyn Cook did the impossible for the second time in four days when she scored a hole-in-one on the par 3, 145-yard-ninth hole at Pine Lake using a five iron.

U.S. Swimmers Snap World Mark

CALI Colombia (UPI) — The United States' record-setting men's freestyle team and teenager Shirley Babashoff each claimed gold medals in early finals Wednesday night at the World Swimming Championships here marred earlier in the day by a Yugoslavian walkout.

However, the Yugoslavians decided to stay and will play Colombia on Thursday as scheduled.

The American quartet—Bruce Furniss of Santa Ana, Calif.; Jim Montgomery of Madison, Wis.; Andy Coan of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; and John Murphy of Hinsdale, Ill.—shaved .32 seconds off the old world record in the mens 400-meter relay with the scorching time of 3:24.85, the old standard, set in 1974 by the United States at Concord, N.H. was 3:25.17.

The 18-year-old Miss Babashoff upset East German child prodigy Kornelia Ender to capture her gold medal. Miss Babashoff was trailing in third place most of the race but pulled ahead in the final 10 meters with a tremendous sprint. Her time of 2:02.50 was about a quarter-of-a second slower than Miss Ender's world record set in March of this year at Desden — 2:02.27.

Sieckmann Downs Rose

Kansas City — Tom Sieckmann ousted the only other local golfer in the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament here Wednesday.

In the first round of match play, Sieckmann defeated Frank Rose, 2 and 1. Sieckmann, the defending champion of the Nebraska Men's State Golf Championships, opted for the Trans-Miss instead of the Nebraska meet which is being held in Alliance.

Rose is a former Fairbury native and University of Nebraska golfer. He won the Nebraska State Championship in 1969.

Sieckmann will go into play Thursday, when there will be two rounds. Quarterfinals are scheduled for Friday, with the semis on Saturday and the 36-hole finals Sunday.

All-Breed Show Set For Lincoln

The Lincoln Junior Kennel Club is sponsoring its second annual all-breed fun match dog show Saturday at Van Dorn Park.

Both AKC conformation and obedience and any 4-H AKC dogs are welcome with entries being accepted at the park up until noon and judging beginning at 1 p.m.

Judds to Host Championship

Lincoln Northeast Judd Brothers will host Columbus for the Cornhusker Conference baseball title Saturday at Sherman Field at 8 p.m.

Judd Brothers wrapped up the East Division with an 10-2 record while Columbus recorded an 8-2 mark in the West league.

Grand Island's midget team has also clinched its West divisional title and a Saturday playoff is set at Grand Island with either Beatrice or Lincoln Atlas Co.

New Orleans — Former Nebraska linebacker John Starkebaum was one of two New Orleans Saints reported returning to practice Wednesday, after suffering a bruised knee recently.

Misty Lounge Gets AAA Win

Misty Lounge edged error-plagued Racquet Lounge, 7-6 in AAA fast pitch softball Wednesday at Ballard Field.

Racquet Lounge gave up four costly runs in the second inning as Misty scored three runs on one error. In the bottom of the eighth, Mel Knopp singled for Misty, went to second on a sacrifice, stole third and scored the winning run on a pass ball.

In the second game, Bill Honor led Stan's Lounge to a 7-4 win over Dick Flynn Buick. Honor had two doubles and a single. Jack Calfee singled in the winning run for Stan's.

Winning pitcher John Jackson, now 10-1, fanned 10 Dick Flynn batters.

NCAA to Investigate Minnesota Violations

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The men's intercollegiate athletic department at the University of Minnesota has been given until Oct. 1 to clear itself of an estimated 100 violations of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

"We'll be awfully rushed to respond within 60 days," said Dr. Stan Kegler, a university vice president who conducted Wednesday's news conference at which time the school officially recognized its problems with the NCAA.

"Remember, they have been investigating at their leisure for the past year," said Kegler, who described the allegations as "substantial" and "troubling."

Kegler would not say what programs are affected by the investigation, although he said basketball Coach Bill Musselman has retained an attorney in connection with the events. Kegler said he couldn't comment on the scope of the investigation, or if the charges included the Minnesota football program.

However, he said the school has hired an attorney to conduct an investigation on its behalf. He also said several influential alumni are mentioned in the report.

"The institution is being investigated, not a coach," said Kegler. "The NCAA will take into account what we've tried to do on our own. It's to our benefit to take action if we can."

Kegler said the school would not make any information available until it had responded to the charges.

Musselman, who is conducting his summer basketball camp at St. Peter, continued to defend his position amidst talk he'll depart Minnesota for a lucrative long-term contract with the San Diego Conquistadors of the American Basketball Association.

"I'm the coach at Minnesota," he said by telephone. "I've still got three years on my contract here."

Randy Pellatz of Lincoln aced the No. 17 hole at Pioneer Golf Course Tuesday.

Hogg, Benson Lead Tourney

Earline Hogg and Mitsy Benson were the first round leaders in the Lincoln Women's Municipal Golf Association Tournament Wednesday at Holmes Golf Course.

Hogg was the 18-hole leader with a 71, while Benson was the nine-hole leader with a 38.

The tournament concludes Thursday at Pioneer's Golf Course.

Hoag Takes Bass

Ogallala — Bill Hoag of Lemoyne hauled in a 17-pound 3-ounce striped bass at Lake McConaughy last week, eclipsing the record 16 pounder taken just eight days earlier.

Biologists estimate that Lake McConaughy striped bass will easily reach 20 pounds and might someday crowd 30 pounds.

Peay Announces His Retirement

THIBODAUX, La. (AP) — Offensive tackle Francis Peay of Kansas City decided to retire rather than be traded to New Orleans, a Saints spokesman announced Wednesday.

NCAA to Investigate Minnesota Violations

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The men's intercollegiate athletic department at the University of Minnesota has been given until Oct. 1 to clear itself of an estimated 100 violations of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

"We'll be awfully rushed to respond within 60 days," said Dr. Stan Kegler, a university vice president who conducted Wednesday's news conference at which time the school officially recognized its problems with the NCAA.

"Remember, they have been investigating at their leisure for the past year," said Kegler, who described the allegations as "substantial" and "troubling."

Kegler would not say what programs are affected by the investigation, although he said basketball Coach Bill Musselman has retained an attorney in connection with the events. Kegler said he couldn't comment on the scope of the investigation, or if the charges included the Minnesota football program.

However, he said the school has hired an attorney to conduct an investigation on its behalf. He also said several influential alumni are mentioned in the report.

"The institution is being investigated, not a coach," said Kegler. "The NCAA will take into account what we've tried to do on our own. It's to our benefit to take action if we can."

Kegler said the school would not make any information available until it had responded to the charges.

Musselman, who is conducting his summer basketball camp at St. Peter, continued to defend his position amidst talk he'll depart Minnesota for a lucrative long-term contract with the San Diego Conquistadors of the American Basketball Association.

Ace For Pellatz

Randy Pellatz of Lincoln aced the No. 17 hole at Pioneer Golf Course Tuesday.

Pellatz used a seven iron for his hole-in-one on the 143-yard, par three hole. Witnesses were Mike Bell, Bob Bell and Gary Westergren.

Hoag Takes Bass

Ogallala - Bill Hoag of Lemoyne hauled in a 17-pound 9-ounce striped bass at Lake McCaughy last week, eclipsing the record 16 pounder taken just eight days earlier.

Biologists estimate that Lake McCaughy striped bass will easily reach 20 pounds and might someday reach 30 pounds.

Peay Announces His Retirement

THIBODAUX, La. (AP) - Offensive tackle Francis Peay of Kansas City decided to retire rather than be traded to New Orleans, a Saints spokesman announced Wednesday.

Receiver To Operate G.I. Hotel

Omaha (AP) - Don E. Dixon, a Lincoln real estate man, Wednesday was appointed receiver and ordered to operate Grand Island's Yancey Motor Hotel.

U. S. District Court Judge Robert Denney appointed Dixon at a hearing in foreclosure actions being brought against owners of the Yancey property.

In June, the Lincoln Benefit Life Insurance Co. brought a foreclosure action against the Second Island Development Co., claiming it was owed $350,000 from a loan.

The U. S. Small Business Administration has since filed a cross petition of foreclosure, claiming it also is owed $350,000 by Second Island.

Second Island owns the Yancey Hotel property, but in recent years has leased the hotel operation to the Grand Island Hotel Corp.

The Grand Island Hotel Corp. last week filed a petition for general bankruptcy in U. S. District Court in Omaha.

Life Begins At Forty:

School Volunteer Program Provides Rewarding Work

By JOANNE FARRIS
QUESTION: "I belong to a group who call ourselves Junior League Retirees. We started the Junior League in our city. Long before social work was fashionable we led a campaign to eliminate rats in our downtown area. We opened the first well baby clinic here, and we started the first school milk program way back when.
"When we turned 40 we gave up active status in the League, but we still did our stint at the Detention Center, the School for Retarded Children, the League Thrift Shop and wherever else we were needed.
"Now, we're all over 70, and we'd like to turn to some new and different endeavors which will give us a new challenge and perhaps require a bit less vigor. We want to start working in September. Can you make some suggestions for us?"
ANSWER: I feel that old persons have a great deal to offer to the young, so whenever a senior citizen asks me for a work idea I tend to think of something intergenerational like School Volunteers, which operates under different names in various locations.
Basically, though, this is a program where one adult works with one child to help the child with some learning problem that the classroom teacher does not have time to deal with adequately.
I've written about this work before, and everyone I've talked to who has participated in it has told me how richly rewarding the work is.
If one or two of you are willing to undergo a 12-hour course of instruction you could become reading tutors under the Laubach Literacy program.
This national volunteer organization works through local chapters (there is one in your city) to teach any illiterate persons who want to learn to read.

They try to match up pupil and teacher with respect to age and where they live so that neither one will have to travel too far from home for the lessons.
Look up Laubach Literacy Council in the phone book. For readers in other cities where there is no Laubach Literacy Council, write to Laubach Literacy, Inc., Box 131, Syracuse, N.Y. 13201 to see how you can assist in this work.
Another great project for a group like yours is oral history interviews. You, in particular, who made a lot of the history of your city, now can take responsibility to see that it is recorded for future generations.
You probably should consult with your local historical association so that your recorded recollections will be in a suitable form for their library. But I'm in dead earnest with this idea.

Seek out the oldest persons in your city. Research parts of their background that you may not already be familiar with. Then, using the format and recording device recommended by the historical association, carry on interviews which will become historical records.
Sometimes, if your subject is both loquacious and interesting, the interview may require several sessions. If just one of you gets into this work, I promise that the other will be fascinated. And the historical association will be forever in your debt. In fact, the whole city should be grateful to you.

London — Summer has arrived at least among the stone fronts of West End. Under the shade trees beside the Thames.
The winter-cherry noses of the hotel doormen along Hyde Park's hotel row have unfrozen. There are more strolling police on the streets. (The desk sergeants come out for a bit of sun. Turn on the heat and you have instant policemen.)
Not so to the American visitor. It's blooming cold if you ask me. The dialed telephone says in its recorded voice: "The temeraturh on the Air Ministry roof is 57 degrees. Occasional bright periods."
The Air Ministry man is a seeker of silver-lined clouds.
It's a chilly summer in Europe: Amsterdam, 57

degrees, cloudy. Dublin, 55 degrees, cloudy. Oslo, 61 degrees, sunny. (Let's hear it for sunny Norway!) Tel Aviv is 81 and Athens is 77. Ah to be in sunny Sunion where the Temple of Poseidon drowns above the blue Aegean sea.
☆☆☆
If you fly Air Canada and fish your baggage tags from an inside pocket, you will find this:
"This is not the luggage ticket (baggage check) described by Article 4 of the Warsaw Convention or the Warsaw Convention as amended by the Hague Protocol 1955."
If you are keeping up on Warsaw Conventions and Hague Protocols, you are a whiz kid and know what's what with your checked luggage.

You are probably unaware that during the latter half of the Nineteenth Century, the mimulus plant lost its musky odor.
Botanists were baffled. The yellow flower had perfumed every garden in England since the Romans built villas along the winding streams of Surrey.
But suddenly — no explanation — the mimulus lost its scent.
Therefore, it caused no end of excitement the other day when a reader sent a musky envelope to the garden editor of a great London newspaper.
Alas, the blow fell today.
"The cuttings are Mimulus luteus," he wrote sadly, "with red-splashed petals. The variety which had the musk scent — in the leaves, not in the flowers — was Mimulus moschatus with flowers of unmarked pale yellow."
It's an unscented world at the bottom of our garden.

Nero To Be Great Lover
LOS ANGELES (AP) — European actor Franco Nero will portray the silent screen's great lover Rudolph Valentino in "Valentino," a two-hour television movie that will air in the coming season on ABC.
Nero is best known to American audiences for his performance as Sir Lancelot in the film version of "Camelot." He also starred in "The Virgin and the Gypsy."
Suzanne Pleshette, who plays Bob Newhart's wife on his comedy series, has the lead female role in the film as June Mathis, the screenwriter who discovered Valentino and wrote many of his most famous movies.

SE Nebraska Road Work Targeted

The State Roads Department plans to contract for nearly 27 miles of highway improvements in Lancaster County during the year ending June 30, 1976.
All told, some 118 miles in a 14-county area in southeast Nebraska will be improved during the coming year at a cost of $10.6 million.
Two of the larger improvements call for resurfacing 13.7 miles of Hwy. 79 from Valparaiso south to Hwy. 34 and hard surfacing the shoulders from Crete east to U.S. 77, a distance of 13 miles.
The Hwy. 79 project will cost $685,000, while the work on U.S. 77 is expected to run $731,000.
Hwy. 79 currently carries much of the traffic headed for Branched Oak Lake. The work will make the ride smoother and increase the highway's strength.

Many of the projects of direct interest to Lincoln area residents are included in the department's five-year plan for road improvements through fiscal 1981.
A total of seven projects, including preliminary engineering studies for the Lincoln West Bypass aimed at improving U.S. 77, are included in the five-year plan.
The cost of those U.S. 77 projects total roughly $8 million in grading, culverts, bridges and surfacing.
One variance from the five-year program published one year ago is that funds for acquisition of right-of-way for the Lincoln West Bypass are not included. That comes to approximately $1.1 million.

However, Deputy State Engineer Charles Nutter said the acquisition of right-of-way for the bypass has not been delayed. He said the plan reflects the cost of the engineering studies alone, since it will precede right-of-way acquisition.
Other five-year projects of interest to the Lincoln area are plans to upgrade Hwy. 2 in south Lincoln between 14th St. and Old Cheney Road. High speed traffic and numerous access points along the highway have made that stretch of highway the scene of several serious accidents in past months.

Grading and surfacing is also planned for U.S. 6 between Lincoln and Waverly on the city's northeast corner. The cost of that 4.6-mile project is expected to run $3.4 million.
The five-year plan calls for major improvements in Hwy. 15 running through Jefferson, Seward and Butler Counties.
Likewise, Hwy. 73, another route which carries heavy north-south traffic, is slated for repairs in Otoe, Nemaha and Richardson Counties.
In the current construction year, 5.8 miles of gravel road on the state highway system will be hard-surfaced. That stretch is in Nemaha County from Peru south.

Projects To Be Let For Bids

Here is a list of Lincoln area highway projects which will be let for bids during the year ending June 30, 1976:
Hwy. 79 — 13.7 miles of resurfacing from Valparaiso south ($685,000).
Hwy. 34 — 13 miles of shoulder resurfacing from Crete to U.S. 77 ($731,000).
Hwy. 4 — storm sewer work in Daykin ($12,000).
Hwy. 5 — bridge work north of Deshler ($351,000).
U.S. 34 — 3 miles of resurfacing north of Murray ($137,000).
U.S. 34 — 3.6 miles of resurfacing in Plattsmouth ($143,000).
Hwy. 50 — 11 1/2 miles of resurfacing from Pawnee City to the Kansas line ($600,000).
Hwy. 50 — 13.1 miles of shoulder surfacing south of Louisville ($990,000).
Hwy. 62 — 2.9 miles of resurfacing from I-80 to U.S. 6 ($213,000).
Hwy. 63 — 6.6 miles of resurfacing from U.S. 77 to Ithaca ($330,000).
Hwy. 67 — 6 miles of surfacing south of Shubert ($300,000).
Hwy. 67 — 4 miles of resurfacing from Nemaha to Brownville ($200,000).
Hwy. 67 — 5.8 miles of grading and surfacing south of Peru ($1.5 million).
Hwy. 103 — 7 miles of grading and surfacing north of Diller ($1.7 million).
U.S. 136 — 8.1 miles of resurfacing from the Steinauer spur and Tecumseh west ($405,000).
U.S. 136 — 11 1/2 miles of resurfacing from Auburn west ($500,000).
U.S. 136 — one mile of resurfacing from 6th to 19th St. in Beatrice ($85,000).
L-80G — 5.3 miles of grading and surfacing from Goehner north ($1.0 million).
U.S. 30 — 5.2 miles of resurfacing from Arlington west ($501,000).
Hwy. 31 — 4.1 miles of grading and surfacing on the Gretna Fish Hatchery Road at Shramm State Recreation Area ($1.0 million).
Hwy. 14 — 12.2 miles of resurfacing on the Marquette spur and from Aurora north ($610,000).

U.S. 30 — 14.1 miles of resurfacing between Wood River and Grand Island ($705,000).
Hwy. 8 — 12.5 miles of resurfacing from Superior east ($625,000).
Hwy. 14 — 4 miles of divided roadway in Superior ($381,000).
U.S. 30 — 3.2 miles of grading and surfacing from Kearney east ($2.7 million).
Hwy. 74 — 5 miles of grading and surfacing from Holstein to Roseland ($1.0 million).
Hwy. 78 — 7.3 miles of resurfacing from Guide Rock north ($365,000).
Stand-by projects for the current highway construction year include:
Hwy. 2 — 12.6 miles of shoulder surfacing from Palmyra to Syracuse ($819,000).
Hwy. 8 — 9.9 miles of resurfacing west of Pawnee City ($495,000).
Hwy. 109 — 11.6 miles of resurfacing from Cedar Bluffs south ($580,000).
The state's five-year construction program for the Lincoln area includes:
Hwy. 2 — 3.9 miles of divided highway and curb work between 14 St. in Lincoln and East Cheney Road ($5 million).
U.S. 6 — 3 miles of interchange work at Dorchester ($1.5 million).
U.S. 6 — 3 1/2 miles of grading and surfacing in Milford ($2.5 million).
U.S. 6 — 4.6 miles of grading and surfacing between Lincoln and Waverly ($3.4 million).
Hwy. 15 — 10 miles of grading and surfacing south of Fairbury ($4 million).
Hwy. 15 — 9 miles of shoulder surfacing south of Seward ($962,000).

Hwy. 15 — 8.6 miles of grading and surfacing south of Seward ($2.3 million).
Hwy. 15 — 2.9 miles of grading and surfacing south of David City ($80,000).
Hwy. 15 — .6 mile of resurfacing in David City ($94,000).
Hwy. 15 — 5 miles of grading and surfacing north of David City ($1.4 million).
U.S. 34 — 6.6 miles of grading and surfacing between Union and Murray ($722,000).
Hwy. 43 — 7 miles of grading and surfacing between Eagle and Palmyra.
Hwy. 50 — one mile of grading and surfacing between Pawnee City and Dubois ($241,000).
Hwy. 66 — 9.9 miles of grading and surfacing between Dwight and Valparaiso ($1.7 million).
Hwy. 67 — 10 miles of grading and surfacing north of Dunbar ($1.4 million).
U.S. 77 — 10 miles of shoulder surfacing north of Beatrice ($650,000).
U.S. 77 — 2.8 miles of grading and surfacing between Pickrell and Cortland ($920,000).
U.S. 77 — 13.2 miles of shoulder surfacing from the Hwy. 33 junction south ($858,000).
U.S. 77 — 3 miles of grading and surfacing from the Hwy. 33 junction north ($1.5 million).
U.S. 77 — 5 miles of grading and surfacing south of Lincoln ($1.9 million).
U.S. 77 — preliminary engineering plans for 7 miles of the Lincoln West Bypass ($150,000).
Hwy. 79 — 9.3 miles of grading and surfacing from Agnew south ($2.2 million).
L-55L — 1.3 miles of urban highway work on West Cornhusker Highway ($2.4 million).

That project will cost $1.5 million, the second most costly project in the Lincoln area for the current year.
The most expensive project will be the grading and surfacing work planned for Hwy. 103 from Diller north to Hwy. 136. It will require $1.7 million.
Hwy. 136 itself is scheduled for some major resurfacing this year in the Auburn, Tecumseh and Beatrice areas. A total of 19.1 miles are involved, some of it between 6th and 19th Sts. in Beatrice.
Hwy. 50 in Pawnee and Cass Counties will also be resurfaced in some areas and have hard-surface shoulders in others.

Life Begins At Forty:

By JOANNE FARRIS
QUESTION: "I belong to a group who call ourselves Junior League Retirees. We started the Junior League in our city. Long before social work was fashionable we led a campaign to eliminate rats in our downtown area, we opened the first well baby clinic here, and we started the first school milk program way back when."

"When we turned 40 we gave up active status in the League, but we still did our stint at the Detention Center, the School for Retarded Children, the League Thrift Shop and wherever else we were needed."

"Now, we're all over 70, and we'd like to turn to some new and different endeavors which will give us a new challenge and perhaps require a bit less vigor. We want to start working in September. Can you make some suggestions for us?"

ANSWER: I feel that old persons have a great deal to offer to the young, so whenever a senior citizen asks me for a work idea I tend to think of something intergenerational like School Volunteers, which operates under different names in various locations.

Basically, though, this is a program where one adult works with one child to help the child with some learning problem that the classroom teacher does not have time to deal with adequately.

I've written about this work before, and everyone I've talked to who has participated in it has told me how richly rewarding the work is.

This national volunteer organization works through local chapters (there is one in your city) to teach any illiterate persons who want to learn to read. They try to match up pupil and teacher with respect to age and where they live so that neither one will have to travel too far from home for the lessons.

Look up Laubach Literacy Council in the phone book. For readers in other cities where there is no Laubach Literacy Council, write to Laubach Literacy, Inc., Box 131, Syracuse, N.Y. 13201 to see how you can assist in this work.

Another great project for a group like yours is oral history interviews. You, in particular, who made a lot of the history of your city, now can take responsibility to see that it is recorded for future generations.

You probably should consult with your local historical association so that your recorded recollections will be in a suitable form for their library. But I'm in dead earnest with this idea.

Seek out the oldest persons in your city. Research parts of their background that you may not already be familiar with. Then, using the format and recording device recommended by the historical association, carry on interviews which will become historical records.

Sometimes, if your subject is both loquacious and interesting, the interview may require several sessions. If just one of you gets into this work, I promise that the other will be fascinated. And the historical association will be forever in your debt. In fact, the whole city should be grateful to you.

London — Summer has arrived at least among the stone fronts of West End. Under the shade trees beside the Thames.

The winter-cherry noses of the hotel doormen along Hyde Park's hotel row have unfrozen. There are more strolling police on the streets. (The desk sergeants come out for a bit of sun. Turn on the heat and you have instant policemen.)

Not so to the American visitor. It's blooming cold if you ask me. The dial telephone says in its recorded voice: "The temeraturh on the Air Ministry roof is 57 degrees. Occasional bright periods."

The Air Ministry man is a seeker of silver-lined clouds.

It's a chilly summer in Europe: Amsterdam, 57

degrees, cloudy. Dublin, 55 degrees, cloudy. Oslo, 61 degrees, sunny. (Let's hear it for sunny Norway!) Tel Aviv is 81 and Athens is 77. Ah to be in sunny Sunion where the Temple of Poseidon drowns above the blue Aegean sea.

If you fly Air Canada and fish your baggage tags from an inside pocket, you will find this:

"This is not the luggage ticket (baggage check) described by Article 4 of the Warsaw Convention or the Warsaw Convention as amended by the Hague Protocol 1955."

If you are keeping up on Warsaw Conventions and Hague Protocols, you are a whiz kid and know what's what with your checked luggage.

You are probably unaware that during the latter half of the Nineteenth Century, the mimulus plant lost its musky odor.

Botanists were baffled. The yellow flower had perfumed every garden in England since the Romans built villas along the winding streams of Surrey.

But suddenly — no explanation — the mimulus lost its scent.

Therefore, it caused no end of excitement the other day when a reader sent a musky envelope to the garden editor of a great London newspaper.

Alas, the blow fell today. "The cuttings are Mimulus luteus," he wrote sadly, "with red-splashed petals. The variety which had the musk scent — in the leaves, not in the flowers — was Mimulus moschatus with flowers of unmarked pale yellow."

It's an unscented world at the bottom of our garden.

A pelican mascot for an RAF unit surveyed a parade and fly-over, dressed smartly in a new bow tie.

Nero To Be Great Lover

LOS ANGELES (AP) — European actor Franco Nero will portray the silent screen's great lover Rudolph Valentino in "Valentino," a two-hour television movie that will air in the coming season on ABC.

Nero is best known to American audiences for his performance as Sir Lancelot in the film version of "Camelot." He also starred in "The Virgin and the Gypsy."

Suzanne Pleshette, who plays Bob Newhart's wife on his comedy series, has the lead female role in the film as June Mathis, the screenwriter who discovered Valentino and wrote many of his most famous movies.

The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) will not be able to meet its customers' needs in 1986 if a second Fort Calhoun nuclear plant is not generating electricity an OPPD spokesman said.

Gerald Krause, a senior engineer for OPPD, gave that opinion Wednesday at a hearing before the State Power Review Board. He added that the loss of needed power would be felt statewide, since Nebraska Public Power District plans to use 40% of the 1,150 megawatt plant's output.

Krause's data indicated in 1986 OPPD will need 2.3 million kilowatts for peak hour loads. If the second nuclear plant is not completed, OPPD will only be able to generate 2.2 million kilowatts for peak hour loads.

And Krause said past experience has shown that OPPD's projected needs are seldom off by more than 2 1/2%.

Block Construction

The testimony came Wednesday in response to a group of citizens, calling themselves the Nebraska Public Power Project, who are attempting to block the plant's construction.

Rich Lombardi, a researcher for State Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln, is the spokesman for the loosely-knit group which numbers between 20-25. Many of the members of the group were involved in a futile drive during the 1975 Legislature to impose a moratorium on the construction of nuclear power plants.

Although some of the group's objections to the plant rest on safety and environmental grounds, the thrust of their argument before the Power Review Board will be that the $810 million plant will not be economically feasible.

Dennis Keefe, the group's attorney, has referred to the plant as an "economic monstrosity."

Services Set For Walter Haythorn, Pioneer Rancher
Ogallala (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled here Thursday for one of Nebraska's pioneer ranchers.
Walter P. Haythorn, 81, died Monday in a Denver hospital of complications following a fractured hip.
Haythorn built one of the largest cattle operations in the state.
Haythorn is credited with being the first rancher in the state to train and raise registered quarter horses.
In 1967, he was inducted into the Ak-Sar-Ben Western Hall of Fame, citing him for pioneering rodeo in Nebraska.
Haythorn's survivors include his widow, Hazel, and one son.

Plant Said Necessary To OPDP Customers

By BOB GUENTHER

The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) will not be able to meet its customers' needs in 1986 if a second Fort Calhoun nuclear plant is not generating electricity an OPDP spokesman said.

Gerald Krause, a senior engineer for OPDP, gave that opinion Wednesday at a hearing before the State Power Review Board. He added that the loss of needed power would be felt statewide, since Nebraska Public Power District plans to use 40% of the 1,150 megawatt plant's output.

Krause's data indicated in 1986 OPDP will need 2.3 million kilowatts for peak hour loads. If the second nuclear plant is not completed, OPDP will only be able to generate 2.2 million kilowatts for peak hour loads.

And Krause said past experience has shown that OPDP's projected needs are seldom off by more than 2 1/2%.

Dennis Keefe, the group's attorney, has referred to the plant as an "economic monstrosity."

OPPD Speakers
The hearing is expected to last three days. Wednesday's session featured testimony by several OPDP witnesses.

One witness for the protestors was on hand, although he was not called on to testify. He is Saunders Miller, an independent financial consultant from Des Moines.

Keefe had planned to use three expert witnesses to present the group's case. However, Keefe was denied an additional 60-day delay to round up his witnesses.

Instead, Keefe said, he will have to rely on scientific reports. For the hearing's purposes, he said it would have been more effective had he been allowed time to get his expert witnesses. Asked about the Nebraska Public Power Project's finances, Lombardi said members contribute what they are able to to defray the costs of the attorney. Miller, he said, will be paying his own expenses.

"We're not a high budget operation," Lombardi said.

2 Approve Plant
Two private citizens living near the site of the existing nuclear plant and the planned one, Ross Rasmussen of Hooper and Richard Hunt of Blair, testified in favor of the plant.

Hunt said he is quite willing to "accept the undefinable risk of living near a nuclear plant." He commended OPDP for taking a leadership role in developing nuclear power.

Rasmussen said, "I have no fear of the plant."

A farmer, he said, "I want a supply of electricity in five years when I convert my irrigation system from propane to electricity."

Some Odometers 'Pure Fiction'

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — Read any good odometers lately? Some are fact, but many others are pure fiction.

This is true even though two years ago it became illegal under federal law to roll back the gismo that tells how many miles your car has traveled. Sellers are now supposed to furnish used-car buyers with a statement certifying that the mileage registered on the odometer is correct.

Yet in a study completed last year, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found that less than half of all used-car dealers were supplying the required forms, and among private sellers, fewer than 10 percent.

There's no telling how many people are actually rolling odometers back, since crooks rarely stand still for a survey. But this form of theft is still widespread. (In my area an odometer job costs only $15). If you find that the odometer of the car you bought has been tampered with, and you don't have a form certifying the mileage, you've lost some of your leverage in fighting for restitution.

Unfortunately, the odometer statements themselves can be misleading. Take, for example, the car that has gone over 100,000 miles (probably a foreign car, since standard American cars rarely last that long). At the 100,000-mile mark, the odometer turns over to zero and starts again — so a car that has gone 150,000 miles will show only 50,000 miles on the odometer.

The disclosure statement developed by the Transportation Department asks you to certify the reading on the odometer — and in this case, nothing is wrong with the 50,000 that shows. But there's nowhere to add that 100,000 miles were wiped out along the way. (A different disclosure statement, developed by the National Automobile Dealers Assn., took note of the 100,000-mile problem, but that form has been recalled because of other technical problems.)

Even if you wrote in the margin what the true mileage was, there's no guarantee that the information would be passed on to the next owner. A used-car dealer has only to certify that the odometer has not been rolled back. As long as the car didn't show serious wear, you'd never know you were being deceived by 100,000 miles.

There's another problem with the standard odometer statement. When you turn your car in, you can state that you aren't certain whether the odometer is correct — and some dealers let people do this with no good reason.

Sellers figure that saying "I don't know" (even when they do know) lets them off the hook if anything goes wrong. But this also makes it simpler for a devious dealer to roll the odometer back, since the first owner has certified only that the true mileage is unknown.

Many auto dealers say privately that the biggest violators of the odometer law are automobile wholesalers. And the tampering is pretty hard to catch. A clever seller doesn't roll the odometer back by so much that it looks suspicious. He just takes off 10,000 miles or so. It may add only $500 to the value of each car he sells, but when you're dealing with large lots, that really adds up.

Because so many dealers think they're being victimized by wholesalers — as well as by some customers — the National Automobile Dealers Assn. is backing a bill to impose much stiffer penalties on violators of the federal odometer law, and make the cases easier to prosecute. (You could put in your eye the number of injunctions and cases brought under present law; personal honesty, not threat of prosecution, is all that keeps any odometer straight.)

The bill has passed the Senate and is now vegetating in the House of Representatives. Some states have their own odometer laws, that are more effective than the federal law.

When you buy a used car, make sure you ask for an odometer statement.

Also, consider whether the appearance of the car validates the mileage shown.

Stock Mart Still Beset By Worries

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, still beset by interest rate and inflation worries, fell sharply Wednesday in the grip of its worst sustained decline of the year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials posted its biggest drop in more than two weeks with a 10.09 loss to 836.87.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index tumbled 1.27 to 90.18, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index gave up .72 to 48.40.

Declines overwhelmed advances, 1,226 to 274 among the 1,836 issues traded on the Big Board.

NYSE volume totaled 20.15 million shares, compared with 20.66 million Tuesday.

On a day of few fresh economic developments, brokers said the market continued to feel the effects of uneasiness over the recent rise of interest rates and fears of a possible resurgence in inflation.

The government reported Tuesday that its consumer price index rose at a 9.6 percent annual rate in June, twice the pace set in the previous month.

The market made a shortlived attempt to rally late in the morning on a forecast by White House economist Alan Greenspan of an upturn in the Gross National Product.

Hogs Gain, Cattle Firm

Omaha (AP) — Hogs gained a little ground on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday.

Cattle moved to firmer ground, but were unable to post any gains because of the market's current uncertainty.

Wednesday's hog run was estimated at about 4,500 head, with barrows and gilts trading active. The butcher trend was firm to 50-cents higher, as topgrading, uniform handweights cleared from $58.00-$58.50.

Sows turned steady to 50-cents lower on tickets showing bulk markings from $50.50-$54.00.

Cattle offerings were estimated at about 3,000 head, and the demand again centered on better feeds.

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — Livestock quotations Wednesday:

Staying Ahead Some Odometers 'Pure Fiction'

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — Read any good odometers lately? Some are fact, but many others are pure fiction.

This is true even though two years ago it became illegal under federal law to roll back the gismo that tells how many miles your car has traveled. Sellers are now supposed to furnish used-car buyers with a statement certifying that the mileage registered on the odometer is correct.

Yet in a study completed last year, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found that less than half of all used-car dealers were supplying the required forms, and among private sellers, fewer than 10 percent.

There's no telling how many people are actually rolling odometers back, since crooks rarely stand still for a survey. But this form of theft is still widespread. (In my area an odometer job costs only $15). If you find that the odometer of the car you bought has been tampered with, and you don't have a form certifying the mileage, you've lost some of your leverage in fighting for restitution.

Unfortunately, the odometer statements themselves can be misleading. Take, for example, the car that has gone over 100,000 miles (probably a foreign car, since standard American cars rarely last that long). At the 100,000-mile mark, the odometer turns over to zero and starts again — so a car that has gone 150,000 miles will show only 50,000 miles on the odometer.

The disclosure statement developed by the Transportation Department asks you to certify the reading on the odometer — and in this case, nothing is wrong with the 50,000 that shows. But there's nowhere to add that 100,000 miles were wiped out along the way. (A different disclosure statement, developed by the National Automobile Dealers Assn., took note of the 100,000-mile problem, but that form has been recalled because of other technical problems.)

Even if you wrote in the margin what the true mileage was, there's no guarantee that the information would be passed on to the next owner. A used-car dealer has only to certify that the odometer has not been rolled back. As long as the car didn't show serious wear, you'd never know you were being deceived by 100,000 miles.

There's another problem with the standard odometer statement. When you turn your car in, you can state that you aren't certain whether the odometer is correct — and some dealers let people do this with no good reason.

Sellers figure that saying "I don't know" (even when they do know) lets them off the hook if anything goes wrong. But this also makes it simpler for a devious dealer to roll the odometer back, since the first owner has certified only that the true mileage is unknown.

Many auto dealers say privately that the biggest violators of the odometer law are automobile wholesalers. And the tampering is pretty hard to catch. A clever seller doesn't roll the odometer back by so much that it looks suspicious. He just takes off 10,000 miles or so. It may add only $500 to the value of each car he sells, but when you're dealing with large lots, that really adds up.

Because so many dealers think they're being victimized by wholesalers — as well as by some customers — the National Automobile Dealers Assn. is backing a bill to impose much stiffer penalties on violators of the federal odometer law, and make the cases easier to prosecute. (You could put in your eye the number of injunctions and cases brought under present law; personal honesty, not threat of prosecution, is all that keeps any odometer straight.)

The bill has passed the Senate and is now vegetating in the House of Representatives. Some states have their own odometer laws, that are more effective than the federal law.

When you buy a used car, make sure you ask for an odometer statement.

Also, consider whether the appearance of the car validates the mileage shown.

Stock Mart Still Bese By Worries

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, still beset by interest rate and inflation worries, fell sharply Wednesday in the grip of its worst sustained decline of the year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials posted its biggest drop in more than two weeks with a 10.09 loss to 836.67.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index tumbled 1.27 to 90.18, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index gave up .72 to 48.40.

Declines overwhelmed advances 1,226 to 274 among the 1,836 issues traded on the Big Board.

NYSE volume totaled 20.15 million shares, compared with 20.66 million Tuesday.

On a day of few fresh economic developments, brokers said the market continued to feel the effects of uneasiness over the recent rise of interest rates and fears of a possible resurgence in inflation.

The government reported Tuesday that its consumer price index rose at a 9.6 percent annual rate in June, twice the pace set in the previous month.

The market made a short-lived attempt to rally late in the morning on a forecast by White House economist Alan Greenspan of an upturn in the Gross National Product.

Hogs Gained, Cattle Firm

Omaha (AP) — Hogs gained a little ground on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday.

Cattle moved to firmer ground, but were unable to post any gains because of the market's current uncertainty.

Wednesday's hog run was estimated at about 4,500 head, with barrows and gilts trading active. The butcher trend was firm to 50-cents higher, as top-grading, uniform handweights cleared from $58.00-$58.50.

Sows turned steady to 50-cents lower on tickets showing bulk markings from $50.50-$54.00.

Cattle offerings were estimated at about 3,000 head, and the demand again centered on better feeds.

Antitrust Winnings Slated For Promotion

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said Wednesday that money gained from an antitrust suit against A&P and Safeway would be used so that a group of several hundred Nebraskans could promote the cattle industry.

DeCamp said the group, which would have a nucleus of five or six, would work on livestock marketing and probably pursue litigation against 17 more grocery chains which "are susceptible" to antitrust action.

Although they did not admit price fixing, Safeway agreed to pay $40,000 and A&P agreed to pay $85,000. The suit was filed by Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood.

Lake Hastings
Closed By City
After Fish Kill

Hastings (UPI) — The City of Hastings decided Wednesday to suspend all fishing and swimming activities at Lake Hastings.

result of a weekend fish kill at the lake. The cause of the kill was not known and city officials said they didn't want to take any chances.

Officials speculated that fertilizer runoff may have caused the problem.

Water and fish samples have been taken for analysis.

Burglars Take
$2,894 In Goods

Burglars took a stereo, tape player, tape recorder and three band-aid boxes full of women's jewelry from the Leonard L.
Berekson home, 2400 S. 35th, for a total loss of $2,894, police said.

Berekson told police he and his wife returned from vacation and found a glass pane broken out of the back door. The burglars had apparently reached through the broken window and unlocked the door, police said.

Police said entry apparently was made sometime between 3:30 p.m. Monday and 6 a.m.
Tuesday. The jewelry, valued at $1,435, was taken from a bathroom closet, they said.

Schmit Not Bit Surprised By Grain Scandal

By The Associated Press
Sen. Loren Schmit, chairman of the Legislature's Agricultural Committee, said his committee may hold hearings soon into apparent misdealings in the grain industry.

In a telephone interview, however, he made it clear that recent allegations of bribery and short-weighting in port cities are nothing new to him.

"I'm amazed and the members of the Agriculture Committee are amazed at the Department of Agriculture is just now discovering the shortcomings of the grain trade that we've discussed for many years."

Schmit recalled similar complaints and hearings in the 1950s. The Bellwood lawmaker said grain inspector indictments, now numbering 33, "indicates to me that what we've known for years is true."

Schmit believes the Agriculture department has been lax and that Secretary Earl Butz "and every other previous secretary for the last 20 years" is guilty of delaying an investigation into the grain inspection industry.

Asked why he thinks the federal government has been slow to discover grain misdealings, Schmit said, "I'll tell you very bluntly that I think there is bribery involved among persons in the grain trade and the Department of Agriculture people and other inspectors."

Schmit said he did not favor the proposal of Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa to make grain inspectors federal employees.

"You can bribe a federal inspector just as well as anyone else," he said.

He indicated he favored some kind of state-implemented agency where a grain shipper could file a complaint, it could be traced and the blame could be placed where it belongs.

"It's going to be up to the states to bring the thing clean if it is ever going to get done," he said.

Antitrust Winnings Slated For Promotion

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said Wednesday that money gained from an antitrust suit against A&P and Safeway would be used so that a group of several hundred Nebraskans could promote the cattle industry.

DeCamp said the group, which would have a nucleus of five or six, would work on livestock marketing and probably pursue litigation against 17 more grocery chains which "are susceptible" to antitrust action.

Although they did not admit price fixing, Safeway agreed to pay $40,000 and A&P agreed to pay $35,000. The suit was filed by Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood.

DeCamp served as an attorney.

Schmit said he would ask U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom if those who contributed $40,000 toward the expenses of the suit could be allowed the choice of getting their money back or leaving it in the promotion fund.

DeCamp said the committee would be made up of beef producers, grain elevator operators and bankers.

He said Asia and Japan are top prospects for new livestock markets.

Lake Hastings Closed By City After Fish Kill

Hastings (UPI) — The City of Hastings decided Wednesday to suspend all fishing and swimming activities at Lake Hastings. The city took the action as a result of a weekend fish kill at the lake. The cause of the kill was not known and city officials said they didn't want to take any chances.

Officials speculated that fertilizer runoff may have caused the problem.

Water and fish samples have been taken for analysis.

Burglars Take $2,894 In Goods

Burglars took a stereo, tape player, tape recorder and three band-aid boxes full of women's jewelry from the Leonard L. Berekson home, 2400 S. 35th, for a total loss of $2,894, police said.

Berekson told police he and his wife returned from vacation and found a glass pane broken out of the back door. The burglars had apparently reached through the broken window and unlocked the door, police said.

Police said entry apparently was made sometime between 3:30 p.m. Monday and 6 a.m. Tuesday. The jewelry, valued at $1,435, was taken from a bathroom closet, they said.

Nixon OK'd CIA Attempt In Chile

The New York Times

Washington — President Richard M. Nixon authorized the Central Intelligence Agency to make a last ditch, all-out effort in September 1970 to keep Salvador Allende Gossens from becoming president of Chile, authoritative government sources said Wednesday.

As a result of this assignment, the sources said, the CIA became involved in the planning of two military coups d'etat, both of which included a proposal to kidnap Gen. Rene Schneider, chief of staff of the Chilean army.

Theoretically, the kidnapping of Schneider would have given the Chilean military a justification for declaring martial law and assuming the powers of government.

The sources said the CIA tried later to stop the carrying out of one plan, but it went forward nevertheless and Schneider was killed by Chilean military plotters in the kidnap attempt.

In the other plot, the CIA was said to have supplied insurgents with three machine guns and with tear-gas grenades. When it was discerned that the plot could not get broad political support it was halted and the guns were later returned to the CIA unused, the sources said.

Henry A. Kissinger, then Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, was briefed about the first plot Oct. 13, 1970, by Thomas J. Karamessines, CIA chief of covert operations, the sources said. Karamessines reportedly told Kissinger the plot had little chance of success and it was at that point the two agreed it should be halted.

Kissinger has told President Ford of this plot, administration sources said, but has said he did not know that the CIA was negotiating with yet another group. Intelligence sources said, however, that CIA officials felt Nixon's orders to block Allende, which were strongly worded, constituted a blanket authorization for their activities.

Reports in the New York Times last fall indicated that the CIA was involved in efforts to stop Allende from assuming the presidency, but in these accounts and in subsequent congressional hearings the efforts appeared to be limited to the secret financing of opposition parties and labor unions. The latest disclosures are the first confirmation that Nixon and the CIA contemplated military coups or the violent takeover of the Chilean government.

This new information, with copies of congressional testimony in 1973 by Richard M. Helms, then Director of Central Intelligence, have been forwarded to the Justice Department for study on whether the contradictions may constitute perjury, the sources confirmed.

Helms testified on Chile before a Senate committee as early as May 1973 and later in connection with his confirmation as U.S. ambassador to Iran. He also testified at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on Chile earlier this year. There are contradictions in his testimony over the depth and extent of CIA activities against Allende.

Meanwhile, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, announced Wednesday that the committee would call Kissinger to testify on the "line of authority implementing the Nixon policy toward Chile." Church said Kissinger could offer insight into the extent of the "knowledge and control" exercised by the policy-makers.

Grain Thefts Said Not Cause Of UP Request

A spokesman for the Union Pacific Railroad Wednesday said grain thefts are not the reason the railroads are seeking an increase in the shrinkage allowance on intrastate grain shipments.

Lester Murphy, a freight claims adjuster for the UP, said he has seen no evidence that grain is being stolen in Nebraska as it has been in some Gulf ports.

"I honestly don't think we have those problems," Murphy told the Nebraska Public Service Commission.

Security is good enough at UP yards in Omaha to prevent someone from using a vacuum device to take grain from grain hoppers, he told Commissioner Duane Gay of Columbus.

The railroads are seeking an increase in the shrinkage allowance for the railroads from one-eighth to one-fourth of one percent. The allowance exempts the railroads from responsibility for any grain losses incurred from the time it was loaded until it reached its destination up to one-eighth percent of the load's weight.

In 1974, the UP, he said, paid $1 million on lost Nebraska grain due to leaky boxcars. That figure was up from past years, he said, because of higher grain prices.

Besides he noted only 2-3% of the grain loaded in the state is destined for another point in Nebraska. These are the loads under the commission's jurisdiction.

The federal Interstate Commerce Commission recently agreed to increase the shrinkage allowance on interstate grain shipments to one-fourth of one percent.

The losses occur, due to no one's fault, Murphy said, because, "It's just impossible to move a bushel of grain from here to there without losing some."

Defects in scales, chaff blowing away, moisture loss, leaking chutes at elevators, failure to sweep grain cars out and human error account for the minor losses covered by the shrinkage allowance, he said.

William Shatner Breaks An Ankle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Someone must have muttered that old show business good luck adage, "break a leg," to William Shatner as he went to work on the first episode of his new ABC television series, "Barbary Coast."

He came close. He fractured his right ankle.

Actually, a horse fractured it by stepping on Shatner during filming. Paramount Television says the former star of "Star Trek" will be in a cast at home for about two weeks, during which time production will be stalled.

Nixon OK'd CIA Attempt In Chile

©The New York Times

Washington — President Richard M. Nixon authorized the Central Intelligence Agency to make a last ditch, all-out effort in September 1970 to keep Salvador Allende Gossens from becoming president of Chile, authoritative government sources said Wednesday.

As a result of this assignment, the sources said, the CIA became involved in the planning of two military coups d'etat, both of which included a proposal to kidnap Gen. Rene Schneider, chief of staff of the Chilean army.

Theoretically, the kidnapping of Schneider would have given the Chilean military a justification for declaring martial law and assuming the powers of government.

The sources said the CIA tried later to stop the carrying out of one plan, but it went forward nevertheless and Schneider was killed by Chilean military plotters in the kidnap attempt.

In the other plot, the CIA was said to have supplied insurgents with three machine guns and with tear-gas grenades. When it was discerned that the plot could not get broad political support it was halted and the guns were later returned to the CIA unused, the sources said.

Henry A. Kissinger, then Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, was briefed about the first plot Oct. 13, 1970, by Thomas J. Karamessines, CIA chief of covert operations, the sources said. Karamessines reportedly told Kissinger the plot had little chance of success and it was at that point the two agreed it should be halted.

Kissinger has told President Ford of this plot, administration sources said, but has said he did not know that the CIA was negotiating with yet another group. Intelligence sources said, however, that CIA officials felt Nixon's orders to block Allende, which were strongly worded, constituted a blanket authorization for their activities.

Reports in the New York Times last fall indicated that the CIA was involved in efforts to stop Allende from assuming the presidency, but in these accounts and in subsequent congressional hearings the efforts appeared to be limited to the secret financing of opposition parties and labor unions. The latest disclosures are the first confirmation that Nixon and the CIA contemplated military coups or the violent takeover of the Chilean government.

This new information, with copies of congressional testimony in 1973 by Richard M. Helms, then Director of Central Intelligence, have been forwarded to the Justice Department for study on whether the contradictions may constitute perjury, the sources confirmed.

Helms testified on Chile before a Senate committee as early as May 1973 and later in connection with his confirmation as U.S. ambassador to Iran. He also testified at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on Chile earlier this year. There are contradictions in his testimony over the depth and extent of CIA activities against Allende.

Meanwhile, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, announced Wednesday that the committee would call Kissinger to testify on the "line of authority implementing the Nixon policy toward Chile." Church said Kissinger could offer insight into the extent of the "knowledge and control" exercised by the policymakers.

Grain Thefts Said Not Cause Of UP Request

A spokesman for the Union Pacific Railroad Wednesday said grain thefts are not the reason the railroads are seeking an increase in the shrinkage allowance on intrastate grain shipments.

Lester Murphy, a freight claims adjuster for the UP, said he has seen no evidence that grain is being stolen in Nebraska as it has been in some Gulf ports.

"I honestly don't think we have those problems," Murphy told the Nebraska Public Service Commission.

Security is good enough at UP yards in Omaha to prevent someone from using a vacuum device to take grain from grain hoppers, he told Commissioner Duane Gay of Columbus.

The railroads are seeking an increase in the shrinkage allowance for the railroads from one-eighth to one-fourth of one percent. The allowance exempts the railroads from responsibility for any grain losses incurred from the time it was loaded until it reached its destination up to one-eighth percent of the load's weight.

In 1974, the UP, he said, paid $1 million on lost Nebraska grain due to leaky boxcars. That figure was up from past years, he said, because of higher grain prices.

Besides he noted only 2-3% of the grain loaded in the state is destined for another point in Nebraska. These are the loads under the commission's jurisdiction.

The federal Interstate Commerce Commission recently agreed to increase the shrinkage allowance on interstate grain shipments to one-fourth of one percent.

The losses occur, due to no one's fault, Murphy said, because, "It's just impossible to move a bushel of grain from here to there without losing some."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Thursday
Of late, much mail received bemoaning your "not being fair to Sagittarius." This is a controversial zodiacal sign, philosophical yet tinged with arrogance, humanitarian yet narrow in many views, an advocate of higher education, but not always tolerant of differing ideas of unorthodox concepts. On positive side, native is active, fond of travel, gets along fine with animals, is aware to horses, loves the out-of-doors, is aware of nutrition and preventive medicine. On negative side, the native can be smug, condescending, a procrastinator, can vacillate from one side to another, can be indecisive where loyalty is concerned. Am I now being fair to Sagittarius?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Friends may be flexing their muscles. Don't get caught in middle. Express yourself, but do so in manner that rules out partially. Be your own person. Your friends will settle their own differences if you stand tall on your own.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You get going you move fast, you get green light following special meeting, conference. You gain impetus, persons "at top" are willing to make room for you. Leo Aquarius persons could figure prominently. A new deal is in offering. Be ready and willing to accept a "stable" life.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your intuitive intellect enables you to "wake up" with answers. Friend could pave way for travel, for reservations, for an exciting stimulating experience. Aquarian figures prominently. You receive communication which inspires, builds confidence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You find that people who were indifferent are now interested in what you say. Social contacts activities increase. You can be more flexible. Horizons are greater — there will be few limitations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do some remodeling. Tear down for purpose of reconstruction. Refuse to be painted into corner of status quo. Your creative desires, urges "have their say." If single, the question of marriage looms large.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Emotions could displace logic. Keys to marriage, to dig beneath surface indications. You could, if persistent, strike pay dirt. One who is proudful about investment knowledge wants you to accept "tip." Be grown-up enough to know you get nothing for nothing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Pleasant surprise is due. Member of opposite sex is likely to be involved. One who means much to you gives dollars and cents fast. You learn to be practical where costs, home improvements, luxury items are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Be selective. You need not settle for bargain basement. Means aim high, the choice is your own. Key is familiarity with basics. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Build on solid structure. Leave nothing to chance. Your personal attention is a requisite.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) People tend to remind you of past promises, obligations. Key now is to evaluate, to determine priorities "to regulate pace. Short trip could result in a "revelation." Keep open mind, but remain firm on principles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Let go of losing proposition. Deal with future prospects. Instead of brooding about the past. One you took for granted now demands greater degree of security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Ideas are transformed into action. Cycle is such that you succeed, you are more independent and creative. New starts should be encouraged. Get to heart of matters. Highlight originality, pioneering concepts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) What occurs behind closed doors could directly affect your welfare. Decisions are made, based on what you were taught in recent past.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have melodious voice, you are diplomatic, artistic and somewhat extravagant. Taurus. Libra persons play important roles in your life. September will be your "biggest" year since 1966. You could go into business, marry or have an addition to family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Thursday
Of late, much mail received berating us for "not being fair to Sagittarius." This is a controversial zodiacal sign, philosophical yet tinged with arrogance, humanitarian yet narrow in many views, an advocate of higher education, but not always tolerant of differing ideas of unorthodox concepts. On positive side, native is active, fond of travel, gets along fine with animals, is drawn to horses, loves the out-of-doors, is aware of nutrition and preventive medicine. On negative side, the native can be smug, concealing, a procrastinator, can vacillate from one side to another, can be indecisive where loyalty is concerned. Am I now being fair to Sagittarius?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friends may be flexing their muscles. Don't get caught in middle. Express yourself, but do so in manner that rules out partiality. Be your own person. Your friends will settle their own differences if you stand tall on your own.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get going, you move fast, you get green light following special meeting conference. You gain impetus; persons "at top" are willing to make room for you. Leo/Aquarius persons could figure prominently. A new deal is in offing. Be ready and willing — because you are "able."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your intuitive intellect enables you to "wake up" with answers. Friend could pave way for travel, for reservations, for an exciting, stimulating experience. Aquarian figures prominently. You receive communication which inspires, builds confidence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You find that people who were indifferent are now interested in what you say. Social contacts, activities increase. You can be more flexible. Horizons are greater — there will be fewer limitations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do some remodeling. Tear down for purpose of reconstruction. Refuse to be painted into corner of status quo. Your creative desires, urges "have their say." If single, the question of marriage looms large.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emotions could displace logic. Key is to analyze, to dig beneath surface indications. You could, if persistent, strike pay dirt. One who is proudful about investment knowledge wants you to accept "tip." Be grown-up enough to know you get nothing for nothing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pleasant surprise is due. Member of opposite sex is likely to be involved. One who means much to you gives dollars and cents fast. You learn to be practical where costs, home improvements, luxury items are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be selective. You need not settle for bargain basement. Means aim high; the choice is your own. Key is familiarity with basics. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Build on solid structure. Leave nothing to chance. Your personal attention is a requisite.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): People tend to remind you of past promises, obligations. Key now is to evaluate, to determine priorities, to regulate pace. Short trip could result in a "revelation." Keep open mind, but remain firm on principles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Let go of losing proposition. Deal with future prospects instead of brooding about the past. One you look for granted now demands greater degree of security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Ideas are transformed into action. Cycle is such that you succeed, you are more independent and creative. New starts should be encouraged. Get to heart of matters. Highlight originality, pioneering concepts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What occurs behind closed doors could directly affect your welfare. Decisions are made, based on what you were taught in recent past.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have melodious voice, you are diplomatic, artistic, and somewhat extravagant. Taurus, Libra persons play important roles in your life. September will be your most significant month in this, your "biggest" year since 1966. You could go into business, marry or have an addition to family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
